HUD gives Sikeston lesson in bureaucracy

City officials have often said that working with the federal government is a frustrating job. But during the past week, they received a lesson in bureaucracy that has left them both amazed and dismayed.

City officials traveled to St. Louis Thursday to appeal the rejection by the Department of Housing and Urban Development of third year funding under the Community Development program.

Specifically, they were appealing HUD's decision not to invite the city to apply for third year funding. The invitation generally means a city will get at least some of the funding it requests.

City Manager Charles Church said they proved that Sikeston qualified for the funds under HUD's own standards, but on Tuesday the city learned federal officials still would not release any funds.

Making the trip to St. Louis were Church, Mayor Eric Piel, City Attorney Charles Stamp, and Housing Authority Director Bill Hannah.

Church said the city will now write letters to U.S. Senators Thomas F. Eagleton and Jack Danforth and to Congressman Bill Burlison and ask for their intervention.

Sikeston operated for two years with Community Development funds, but when it sought third year funding to continue its housing rehabilitation program and street and sewer work, as well as adding park improvements in Sunset and contributing to the elderly transportation program, HUD said the city did not meet the qualifications.

What HUD said was:

--Sikeston had an adequate amount of money left over from the second year funding to keep the city busy for the third year.

--The city's ratings, based on a 30-point system, was too low. The rating points are determined by how well the CD program serves the poor and how it serves the housing rehabilitation program.

--The ratings were too low, HUD said, because the housing program did not have enough points and the sanitary sewer program was not necessary for low income housing. HUD requires two programs with high ratings before they will grant continued funding

--Finally HUD said it did not have the money to fund the city.

Church said the city showed that in the first four months of the program, 76 per cent of the housing rehabilitation funds were spent. He added that now, with only two months left to go in second year funding, all the money is either spent or contracted for.

In addition, the amount of money spent is not in HUD's guidelines on determining eligibility, Church said.

Sikeston did as well or better than Kirksville in spending the money, Church said. Kirksville is the only city in the state invited to apply for third-year funding.

He added that Steele had not spent any of its first year funding when it received second-year funding.

HUD officials said Sikeston had only rehabilitated 18 homes in the first year funding, although its plan was for 30.

Church said Sikeston had received only $60,000 under the first year funding. The 30-home figure includes those to be rehabilitated if HUD had given the city the full amount it had asked for.

Another reason for the low number was HUD itself, Church said.

That year, HUD had decided that Sikeston was the only city under 20,000 population in Missouri that was not eligible for Farmer's Home Administration loans. Those loans

New Madrid escapee caught in Arkansas

NEW MADRID -- A 16-year-old Portageville boy who escaped custody early Monday morning following an evacuation of inmates at the New Madrid County jail when a fire broke out, was apprehended Tuesday in Arkansas.

The youth was taken into custody by Ouachita County, Ark. authorities after a reported chase into a wooded area near Camden. At the time of his escape he was being held by the Sheriff's Department for alleged car theft at Portageville and for an earlier car theft in Arkansas.

Since his escape, he allegedly stole a car Monday in New Madrid. He is also suspected of burglary and stealing in Greene County, Ark. near Paragould where a shotgun, scuba diving equipment and other items, valued at $2,000, were stolen.

A 1974 model Ford Torino, owned by Susan Townsend of New Madrid, stolen Monday, has recovered by Arkansas police and the loot taken in the burglary was found inside the car.

Pending court action against the boy in Arkansas, it has not been determined when the escapee will be returned to New Madrid County.

Bloomfield okays report on sewage

BLOOMFIELD— The City Council Tuesday night accepted a preliminary report on the city sewage system, which will now be sent to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for approval.

The report, prepared by Waters & Associates of Sikeston, acting as city engineers, determined excessive inflow of rain water and advised a smoke test be made on the system.

"This test will yield valuable information to help alleviate the perpetual problems of sewer overflows now plaguing your community, and will also aid in the development of the final facility plan," the report said.

The smoke test will determine where leaks in the system are located. The EPA must approve the tests.

This report is part of the first step the city must take to upgrade its sewers to meet EPA guidelines.

The report, presented to the council Tuesday night by Alex Waters and John Chittenden, also informed the council that anothe 17 acres might be needed to expand its present lagoon.

A final report on what is needed will not be ready for another six months, however, Chittenden told the council.

Also at the meeting, the council asked Waters if the city was required to furnish water and sewer lines to a new subdivision being built in the northern part of the city.

Waters suggested that is more of a legal problem than an engineering problem and that the city should check with its attorney.

He did advise, however, that the city adopt some building ordinanaces to cover such situations.

Mayor M. E. "Bud" Bressee agreed to look into possible "model" ordinances from the Missouri Municipal League for the council to consider.

In other business it was announced that applicants for any of five jobs--four workers and one supervisor--available through Dec. 31 of this year, apply through the Job Service Office in Dexter.

The workers will be paid through a

Dexter hospital plans $1.2 million expansion

DEXTER – Dexter Memorial Hospital will build additions totalling about 16,500 square feet at a cost of $1.2 million, Jack Norman, hospital administrator, announced Tuesday afternoon. Construction will begin in October.

The new additions will include an expanded intensive care unit, physical therapy unit, lab, emergency room facilities and lobby. If costs allow, a new patient wing is also planned.

A feasibility study to determine the need for new facilities and of what kind began in August, 1976 under the direction of Drake Partnership, a St. Louis-based architectural firm, and continued until April of this year.

Since that time, work has centered on architectural-conceptual drawings, with Brown Construction Co. of Dexter retained as construction manager, Norman said.

Final bids covering construction costs have not been completed, and details of the building will not be available until the contract is awarded.

However, plans now call for a new self-contained intensive care unit, to take the place of the present one, composed of two patient rooms modified for the purpose; a new emergency room to handle patients in a more efficient manner, to replace the present one which is limited in its capacity to receive ambulances and treat patients; a new lab, designed to handle the growing number of tests -- from 2,000 per month three years ago to 5,000 per month now; and a physical therapy room designed for a gymnasium type environment which can treat several patients at one time.

The increased lobby size is to handle the large number of visitors at the hospital, which now causes cramped conditions in the present lobby. There will also be a separate waiting room for those visiting intensive care patients.

Other planned additions include a new mechanics area and a covered walkway from the present annex building to the main hospital building.

A possible new patient wing is planned, if costs allow. If built, the construction will contain five semi-private and one private room. The total number of rooms at the hospital would remain at 50.

If the new wing is built, five of the semi-private rooms now at the hospital will be converted to private rooms.

If the costs are too high to build the new addition, present rooms will be remodeled to bring them up to modern-day standards. No increase in the number of beds is expected until 1982.

Some of the present facilities -- even though built just nine years ago -- are now out of date, Norman said.

He used as an example the design of one toilet to service two rooms, which was to save dollars when the hospital was built in 1968, but has created "nightmares" for patients.

Lions schedule circus

The Sikeston Lion's Club will sponsor a performance by the Hagan-Wallace and Sells Gray Circus at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Grounds, Sept. 26.

Tom Roberts, chairman of the circus committee, has announced that the proceeds from the circus tickets will be devoted to the Lion's sight conservation project. An advanced sale of the tickets is now under way at banks and savings and loans associations in Sikeston, at reduced prices, and will also be available from individual Lions members.

Performances are scheduled for 4 p.m. and 8 p.m., on Sept. 26.

For many years Hagan-Wallace and Sells-Gray Circus toured America as separate shows. Now they have been combined into one larger circus with the outstanding features of the two organizations plus many new attractions. Many arena stars from all parts of the world have been recruited for this year's national tour of the big show.

The performances are to feature circus in the traditional American style with all the performing elephants, dancing horses, trained wild animals, funny clowns, wire-walkers, jugglers, daring young men and women on the flying trapeze, lively music and pretty girls all performing in the three rings under the billowing canvas big-top.

2 arrested after accident

EAST PRAIRIE— Two East Prairie youths were arrested Tuesday night following an incident at Harris' East Side Mobil Station adjacent to the east city limits.

Sheriff Norris Grissom said Steve Norman, 17, is being held under $1,000 bond in Mississippi County jail at Charleston on charges of careless and reckless driving and driving while license revoked. A charge of destruction of private property is pending.

Eric Smith, about 20, was released on $50 bond, posted for permitting an unauthorized person to drive.

Grissom said Norman was driving Smith's pickup truck about 8:15 p.m. Tuesday and came into the service station driveway in a reckless manner, striking two gasoline pumps.

One pump was torn from its foundation and the other knocked over. Gas from the pumps ignited and tthe fire department was called to extinguish the blaze. Only minor damage occurred to the pumps.

2 injured in accidents

Two persons received minor injuries and one person received moderate injuries in two area traffic accidents Tuesday, the highway patrol said today.

Two Poplar Bluff women were injured in a two-car accident at 5:10 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 60, two miles east of Poplar Bluff.The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Alnita Nowells, 23, of Poplar Bluff was stopped on the pavement after being involved in a prior accident and was struck by another eastbound car driven by Tyrone Blackman, 20, of Brosley.

The driver of the Nowells car, received minor injuries and a passenger in the car, Kathy Taylor, 27, of Poplar Bluff, received moderate injuries.

Both were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

One person received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 4:25 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 25, three miles north of Advance.

The accident occurred when a windshield wiper knob came off in a car driven north by Eugene Douglas Rice, 71, of Jackson. Rice reached over to retrieve the knob and the car struck a bridge.

Former Sikestonian to be chancellor at UMKC

COLUMBIA - Dr. George A. Russell, a native Southeast Missourian, vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate college at the University of Illinois, has been named chancellor of the University of Missouri's Kansas City campus.

UM system president James C. Olson, making the announcement Aug. 22, said Dr. Russell will assume the chancellorship in early October.

"One impression I have of Kansas City," Dr. Russell said in accepting the appointment, "is the high level of community support the people have for the University, and the enthusiasm of the faculty and staff for the job that needs to be done for the people there."

The new UMKC chancellor is a native of Bertrand in Mississippi County and a 1938 graduate of Sikeston High School.

Dr. Russell, 56, served in the U. S. Navy from 1940 until retiring in 1960 with the rank of commander. He was graduated in 1947 from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a B.S. degree in electrical engineering. He has M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in physics from the University of Illinois in 1952 and 1958, respectively.

Since 1972 he has been one of four vice chancellors at UI's Urbana-Champaign campus. He joined the faculty there in 1962 as an associate professor of physics after teaching at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale for two years.

At UI he was associate director and then director of the materials research laboratory in the College of Engineering from 1963-68 and was associate head of the physics department for two years before becoming associate dean of the graduate college.

He is married to the former Ruth Ann Ashby of Charleston. They have four children, ages 15 to 28. A daughter, Mrs. Jim Burke, lives near Charleston. Dr. Russell's parents, George A. and Martha Russell are dead.

THE FREE LUNCH BUSINESS

President Carter in his populist-style campaign for the presidency, railed against the special interests in Washington. Presumably the President maintains his own list of good friends, wise consultants and special groups that he consults from time to time on legislation.

Indentifying special interests is a difficult political problem and is overlaid with name-calling from those across the party fences.

If the Chamber of Commerce lobbies Republicans, is the Chamber viewed as a special interest pleader by Democrats? You bet.

If the AFL-CIO does the same thing for Democrats, are the union leaders viewed as special interest pleaders by Republicans? You bet.

It would be handy if there were an easy way to sort out genuine special interests. Unfortunately, there is no clear path through this muddy, well-trampled field, only a few sign-posts.

One of those signposts is money.

Suppose you met a special interest walking down the street and it offered you lunch or dinner. "Well," you say, "no harm in that."

Suppose it added a weekend of trout fishing in Wyoming. 'Hmmmmmm."

Suppose it hinted at a little booze and sex. "Now wait just a moment. It's stepping over the line."

Then let's go back to lunch. Suppose it called and said it wanted to take you to a $25 lunch but can't make it today so it is sending over the cash instead. "Graft. Bribery. Corruption."

So even the money guidelines are not too clear.

The broader test is whether a piece of legislation focuses narrowly on rewarding a special class of citizens or whether all Americans seem to benefit from its passage. But this can be as complicated as the money problem. Lobbyists concentrate on this national interest argument and many times it veils a fairly narrow interest.

Let us say the B1 bomber calls for using flanges. The lobbyist for the Penultimate Flange Co. wants lots of B1s produced and argues that the bomber is in the national interest, which it may be. But most of all it is good for Penultimate so he is hooking his flange to a star.

Some of our more base politicians have veiled pleas for their personal interests by raising the "national interest." President Nixon, for example, in refusing to turn over White House tapes in the Watergate affair, argued that sacred national interests - the separation of powers, executive privilege, the need for privacy in White House conversations - were more important than evidence needed in a criminal case against his White House aides. The Supreme Court disagreed.

It is difficult to make our way across these fields. We are left hoping our political leaders are skillful enough to realize where broad national concerns lie. And it is up to us to yell at them and vote them out of office when they fail.

Meanwhile, the politicians should remember the old saying, "There is no such thing as a free lunch."

SEXUAL EQUALITY IN UNIFORM

It seems obvious to us that flying an airplane is one line of work in which women - given half a chance - should be able to excel.

Women in the average are smaller than men and maneuver better in tight quarters. They often have more manual dexterity than men. And if life expectancy tables are any idication, they do well under stresses and strains.

Yet the Air Force is only now beginning to recognize that fact. The first group of 10 female pilots will be graduated from flying school Sept. 2 at Williams Air Force Base in Arizona. A second group will go into training this fall.

The main hangup, of course, has been the legal restriction against women in combat - a restriction, by the way, that seems pretty archaic in this day and age.

The Air Force plans to get around the no-combat rule by assigning its female pilots to cargo planes, aerial tankers, weather reconnaissance, medical evacuation and other non-combat missions.

As more women are trained, however, the law should be changed so women are able to fly fighter planes, bombers and other combat aircraft along with men.

Without a draft to fall back on, all the services are reexamining their attitudes toward women. The Army, for example, is sending female soldiers on field maneuvers in West Germany next month. Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor wants to send women to sea.

A long way from the age of sheltered femininity, perhaps, but still a long way to go before women are given the military opportunities they should have.

DID ASSASSINS ACT ALONE?

Perhaps this explains why the JFK case is coming back to life.

According to a recent Gallup Poll, 80 per cent of Americans do not belive the Warren Commission finding that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The proportion of people who feel that others were involved in the killing has risen significantly. Only 50 per cent expressed that view in a similar poll in January, 1967.

The latest poll, published December 26, also found that 69 per cent of those queried believe that James Early Ray was not the only person involved in the 1968 killing of the civil rights leader, the Rev. Martin Luther King, jr.

Ray pleaded guilty of the killing and is serving a 99-year sentence. Now he claims that he was "framed." But the Supreme Court has refused to hear his appeal for a chance to change his plea to not guilty.

Also, the deeper investigators for the House committee dig into buried documents, the more mysteries they find.

Here are some of questions raised by long-secret records:

--Was Oswald paid $6,500 in the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City to plot the assassination of President Kennedy, as one witness claimed?

– Why was that witness not questioned more thoroughly? And why were other key witnesses never questioned about Oswald's mysterious visits to Cuban and Soviet officials in Mexico City two months before Kennedy was shot?

– Why was Thomas Mann, then ambassador to Mexico offered by the State Department to drop the invitations of those visits that were being made in Mexico City?

– With Oswald's record -- as a defector to Russia who returned to the U.S. with a Russian wife -- why was he not under close surveillance when Kennedy made his fatal visit to Dallas?

– Why did the Warren Commission apparently ignore evidence that its own investigators said "points toward a possible conclusion of foreign involvement?"

Even if the investigations merely confirm the original findings, they would be worthwhile in settling doubts.

HOW MANY VICTIMS IN VIETNAM PRISON CAMPS?

On June 16 and 21 a subcommittee of the House of Representatives heard testimony on the question of human rights (and wrongs) in Vietnam since the Communist conquest of South Vietnam in April 1975.

At the June 16 hearing, Father Andre Gelinas, a French-Canadian Jesuit priest whose 19 years of residence in Vietnam included 15 months under Communist rule in Saigon, told the committee that the people of Vietnam are "in a terrible state because of the oppressive rule of the government." He said that something very tragic was happening there and that what was needed was a full-scale investigation and exposure.

Fr. Gelinas had previously published a detailed account of conditions in South Vietnam under Communist rule in L'Express of Paris, and later in The New York Review of Books which had considerable impact in intellectual circles in this country, since it sharply contradicted rosier views.

Fr. Gelinas told the committee how the state of human rights had fared since the Communists took control of Saigon. He said the first thing they did was to completely suppress freedom of speech, press and imformation. He said that before the Communist takeover there were 27 daily newspapers in Saigon, about 200 scholarly, literary and technical journals, numerous other magazines, three television channels, and about 24 radio stations.

The Communists immediately closed all of these media of communication. Not only that, but back issues of papers, magazines, records and cassettes were confiscated and burned in huge bonfires in the streets.

He said the only source of information was one television channel owned and operated by the government, devoted exclusively to government propaganda, two radio stations and three daily newspapers. He said that all were filled with the same progaganda dictated by the party-controlled news agency.

Fr. Gelinas said that people were imprisoned without trial, without a hearing, and, indeed, without even being accused of a crime. He said that 300,000 men had been imprisoned for over two years with no charges having been filed against them. These are mainly labeled "re-education camps," which are really concentration camps.

Fr. Gelinas said that no one knew precisely how many prisoners there were, since the Communists were not very communicative on this score. He based his estimate of 300,000 on these observations:

1. All of the regular prisons were crowded and two new ones had been built in Saigon since the Communists took over.

2. Virtually all of the former BOQs (bachelor officers quarters) and BEQs (enlisted quarters) of the American military forces were now being used as prisons, with as many as 26 Vietnamese prisoners occupying a bedroom formerly used for one American soldier.

3. He had received word of some 60 to 90 newly established work camps from his sources around the country, although the location of most of these camps is secret. These camps reportedly had a minimum population of 3,500 prisoners each, giving a range of from 210,000 to 315,000 prisoners in the camps.

4. In saigon, 60 to 85 per cent of the educated men were sent off to the camps. Since Vietnam had a relatively high proportion of educated people, Gelinas thought that the number imprisoned by the Communists could hardly be less than 300,000.

5. Finally, Fr. Gelinas pointed out that General Tran Van Tra, who had command of Saigon for the first nine months of Communist rule , said when he was replaced in January 1976 that hundreds of thousands of men were under reeducation. Fr. Gelinas said that the general may have leaked this figure because he was a southerner.

Recently, Fr. Gelinas said, the authorities in Vietnam had been putting out a figure of 30,000 to 40,000 for the number of prisoners in the camps. He felt that this was far off the mark, for the reasons stated above.

One reason we are printing this latest report on the real situation in Vietnam is that the media coverage of the hearing at which Fr. Gelinas testified was zero, according to Accuracy In Media Inc. (AIM). Why this silence? That is what we would very much like to know.

Although, in the optimistic 1960s, commentators yielded several times to the temptation of proclaiming the demise of the business cycle, the 1970s have made it plain that the business cycle is still alive and well. Indeed, cyclical economic movements have occurred from time to time during our entire 200-year history as a nation, and it seems safest to assume that they will continue in the future.

Accordingly, we should not ask whether, but when, the present period of business expansion will end in a recession. In addition, since recessions have varied greatly in severity and duration, we should ask how long the next recession will last and how severe it will be.

Length of Current Expansion

First, there are grounds for believing that the present period of rising business still has several years to go. Second, present circumstances suggest that the next recession, when it comes, will be relatively brief and mild.

Periods of business expansion (from the trough of the last recession to the peak preceding the next one) have in the past averaged three years in length. If that average were to prevail this time, the current economic expansion, which began more than two years ago, should terminate in another recession some time in 1978.

But the expansion which began in early 1975 has been a typical in several respects which lead one to believe that it can last longer than the average of the past. First, the rate of recovery has been unusually slow this time. Industrial production, which typically takes about one year to return to its pre-recession peak, took two years this time. The slow pace of the recovery suggests that it can last longer than similar periods in the past which got off to a more rapid start.

Second, the ratio of business inventories to sales, which typically begins rising about a year before a general business downturn, is still trending downward, We appear to be in no imminent danger of a period when business finds itself overstocked and holds off on production until its inventories are worked off.

Finally, there are no signs of a capital goods boom, which has usually been the last stage of a period of business expansion. It may seem strange that this is viewed as an optimistic sign since much concern has been expressed about the failure of capital goods spending to show a strong upward trend during this recovery.

The fact is, however, that business spending for plant and equipment is a lagging indicator. It takes off in a period of recovery well after other sectors of the economy, and it usually is most ebullient just at the time when the rest of the economy has already turned downward.

The fact that capital spending has not been ebullient so far suggests that this recovery is still a youthful one with a long life ahead of it.

Fishy Alliances: Militant Environmentalists Plan Costly strategy of Fear, Nuclear Plant Road Blockades, Massive Invasions

NEW YORK— It just isn't possible to wander around much of our land without becoming enmeshed in a network of professionally passionate environmentalists who are determined to prevent the building of 160 nuclear power plants, and to stall those already under construction and actually to decommission huge atomic installations now providing desperately needed electricity.

This ecological network is spawned or inspired by the New England Clamshell Alliance, which already has an outpost on the West Coast in the California Abalone Alliance and in New Jersey in the Barnacle Alliance and in Oregon in the Trojan Decommissin Alliance and back in its pilgrim's progress to New England's Coalition on Nuclear Pollution and down again to the New Jersey Congress Against Nuclear Power. There are many others in this strange network.

With their invasions of construction sites, plant gates, camp-ins and outs, demonstrations and court intervenings it's estimated they have cost the public utilities and the public law and order authorities of this land hundreds of millions of dollars in the past few years.

Sooner or later it all goes into the householder's electric bill and national cost of production and living.

These alliances are led by men and women who run each umbrella operation like joint chiefs of staff. For example, on May 21, and again on June 25, a small group of environmentalists met in New Brunswick, N.J. For supposedly non-violent, gentle people, they listened to some rough strategy -- not the least of which was a proposal to blockade roads over which run trucks carrying nuclear waste material.

Spreading "fear" was one of the most viable weapons. It was all carefully outlined as the means for building "a new society."

The 40 or 50 activists present at this opening planning session for the launching of the Coalition for Responsible Power Policies were told that the following tactics would most effectively cause heavy expenditures by the state and its public utilities.

These are the "direct action" proposals.

— Picket all banks dealing with the utility companies in New Jersey.

— Orchestrate demonstrations and confrontations at all utility plants including locations of operation of nuclear power stations and the "site locations of future installations."

— Picket all suppliers of parts and equipment for nuclear power plants. Picket the Public Service Electric and Gas Co., Jersey Central Power and Light Co., and the Atlantic City Electric Co. Any interruptions of operation at these installations would black out whole communities.

— Block routes used by trucks transporting waste materials from existing nuclear power stations.

— Orchestrate demonstrations at nuclear waste disposal facilities.

— Post a call for nuclear resistance at all nuclear power stations.

— Employ fear tactics in order to arouse favorable public opinion and support.

— Organize and implement a maximum effort public demonstration in Atlantic City to protest plans for the construction of a floating nuclear power facility off the coast.

These maneuvers are characteristic of the other self-created anti-nuclear centers, institutes, councils, coalitions and now piscatorial alliances allegedly specifically dedicated to live fish, fowl, fresh air and forests.

Furthermore, one of the briefing officers at the May 21 Jersey strategy conference said all tactics must be geared to making things as financially burdensome as possible for the establishment.

"If it cost New Hampshire only $50,000 a day we are going to make sure that it is going to cost the utilities in New Jersey more than $100,000 a day," said another speaker according to one participant.

This was a reference to the May Day invasion of the New Hampshire Public Service Co. Seabrook construction site where a $2 billion atomic power plant has been stalled by environmentalists' legal action. At least 1,414 jubilant Clamshell gladiators were arrested.

But this is unshelled peanuts compared to what the delay in Seabrook construction cost the utility as it fought the Clamshell coalition for the right to build. The tab ran to $15 million a month for a year -- at least -- while the fight went on in court and at federal nuclear review boards for permission to continue construction. Thousands of jobs were lost for the duration.

Then on July 26, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's Atomic Safety Licensing and Appeal Board said it's all safe, go ahead and build an atomic power plant.

But in less than a fortnight the friend of the Clamshells known as the New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution sped to the defense of Atlantic Ocean fish by rushing to the First Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston seeking the issuance of a writ for the permanent halt of all construction at Seabrook.

In one fashion or another Seabrook is the profile of environmentalist action at 160 nuclear power plants on order, on drawing boards or under construction.

Split wood, not atoms, cry the environmentalists. That sure will get up a head of steam when winter comes and power is scarce and plants shut down and jobless lines are heavy at the unemployment offices.

Those alliances should come out of their shells into the world of realism. It's tough enough to earn one's daily bread.

U.S. Rolled Out Red Carpet For Visiting Bulgarian Official

By Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — For 25 years, the State Dept. has been arbitrarily blocking selected Communists from entering the United States by invoking a law from the Red Scare days of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

The McCarran Act, passed in 1952, established nearly 30 categories of people who could not visit the United States unless they were recommended for visa waivers by the State Dept. Among the undesirables were prostitutes, polygamists, paupers and advocates of the "international doctrines of world communism."

Now, thanks to a recent bill passed by Congress, the McCarran Act will soon be less restrictive. Over the years, nevertheless, the law has often been selectively applied. Out of some 19,000 waiver applications last year, for example, only about a thousand were denied.

During the Richard Nixon-Henry Kissinger era, Communist leaders from Western Europe were considered anathema, because official visits to the United States would give them credibility at home. In 1975, for instance, a prominent Italian Communist, Sergio Segre, was invited to speak at the New York Council on Foreign Relations. The waiver was denied and the conference had to be cancelled.

Communists who were critical of U.S. allies were also considered verboten by the Nixon administration. One such case involved a prominent British citizen, Carmel Budiardjo, who wanted to lecture in the United States on human rights violations in Indonesia. Under pressure from the Indonesian government, the State Dept. temporarily withheld her visa on the grounds that she had previously lied about being a Communist from 1946 to 1948.

In contrast, Communists who have the State Dept. seal of approval are speedily granted visa waivers and are ushered in on a red carpet.

Take Vulkan Shopov, chief of agriculture for the Bulgarian Communist party. As an Eastern European Communist, in an era of detente, he is ardently courted by U.S. diplomats.

Shopov came to the United States in June at the invitation of the State Dept. The U.S. taxpayers footed the bill for his month-long visit, including travel expenses to and from Bulgaria.

In a May 9 cable to the State Dept., the U.S. ambassador in Sofia, Martin Herz, was ecstatic about Shopov's pending tour. "Embassy strongly believes (Shopov) must be accorded VIP status as far as (expenses) and general treatment is concerned," exclaimed Herz.

The Communist leader, cabled the ambassador, should be taken to a "Southeastern agricultural region, including visit to Atlanta or other Southern city"; the Great Plains wheat, corn and soybean region; and the Western states.

In general, wrote Herz, Shopov "would like to see most advanced forms of American agricultural technology. He has said he expects to work hard during the visit."

Despite the distinguished Bulgarian's announced intention to keep his nose to the grindstone, Herz suggested some lavish entertainment for the visitor:

"He would appreciate chance to see modern American dance (though we suspect anything too avant garde would not go down well; believe American Ballet Theater, Alvin Ailey or Eliot Feld would be just about right), Broadway show (suggest, if possible, 'A Chorus Line' or 'Bubbling Brown Sugar'). Opera, or orchestral concerts. Shopov not interested in jazz or rock."

The ambassador added a "special note." In his talks with Shopov, wrote Herz, the Bulgarian made a "special point of saying he does not want to bump into correspondents from (Radio Free Europe) while in U.S., and does not wish to give interview to (Voice of America) ... He asked that interpreter not be 'political immigrant' ..."

Shopov had been assured, the ambassador stated, "that interpreter would be selected in such fashion as to assure there would be absolutely no political embarrassment."

When he finally arrived in the United States, Shopov was taken to the Smithsonian, the Kennedy Center, colonial Williamsburg, Va., and to other spots around the country.

But the scholarly Shopov, a State Dept. official told us, "squeezed in" the cultural sights only when he had spare time. The Bulgarian decided to forego Disneyland, which "disappointed" State Dept. officials.

Footnote: While Communists need waivers to visit the United States, leaders of repressive right-wing regimes such as Chile, South Korea and Argentina, can come and go as they wish.

Watch on Waste: The government gives out awards for outstanding performances by employees, which translate into higher salaries and rapid promotions. At the Patent and Trademark Office, however, a startling 75 per cent of its 2,955 workers received such awards in 1976. The rest of the Commerce Dept. gave awards to a mere 39 per cent of its workers. "It's not a giveaway," a spokesman insisted, "it really is hard-earned."

Groups seek quick action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chemical workers union and an environmental group are urging the government to move quickly against a pest-control substance suspected of causing sterility in men and cancer in animals. But a government spokesman says the Occupational Safety and Health Administration was considering an emergency standard for the pesticide, DBCP, before the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union filed a petition Tuesday asking for controls.

Park comes out of hiding

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Tongsun Park, the key figure in the South Korean influence-buying scandal in Washington, came out of hiding today and said he would not let American authorities question him. He told a news conference there is no need or any obligation for him to speak to American investigators probing allegations that Park was the South Korean government's chief payoff man in Washington.

Vance meets with Teng, Hua

PEKING (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance gets down to the chief business of his trip to China, closer relations between the U.S. and Chinese governments, at a meeting today with Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping. Vance met today for the third time with Foreign Minister Huang Hua. After the 2½-hour session, A State Department spokesman said the Chinese "made some points about normalization" of relations between Washington and Peking. He refused to elaborate.

Voyager may have stowaway

PASADENA, Calif.(AP) — Scientists believe the Voyager 2 space craft's erratic behavior after its launch last weekend may have been caused by a jettisoned rocket that bumped into it.

The 350-pound expended rocket, which should have fallen clear, may be tagging along with the unmanned space probe bound for Jupiter, Saturn and beyond, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory here said Tuesday.

For that reason, a maneuver planned for later this week to correct Voyager's course may be delayed while light-sensing instruments aboard the probe search for signs of the jettisoned rocket, called a propulsion module.

"No attempt will be made to fire maneuvering thrusters while there is a rocket close to the spacecraft," said project manager John Casani at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where the sister ship Voyager 1 is to blast off Sept. 3.

The twin space probes are intended to take photographs and make scientific observations of Jupiter and some of its moons in 1979, of Saturn and some of its moons in 1980 and 1981, and perhaps Uranus.

Rock star sued for $15 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock star Rod Stewart has been sued for $15 million by Swedish actress Britt Eklund, with whom he lived for 2½ years.

The couple split up 10 days ago when Stewart moved out of the home they shared in the exclusive Holmby Hills section of Los Angeles.

Miss Eklund's complaint states that the couple began living together two days after they met in March 1975, and that a few weeks later they publicly announced their "love relationship" and intent to deemphasize her career to further his.

The actress claims that she helped to promote his record albums, applied his makeup at rock concerts and counseled and supported him in his career.

Her help contributed to $10 million of Stewart's earnings and another pending $20 million recording contract, the complaint states.

Miss Eklund asks the court to order Stewart to continue paying the mortgage on her home and to pay her $5,000 a month support until the suit is settled.

Licensing committee named

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two psychologists, two university teachers and a researcher were named today to the new state Committee of Psychologists to administer the new state law licensing psychologists practicing in Missouri.

Named to the five-member board were Norman J. Matulef, a practicing psychologist in St. Louis; Franklin C. Boraks, a practicing psychologist in Kansas City; Prentice Gautt, a faculty member at the University of Missouri+Columbia; A. Samuel Oliveri, a faculty member at Harris+Stowe College in St. Louis, and Kathryn Cramer, a researcher at St. Louis University.

The new committee will begin work Sept. 28, making Missouri the last state to enact state regulation of psychologists. In signing the new law earlier this year, Gov. Joseph Teasdale said it would correct many of the abuses by unqualified persons acting as psychologists in Msssouri.

Beginning in September 1978, all persons seeking to practice psychology in Missouri will have to meet certain minimum standards and be licensed by the state.

Wheat cutback considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is considering reducing U.S. wheat production by 25 per cent in order to provide farmers with some relief from depressed prices in a year of record crops.

Already, a surplus of 1.1 billion bushels of wheat in the wake of bumper crops worldwide has depressed farmers' prices to the levels of the early 1970s. With another huge crop comingn in this year, prices aren't expected to rise.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said he recommended the cutback to President Carter during a White House meeting Tuesday.

Bergland said a decision on whether to recommend reductions in feedgrain acreage would be deferred until midSeptember to assure that unexpected bad weather does not undercut present predictions of a near-record crop.

Access to Nixon boxes sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the strenuous objections of Richard Nixon, the federal government is seeking to rummage through boxes he left behind to see if they contain clues to the whereabouts of valuable gifts from foreign dignitaries.

At stake in the federal court hearing is more than just a listing of the gifts, some of which may be "missing" through poor record-keeping.

The hearing, scheduled for today, is the government's first attempt to search the materials in its possession since the Supreme Court awarded custody to Uncle Sam — specifying that strict regulations must govern access. It also is Nixon's first chance to challenge those rules.

While the fight over custody of Nixon's papers, tapes and other materials was going through the courts, the boxes remained untouched under court order. Now that the case is settled regulations for government access have gone into effect and rules for public access are being considered by Congress.

Last month, State Department Chief of Protocol Evan S. Dobelle wrote the General Services Administration that "questions have arisen" about the location of foreign gifts to Nixon and his family. Publicly, at least, Dobelle didn't spell out the questions or who asked them.

Cooking Up With Cherie

By Cherie Blanton

This is really yummy.

4-Day Cake

This is to be made and chilled in icebox for four days before you even serve it. Won't work if you try to eat it any sooner.

Crush one pound of vanilla wafers. Place half in bottom of large flat buttered casserole.

Cream ½ pound of real butter, softened with 3 cups powdered sugar. When nice and creamy add 6 egg yolks and stir.

Add one cup chopped pecans.

Fold in 6 egg whites, beaten stiff.

Grease a square pyrex.

Chop up some onion, celery and green pepper finely. Mix with cut up cooked shrimp and crabmeat. Put in pyrex and cover with sauce. Sprinkle some Parmesan and pagrika over top. Spinach Parmesan

Cook three pounds frozen spinach. Chop and drain well.

Saute 6 TBS minced onion in 5 TBS butter.

Add 6 TBS Parmesan cheese, 6 TBS heavy cream and ¼ cup cracker crumbs.

4 TBS butter
8 TBS brown sugar

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — When making ladies slacks I press the creases in before sewing them together. I find this makes it easier to get, or make, a nice straight crease. I fold each piece in the center — the front crease is straight up and the back is slanted toward the top of the slacks. I do hope this proves as easy for others as it has been for me. — MRS. M.O.

DEAR POLLY — My teenager is a great little cook but after a while I discovered we had accumulated a drawer full of rubber spatulas with broken handles. I remedied this situation by buying five-eighths inch wooden dowel sticks at the hardware store. Then I shaved the end that is inserted in the rubber top for a good fit and sanded the other end to make a round handle. These are even better and stronger than new. One dowel makes three handles. — MARY C.

DEAR POLLY — To make an excellent clothes brush for removing hair, dust, lint or dandruff wrap a strip of adhesive backed plastic tape around your fingers with the sticky side out. — M.K.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Dear Ann Landers

Nouse, bubble bath won't help

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the husband who complained because his wife was not interested in sex. You told him to sharpen up his technique, take her to a motel -- away from the kids -- buy her a new nightie and some bubble bath. Well, dear, there's a lot more to it than that.

There is nothing wrong with my husband's technique, but I have very little interest in sex. Why? Because Larry is a "joiner." He is involved in almost every organization in the community. He has meetings every night and sleeps all weekend so he can start going to meetings again on Monday.

Larry is very handy at fixing things but there are at least two dozen things that need to be done around here which he can't do because he is too busy. I take out the garbage, pay the bills, do all the repairs I know how, write to his parents, mow the lawn, etc. He'd be completely helpless if I died suddenly.

The children hardly know him. I do all the disciplining, help them with their homework and put them to bed.

Larry is a good man and would be terribly hurt if he knew I was writing this letter. I've tried to talk to him but he cannot see my point of view and I know he will never change.

When he turns to me at night and tries to get romantic, I don't feel loved. I feel used. I don't refuse him but I don't enjoy him. I'm not asking for advice. It's hopeless. Sign me -- Bubble Bath Won't Help

Dear Friend: True, bubble bath won't -- but counseling might. You need to understand why Larry finds more satisfaction out of the house than in. If he could skip a meeting and go with you to a therapist or clergyman it would be a giant step in the right direction.

Your defeatist attitude is another clue. You sound like a downer. The clubwork is an upper. People tend to gravitate toward places that give them a lift. So get going, honey. You need outside help.

Dear Ann Landers: In two months I will be marrying a lovely girl. I need a quick answer from someone who knows more about weddings and good taste than I do.

It's going to be a large wedding and I've offered to help defray part of the expenses. My future in-laws say they can handle it. (She is their only daughter.)

The thing that bothes me most is they plan to have artificial flowers, not only on the altar but even the corsages and boutonnieres. When my mother is handed a corsage of wax flowers I don't want to be anywhere around. She will just die.

It isn't as if the wedding is planned for the dead of winter when flowers are expensive. There will be loads of fresh flowers around at reasonable prices in August. Please, Ann, comment. -- Bachelor Button

Dear Button: I'm a great one to tell people to MYOB but not this time. Your wedding is your business even though you aren't paying for it.

Insist on buying the flowers as your "love contribution" to the happiest day of your life. Then make a date with a florist. Artificial corsages at a wedding would be the pits!

UNLV might get probation

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A Las Vegas newspaper reported today that the NCAA will soon announce that the basketball program at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas will be placed on two years probation, but the school's top official says he's not aware of such sanctions—yet.

The Las Vegas Sun, quoting unnamed sources, said the UNLV basketball program will be placed on two years probation, probably within a week.

According to the Sun, the sanctions are:

—Prohibition against post season tourney play.

—A recruiting limit of three players per year.

—Five persons may be required to permanently disassociate themselves from the program.

—And coach Jerry Tarkanian's job may be on the line, at least during the probationary period.

UNLV President Dr. Donald Baepler, contacted at his home early this morning, said he could not confirm, nor deny the Sun's report.

However, the Sun quoted Athletic Director Bill Ireland as saying probation was a sure thing.

"We're going on probation. We know that," Ireland told the Sun. "There were some violations of the NCAA code some time ago. We have admitted that."

But Baepler was somewhat more conservative, saying the NCAA rules do not allow him to comment on a pending case.

"I have no official word from the NCAA," said Baepler. "I honestly don't know. We have had no official notification. Any announcement will come from the NCAA."

Baepler pointed out that the rumor mill involving UNLV has been turning out stories for the past five years, and said the fact that UNLV was fighting probation has been a well-known fact for several months.

Baepler admitted that he was in Knoxville, Tenn., on Monday, but hedged as to what his mission was. NCAA officials are meeting this week in Tennessee.

It was generally thought by NCAA observers that Baepler and other officials would travel to Tennessee to appeal a ruling handed down last May—probation.

While probation seems to be imminent, the terms of the sanctions are yet speculation.

One source very close to Baepler said he thinks the terms will include a one-year period, adding that he does not think Tarkanian's job is in jeopardy.

The alleged violations against the universty date back to the early 1970s and the tenure of former basketball coach John Bayer. They include: students taking examinations for players, overpayments to players, an illegal basketball game against the University of New Mexico prior to the 1972 season and the illegal transportation of a player on a free junket airplane.

According to the Sun, Bayer, now head of the university's physical education department, is one of those who must disassociate himself from the program.

Many local fans believe the NCAA has had it out for Tarkanian.

"Tark the Shark," the winningest active major college basketball coach, came here from Long Beach State in 1973. Several weeks after he left Long Beach, the school's basketball and football programs were placed on probation by the NCAA, and local fans have been under the impression that the NCAA has been after Tarkanian ever since.

Under Tarkanian, UNLV has sky-rocketed to national prominence in basketball.

Last year, the Runnin' Rebels compiled a 31-3 record and took third place in the NCAA tournament in Atlanta. UNLV was ranked fourth in the final AP poll of the year, and is expected to be a power to contend with again this year despite a tough schedule including road dates at Marquette, Kentucky, Louisville and Maryland.

Although today's report on the continuing saga of the UNLV probe did not come as much of a surprise, it was rather untimely.

Royals continue to enjoy home field; beat Orioles

KANSAS CITY (AP) — You can talk about Fenway Park. You can say what you want about Yankee Stadium.

But Royals Stadium in Kansas City has become the most fierce lions' den of late for American League teams.

"It's a tough ball park to get used to," admitted Earl Weaver after the Royals knocked off his Baltimore Orioles, 5-2, Tuesday night.

It was the seventh straight victory for the surging Royals, who continue to cling to a one-game lead in the congested American League West.

Baltimore, losing its third in a row, is two games back of the Yankees in the AL East.

Kansas City is 43-20 since June 17 — including 18 victories in its last 20 games in Royals Stadium and series sweeps of Minnesota, New York, Chicago, Boston and Baltimore.

"You have to play deeper here. They run from home plate and can get that extra base," said Weaver.

"And they (Royals) can hit, they use the artificial turf. You don't remember everything from year to year, either. It's just a tough ballpark for us to play in."

The Royals used muscle against the Orioles Tuesday night, as John Mayberry and George Brett both homered to right field in the fourth to give starter Jim Colborn the impetus for his 14th victory against 12 losses.

The blasts, Mayberry's 20th of the season and Brett's 16th, gave Kansas City a 4-2 lead.

But Brett would not have been at the plate to hit his two-out, three-run shot off starter Mike Flanagan, 9-10, if Ken Singleton had not dropped Darrell Porter's fly to right.

"We're leading the league in fielding," shrugged Weaver. "We gotta make a mistake sometime."

The Royals added a run in the seventh when Singleton had trouble with Hal McRae's triple into the right field corner, and Amos Otis smacked a sacrifice fly.

"They hit 'em in the corners both games and we had trouble with every goldarn one of 'em," said Weaver.

Colborn scattered six hits but needed last-inning relief help from Larry Gura in posting only his third career victory over the Orioles. He has lost 13 games to Baltimore.

Forsch beats Dodgers; Brock steals number 889

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Preston Gomez, a Los Angeles Dodgers coach, labeled Bob Forsch's best pitch an inside fast ball. Forsch did not disagree.

Forsch, a St. Louis right-hander, walked Reggie Smith with the delivery in the eighth inning and in so doing emerged with a victory that lifted him to his major league high Tuesday night.

"That Forsch — what a difference in this year and what I saw last year," said Gomez, a veteran of four National League clubs as coach and manager who spent 1976 with the Cards while Forsch was 8-11.

"He wasn't going to give him anything good to hit," said Gomez of Forsch's improvement in a 2-1 St. Louis triumph. "He wasn't going to let him (Smith) beat him."

The 6-foot-4 Forsch, who pegged a three-hitter, raised his record to a 16-5 level by weathering anxious moments to outduel the Dodgers' Don Sutton, 11-8.

Except for Vic Davalillo's double, which produced a Los Angeles run in the second, Forsch coasted through seven innings.

But in the eighth, after pinch-hitter Ed Goodson gained life on first baseman Keith Hernandez' error, a ground ball and subsequent wild pitch advanced pinch-runner Davey Lopes to third.

Two were out when Smith, a .305 switch-hitter, was walked by Forsch on a 3-2 count. The off-target delivery paid off when Ron Cey ended the inning by lifting a pop fly.

"I'd been pitching him away. I just thought, 'I'll try to come in on him,'" Forsch confirmed his caution against Smith. "I knew I had an open base and I didn't want to give him anything too good. He'd already taken me out of the yard with a home run once last year.

Forsch, following a 98-pitch performance, rated his victory "the best game that I've thrown all year, especially against that kind of club," and noted his pitches were "just going to spots where they were supposed to."

An eight-strikeout, two-walk performance netted Forsch his eighth victory in his last nine decisions, partially because of a Los Angeles fielding lapse that let in a first-inning run.

Lou Brock singled for his first of two hits and was safe at second when second baseman Teddy Martinez missed the bag while attempting a double play.

Ted Simmons then singled Brock home and Brock's second hit in as many innings scored Ken Reitz after the latter was nicked by a Sutton pitch and advanced on Forsch's sacrifice in the second.

Brock's hit, the 2,800th of his career, was followed by his 889th lifetime stolen base on an 0-1 count against Sutton, who threw numerous times to the bag.

"He (Sutton) was going through a lot of tricks," said Brock after a theft that left him only three behind the career major league record of 892 set by Ty Cobb. "It's good to win."

IXL, Bank, Joliff win

CANALOU — Tom Hobgood singled with two out in the bottom of the ninth to drive in the winning run and give IXL Manufacturing of Bernie a 10-9 win over Brosely Tuesday night, highlighting a big night of winner's bracket play in the Little River Valley Slow Pitch Classic at Canalou.

In other games, the Bank of Sikeston nipped Oran 6-5 and Jolliff Flight School dumped the Devils 10-2.

Hobgood's hit capped a four-run rally in the second extra inning that overcame a three-run top of the ninth by Brosely. The scored had been tied at 6-6 since the sixth, when Brosely knotted the score with a pair of runs.

Ed Shankle drove in David Bailey with the winning run in the bottom of the sixth to lift Bank of Sikeston to their victory over Oran.

Jolliff Flight School scored four in the second, two in the third and four more in the fourth as they clubbed the Devils. Hart enjoyed a 4-for-4 evening as Jolliff moved into Friday night's winner's bracket semifinals against IXL Manufacturing.

In tonight's action, Sunset Community goes against Oran in the first of three loser's bracket contests at 6:30. The Devils meet Brosely at 8:00 and Canalou takes on Haywood City at 9:30.

Gilliam may not make it

By The Associated Press

New Orleans Coach Hank Stram says there's a strong chance that quarterback Joe Gilliam won't make it back with the Saints.

Gilliam was passing during a practice session Tuesday, but Stram said he ranks Gilliam dead last in the four-man race for the quarterback job.

That means the former Pittsburgh Steelers star is apt to be cut or traded by the National Football League team.

Stram says he still has faith in the quarterback, but that there isn't much time left for him to make it into form. The player hasn't made more than three practices in a row since the preseason started due to headaches and nausea resulting from his withdrawal from heroin.

Meanwhile, Garo Yepremian is back, but it looks as though Roger Staubach's comeback may be delayed.

Yepremian, the Miami Dolphins' placekicker who has been sidelined with a hamstring pull since Saturday, practiced Tuesday and kicked well, according to Coach Don Shula. Bob Griese returns to his more familiar role as quarterback and Yepremian to his regular kicking job in the Dolphins' NFL exhibition against Minnesota Friday night.

But in Dallas, quarterback Roger Staubach's hamstring wasn't healing well. Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said there was no better than a 50 per cent chance he would play in Saturday's game against Baltimore.

"It will be difficult to keep him out of there. He always tries to hide his injuries," said Landry.

Elsewhere in the league, the Baltimore Colts said they'd retire the venerable No. 19 jersey of Johnny Unitas in an Oct. 9 ceremony.

The Colts also announced they'd signed five-year veteran cornerback Nelson Muncey to a series of one-year contracts. Muncey missed the team's last six games last year with a knee injury.

The Cincinnati Bengals moved premier receiver Isaac Curtis from strong-side flanker to weak-side split end to give him more pass-catching opportunities. Coach Bill Johnson says the move could help the Bengals overcome double coverage by opponents that held Curtis to a low of six touchdown receptions last season.

The Los Angeles Rams welcomed center Rich Saul back from retirement by releasing rookie Carson Long to make room for him on their roster. Saul had announced his retirement earlier this month but changed his mind on Monday. Long set an NCAA record at the University of Pittsburgh for field goal accuracy. He was an 11th-round draft choice.

The Kansas City Chiefs cut free agents Jackie Williams, a defensive back, and wide receiver Jerrald Taylor to reduce their roster to 58.

Harold Hart, the Washington Redskins' acquisition from the New England Patriots, took to the sidelines with a slight muscle pull.

Defense must improve if DHS Bearcats are to win more in '77

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

DEXTER -- Rebuilding a porous defense that gave up almost 39 points per game in 1976 is the top priority for Tom Thrower and his Dexter Bearcat coaching staff this season as they prepare for their school's second campaign as a member of the Northern Division.

Our defense will be a lot better," promised Thrower, who inherited a down program when he returned to DHS to coach last year after a short leave from this area. Last year's Bearcats won only two ballgames and picked up only a single Northern Division triumph, a 42-38 scoring contest against Kennett.

It would be hard for Dexter's defense to be worse than it was last season. Big, bruising backs, which were plentiful in the North last year, stormed through the Bearcat alignment almost at will. The question wasn't whether the Cats could keep the opposition from scoring, but rather how long they could delay the inevitable. A Dexter paper published an offensive and defensive player of the week after each game, but Thrower often declined to name one of the latter.

"Our kids just weren't strong enough last year," pointed out Thrower. Ball-carriers seemed to bounce off Dexter tacklers that year. But it won't be the case in '77, accofding to Thrower.

"People won't run right through us this year," emphasized the DHS mentor, warning opposing coaches they'll heed more than just a good back or two to move the ball consistently against his club.

An off-season weight program and experience are the primary reasons why Thrower is optimistic about improvement of Dexter's defense. Eight of last year's starters are back on "D" and all of the Bearcats have been working out with the barbells to improve their size and strength.

Anchoring the defensive line will be nose man Dan Malloy and tackles Terry Smith and Terry Griffey. Smith and Griffey, who have benefited immensely from the weight training, weigh in at over 200 this year, with Griffey tipping the scales at a solid 215. "He weighed 210 last year," said Thrower about Griffey, "but he was fat."

All three linebackers are returning. Middle man Bryce Matthews is the biggest of the trio at 180, while outside men David McGee and Scott Keirsey got 160 and 165, respectively. And in the secondary, halfback Denny Jarrell is back. All of Dexter's returning starters are seniors.

Can Thrower detect any improvement in his unit this year? "It's hard to tell when you're playing against yourself," joked the Dexter coach. But if his defensive people can stop their offensive counterparts, they're well on their way to being a fine unit.

Senior quarterback Lance Espey, who tied with David Shell in the voting for first team All-Conference honors last year, heads an offensive crew that might be second to none in the area this season.

Espey threw for 1,147 yards as a junior as his team averaged over 21 points per ballgame -- a considerable feat, considering that the other team possessed the ball most of the time. Ten of his aerials went for touchdowns. "He'll probably put it up about 18-20 times a game again," Thrower said about the southpaw signal caller, who bears an amazing resemblance to Oakland's Ken Stabler on the field.

Espey's top target of last year, flanker Mike Grubbs, has graduated, and Thrower declares that his quarterback will be throwing to more than just a few people this season. Fullback Kevin Orr and halfback Rick Guilliams, returning at their positions, figure to get more than their share of the receptions this year, since both ranked among the North's top ten receivers a year ago. And Mike Penney will move from defense to tight end, giving the Cats' a threat at that position that they didn't have a year ago.

In the rushing department, Guilliams ranked fifth in the league in that category with 893 yeards as a junior, earning second team honors. Guilliams, who finished second in the scoring race in the North last year, should get the call again when Dexter gets close to paydirt.

The speedy Orr, who scored six TD's as a junior, also poses a breakaway threat -- if the offensive line can open some holes for he and Guilliams. But last year's entire unit graduated, forcing Thrower to field a revamped line this fall.

"We'll make more noise this year than last," was Thrower's only prediction about the 1977 season. "We need three or four more good seniors to have an outstanding football team," he said wishfully.

A good group of underclassmen and a big turnout for the freshmen team gives Dexter fans good reason to expect a contender at DHS in the future. As for this year, if the Bear-cats can cut down on their points against and continue to roll 'em up offensively, they will be doing well to double their victory output of a year ago.

Ozark doesn't see Phillie tailspin now

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

If the Philadelphia Phillies haven't lost their flair for the dramatic, they should go into a slump right about now.

It is one year to the day since the Phillies saw a whopping 15½-game lead begin to fritter away. It dwindled down to three games before they recovered and won the National League East by nine games over the Pittsburgh Pirates. And, of course, there is the team's monumental collapse down the stretch in 1964.

"That doesn't even come to mind. This is the first time anyone's ever asked me that question," Manager Danny Ozark said following the red-hot Phillies' 3-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night. It was their sixth consecutive victory and 19th in 20 games and kept them 7½ games ahead of Pittsburgh ... their largest lead of the season.

Elsewhere, the Pirates edged the San Diego Padres 7-6, the San Francisco Giants nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 13 innings, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1, the Montreal Expos downed the Cincinnati Reds 4-2 and the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 2-1.

Greg Luzinski's two-run single in the first inning and Mike Schmidt's 31st home run in the fifth paced the Phillies' triumph. Overshadowed were 13 strikeouts in eight innings by Atlanta's Phil Niekro which gave him a league-leading 204 for the season and broke his record of 195 for a Braves pitcher the team's 12-year Atlanta history.

Pirates 7, Padres 6

Al Oliver broke a tie in the bottom of the ninth with a first-pitch home run off San Diego relief ace Rollie Fingers. The Pirates, who had lost three games in a row, scored a pair of unearned runs in the eighth inning to take a 6-5 lead but San Diego's Gene Tenace tied it in the ninth with a homer.

Giants 4, Cubs 3

Tim Foli's run-scoring single in the 13th inning gave the Giants their first victory of the year over the Cubs after eight defeats. With one out in the 13th, Jack Clark walked and stole second and Darrell Evans also walked before Foli's soft single.

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 1

Bob Forsch pitched a three-hitter in outdueling Don Sutton, and Lou Brock drove in the winning run with a second-inning single for his 2,800th career hit. The 38-year-old Brock, who singled and scored in the first inning, also stole the 889th base of his career, leaving him three shy of the all-time major league record set by Ty Cobb.

Expos 4, Reds 2

Dave Cash continued his season-long assault on Cincinnati with two hits, an RBI, and two runs scored. Cash doubled and scored in the first inning, reached on a fielder's choice and scored in the fourth, and drove in an insurance run with an infield hit in the ninth. Gary Carter homered for Montreal's other run.

Tigers hold scrimmage

By The Associated Press

Most Big Eight football teams moved into full-fledged scrimmaging Tuesday, but Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer backed off from a scheduled workout because of injuries his Sooners have suffered since starting contact work Monday.

The Sooners held limited contact drills instead as first string halfback Elvis Peacock and second team backs Billy Sims and Freddie Nixon were sidelined with injuries. Also on the injury list were guard Jaimie Melendez, strong safety Bud Hebert and second team fullback Barry Joiner. Switzer said he was concerned with the number of leg injuries.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said his Tigers weren't as smooth as they might have been, but he attributed part of the problem to getting a lot of freshmen into the club's first scrimmage. First-year men Phil Bradley and Jay Jeffrey were among the six quarterbacks who earned playing time.

Oklahoma State filmed its three sessions Tuesday and Coach Jim Stanley announced the Cowboys would cut back to two-a-days Wednesday. Stanley said both sophomore quarterback Harold Bailey and junior Randy Stephenson looked good, with Bailey having a slight edge. Freshman tight end Chris Meyers suffered a fractured collarbone—the first casualty of the fall workouts—and will be sidelined about four weeks.

Iowa State's Earle Bruce said his Cyclones reported back to camp in the best condition he's seen in his years of coaching. Timing and conditioning were emphasized in the second day of two-a-days, and Bruce let the varsity veterans go early, but held the freshmen for passing drills and a look at newcomers.

Satterfield wins 3 races at Half-Miler

James Satterfield of Sikeston drove his 350 Camaro to victory in all three races of the late model super stock division Saturday night, highlighting a big weekend of racing at Sikeston's Half Mile Stock Car Track.

Satterfield won both preliminary races and the feature race as well in his division.

Dave Brewer of Sikeston grabbed first in the late model class, and Ron Cook won in the street stock division.

Cook was the winner the night before in the First Street Stock Race, which saw 54 cars compete for $1,300 in prize money. Cook won the feature race in his 442 Oldsmobile.

How knowledgeable are you or your children about drugs?

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

How much do you know about drug abuse? And how much do your children understand — or misunderstand?

The federal government estimates that between 400,000 and 600,000 Americans use heroin on a daily basis. Millions more — many of them young — use other drugs, regularly or occasionally.

There are many different kinds of drugs. All narcotics are drugs, but not all drugs are narcotics. According to the National Clearinghouse on Drug Abuse Information, a drug is "any chemical substance which affects a person in such a way as to bring about physiological, emotional or behavioral change." Narcotics are described as "drugs which relieve pain and often induce sleep."

All drugs are potentially harmful if misused, but they do not all result in addiction or physical dependence.

The myths about drugs are almost as widespread as the problem. To set the record straight, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is distributing, at no charge: "Questions and Answers About Drug Abuse," with information on sedatives, alcohol, stimulants, tobacco, marijuana, hallucinogens and narcotics.

The booklet is available from Consumer Information Center, Dept. 666E, Pueblo, Colo., 81009, or from the National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information, P.O. Box 1635, Rockville, Md., 20850.

To test your knowledge, try taking the following multiple-choice quiz, prepared by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. The correct answers are listed below.

1. During which time(s) was drug abuse a problem in the United States?

a. The Civil War; b. the 1950s; c. the 1960s; d. all of the above.

2. In which age group(s) is drug abuse likely to be a problem?

a. 12-16; b. 16-25; c. 25-45; d. 45 and over; e. all of the above.

3. Which of the following is the most commonly abused drug in the United States?

a. Marijuana; b. alcohol; c. cocaine; d. heroin.

4. Which of the following is not a narcotic?

a. Heroin; b. marijuana; c. morphine; d. methadone.

5. Which of the following is not a stimulant?

a. Amphetamine; b. caffeine; c. mescaline; d. methamphetamine.

6. Which of the following is not a hallucinogen?

a. MDA; b. LSD; c. STP; d. MPA.

7. Which of the following drugs does not cause physical dependence?

a. Ethyl alcohol; b. morphine; c. peyote; d. secobarbital; e. codeine.

8. Which of the following has the highest immediate risk to experimenters?

a. Inhalants; b. marijuana; c. nicotine; d. heroin.

9. When does a person who uses heroin become physically dependent?

a. Immediately; b. after four or five times; c. after prolonged use — 20 times or more; d. different for each person.

10. Which ingredient is most commonly found in compounds sold on the street as "mescaline"?

a. Lysergic acid diethylamide; b. morphine; c. tetracycline; d. naltrexone; e. all of the above.

11. When a person is physically dependent on drugs, what is the primary reason he continues to take the drug?

a. Experience pleasure; b. relieve discomfort; c. escape reality; d. gain acceptance among friends.

12. Which of the following drugs has never been used to treat the narcotic addiction problem in the United States?

a. Cyclazocine; b. naloxone; c. methadone; d. psilocybin; e. heroin.

Here are the answers:

1. d. All of the above. Different periods have had different problems. Opium was used medically during the Civil War and many wounded soldiers became addicted. Heroin use was prevelant at the turn of the century and again in the 1950s, while drug use of all kinds plagued the country in the 1960s.

2. e. All of the above. Despite the recent focus on drugs and the young, drug abuse is found in all age groups.

3. b. Alcohol. Estimates show that about 9 million Americans are alcoholic persons.

4. b. Marijuana. The substance is no longer legally classified as a narcotic. Its psychological effects are similar to stimulants, sedatives or hallucinogens and its actual effects depend on dose, frequency of use and individual characteristics. Morphine and heroin are natural narcotics; methadone is a synthetic narcotic.

5. c. Mescaline. This is a halucinogen with effects similar to LSD.

6. d. MPA. The initials do not stand for any know drug. LSD stand for lysergic acid diethylamide; MDA for Mellow Drug of America; and STP for Serenity, Tranquility and Peace.

7. c. Peyote. Physical dependence on mescaline, the active ingredient of the peyote cactus, has not been verified.

8. a. Inhalants. Sniffing aerosols, glue or other volatile substances can result in immediate death. Although "mainlining" heroin into a vein also can result in immediate death, most experimentation with the drug includes only sniffing or skin-popping.

9. d. Different for each person.

10. a. Lysergic acid diethylamide. Analyses indicate LSD is often a major ingredient of mescaline sold on the street, although it varies from city to city. Street mescaline rarely is pure mescaline and often contains no mescaline at all.

11. b. Relieve discomfort. When a person stops taking a drug that he or she is physically dependent on, physical withdrawal symptons result.

12. d. Psilocybin. This is a hallucinogen which has no accepted medcial use. All of the other substances — including heroin -- have been used at one time or other to treat narcotic addiction.

Kilgore, Miller deliver speeches to Toastmasters

"Wont's Just Wolf'en" was the title of the first speech, presented by Mike Kilgore.

The following speech, "My Life is Mountain Climbing", was delivered by the Rev. Don Miller.

The Rev. Bob Case was the speech evaluator for Kilgore and Stan McMachins evaluated the Rev. Mr. Miller's speech.

The general evaluator was Paul Bumbarger.

Gary Chegwidden was the table topics master for the week. He presented Bumbarger and McMachins as best topics speakers for that meeting.

Kilgore, the president, welcomed Judy Comer, Mont Mitchell and George Doyle as guests.

The club meets at noon every Monday at the same place, and guests are welcome.

The case of the unsound alarm

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Willie owned and operated a liquor store. And while he took in lots of cold cash, he had difficulty keeping it long enough to warm it up. With holdup men dropping by as frequently as customers, he finally installed a burglar alarm system. Unfortunately, the employees of the company that installed it forgot to connect the wires leading from the alarm button to the alarm.

The result? When Willie nonchalantly pushed the button during a holdup, his air of confidence slowly faded as the holdup man remained on his premises for 15 minutes, selecting expensive bottles of booze like connoiseurs -- without the police showing up.

Furious, Willie sued the alarm company for his loss of bucks and bottles.

"As a safety device," complained Willie in court, "I might just as well have bought a parachute. By negligently failing to connect the burglar alarm wires, the alarm company cost me $1,500 in cash and merchandise."

"Sorry about that," responded an alarm company official, "but our contract with Willie specifically provided that in the event the alarm system failed to operate properly, the limit of the company's liability was $25.00. Consequently, that's all he's entitled to collect."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you limit Willie's recovery to $25.00?

This is how the judge ruled: NO. The judge held that there can be no failure of alarm system to operate until the system has been properly installed and functioning. Since Willie's alarm had not been properly installed and functioning, concluded the judge, the $25.00 liability limitation was not applicable.

TV system allows viewers to talk back

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you want to talk back to your television set, move to Columbus.

QUBE, a two-way TV programming system, is coming to this city late this fall. Warner Cable Corp., a subsidiary of Warner Communications Inc., chose Columbus as its test market.

A panel of buttons on a home control box will enable a viewer to choose among 30 channels of programming, but what makes QUBE unique are five black buttons on the right side of the terminal.

"For the first time, viewers will be able to actively participate in the program they're watching," according to J. Ronald Castell, QUBE's vice president of marketing.

Castell envisions TV games in which viewers can compete by pushing buttons to indicate their decisions. "We may even have some games in which people in one suburb will play ... against people in another suburb or husbands will play against their wives," Castell said.

Viewers also will be able to take college courses, bridge lessons, macrame instruction and cooking classes with the two-way system, Castell said. Buttons allow them to answer yes or no, and their answers will be received in the "classrooms."

As well as tabulating such responses from viewers, QUBE's computers will monitor which programs are being watched and bill viewers amounts ranging from $1 for a classic movie to about $3 for a first-run movie or special.

A killer whale surfaces through a hole in the ice close to a group of penguins in Antaractica. Ravenous killer whales have been known to smash through the ice, dumping the penguins, on whom they then dine. were to have been used to assist in the rehabilitation work.

Sikeston appealed the ruling and HUD was forced to qualify the city for the FHA loans.

After some argument, HUD officials admitted that Sikeston had enough points to qualify on the housing rehabilitation.

But they said, while the sanitary sewers are beneficial to the poor, they are not necessary.

City officials replied that under HUD guidelines, indoor bathrooms are necessary under the housing rehabilitation program. Indoor bathrooms require sanitary sewers, they said.

HUD officials admitted the error, Church said.

Finally the officials said they did not have any more money, that it had already been given out.

Church said that by looking at HUD's figures, he guessed the city is eligible for $212,000 of the $400,000 it originally requested.

City officials asked them to send a letter to the secretary of HUD and request money from the department's discretionary fund.

HUD officials promised to let Sikeston know Friday if they would write the letter. On Friday they said they would decide on Monday.

On Tuesday, they said they did not feel they had made any mistakes, so they would not write the letter.

Church said this morning the city's first move will be to make contact with the city's Congressional delegation and then to write each member a lengthy letter detailing the problem.

City officials decided to use the appeal process to try and get the funds rather than sue. However, they have said in the past they may sue as a possible solution, if the appeal process fails.

Church said he was impressed with the City Council's desire to fight HUD on the matter. He said most city's just give up when they are denied funding.

Bresee said anybody with complaints should register them with her at the city hall, and she will refer them to the proper person.

An important question to potential patients is: Will the new additions totalling $1.2 million increase rates of medical care at the hospital?

Norman said rates will not go up any more than they normally would, because of increased salaries and inflation and are expected to be less than nine per cent this year.

"Volume is the key," Norman said, explaining why the construction will not increase rates.

As the hospital increases its size and services offered, it will bring in more patients and more revenue, Norman said and rates won't have to be adjusted upward as much as if the hospital was not growing, but overhead keeps going up.

After talking with seven different financial institutions, the hospital board of directors has decided to get its loan from Hitner Corporation in St. Louis.

Money will be borrowed as needed as the construction progresses. This way, only the money will be borrowed that is actually needed, Norman said.

Over the next five years, an additional 25 employes will be needed at the hospital because of the expansion, mainly in the nursing services and housekeeping areas.

An architects' drawing should be ready in two to three weeks, Norman said.

Property in county is sold for taxes

BENTON -- About 20 persons were present at the Scott County Court House Monday at 10 a.m. to bid on property being sold for taxes by County Collector Tom Marshall.

Marshall explained to those present that those purchasing the property would be given a real estate tax certificate deed and that the present persons owning the property could reclaim title during the next two years upon payment of the bid price plus 10 per cent interest per year.

He further explained that if present owners do not redeem the property within the two-year period then persons with the certificate deed will be given a collector's deed.

Marshall also said to all prospective bidders that persons presently owning the property would only be liable for the bid price and the 10 per cent interest if wishing to redeem the property, not for any improvements made to the property.

In starting the sale, Marshall explained that 20 pieces of property were being offered for the first time and that taxes due on them dated back to 1974 through 1976.

Present owners, description of property to be sold, taxes due, amounts bid and persons bidding that amount include:

New impasse adjourns legislature until Sept. 9

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new impasse — this one over a state office building in St. Louis — has blocked swift passage of the multi-million dollar capital improvements bill until at least Sept. 9.

The full legislature adjourned on Tuesday until at least that date so that the 10-member house-senate negotiating committee can work toward a resolution of the stalemate on the bill to fund state building construction and maintenance through June.

"It just doesn't make sense to keep everybody here waiting for 10 people to reach agreement," House Speaker Kenneth Rothman said after working out the revised schedule with Senate President Pro Tem Norman Merrell.

The legislative leaders had originally hoped work on the measure, the primary issue before lawmakers in the special session, could be concluded on Tuesday.

The joint negotiating committee adjourned until next week shortly after both houses concluded work. Under the state constitution, the special session which began Aug. 10 must be concluded by Oct. 9, even if a compromise on the house version of the bill, which totals $142 million and the senate's $145 million bill cannot be reached.

The impasse on the St. Louis office building is the second to stall work on the huge funding measure, and Democratic House Floor Leader Joe Holt acknowledged that the issue is not one of money, but a power struggle between the house and senate.

Although there are 17 areas of disagreement between the house and senate version of the bill, the negotiators have tentatively agreed on all but six of those.

The major stumbling block among the remaining six is an additional $7 million endorsed by the senate for the mid-town state office complex in St. Louis.

The house approved only enough for the new building for consolidating the state offices except welfare. The house maintains cheaper space could be obtained just outside the downtown St. Louis area for the welfare services.

The senate contends all services, including welfare, should be in the same complex, which would require the additional $7 million supported by the senators.

The first impasse between the house and senate on the bill centered around construction of new prison facilities and led to the failure of the measure during the regular session which ended in June.

The special session was called after Gov. Joseph Teasdale and the legislative leadership worked out a compromise on the prison question, which called for $25 million for a medium security prison in the St. Louis area and $11.7 million for renovation of existing facilities, including additional maximum security units at the state penitentiary.

The prison compromise has been approved by both chambers and was not among the differences now blocking passage of the huge bill in the conference committee.

State Social Services Director James Walsh testified before the conference committee Tuesday on his agency's future plans for consolidating the welfare services in the St. Louis area.

Walsh said the state agency already was working on consolidating those operations in the former General American Life Insurance building just outside the city's dowtown area.

Rep. Steve Gardner, D-Baldwin, said approving the senate's version of the bill would mean an extra $7 million for a building with less square footage and no parking facilities, while the General American building had more square feet and 800 parking spaces.

However, Sen. J.B. Banks, D-St. Louis, said there was "all the land you need" available for parking space near the mid-town location. He also said it would be better to consolidate the welfare services near the city's central area.

Under questioning, Walsh said he had not seen the plans for the proposed building.

Rep. Gary Rust, R-Cape Girardeau, said he could not see appropriating the larger amount of funding for a new building, when the state's social services director had not seen the proposed facility's plans.

In response to another question from Gardner, Walsh said he was "enormously" concerned about parking space, since the agency already had a problem keeping employes and lack of parking might aggravate the problem.

Banks also pointed out the building would not be built for about two years and Walsh would have time to make sure the building plans were in line with his agency's needs.

Despite the house members' objections, Walsh said he still supported the mid-town project, as it had been approved by the Senate.

Walsh said the department had begun consolidation in the present building in the expectation of eventually moving into the mid-town structure, which also has been backed by Teasdale.

"I'm supporting the governor's position," Walsh told the committee.

The other five provisions in addition to the St. Louis office building are $50,000 for study of a new veterans home in Macon, $50,000 for study of a new building at Missouri Southern State College in Joplin, $50,000 for study of a new building at Missouri Western in St. Joseph, $500,000 for development at the Battle of Athens State Park, Wakonda State Park and Bothwell Lodge, and $280,000 for tourist information centers in northeast and northwest Missouri.

Lid on property tax needed

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Missouri needs a tax lid immediately or homeowners could lose their holdings if property taxes go up two to three times, the chairman of the State Tax Commission said Tuesday.

Chairman Robert Love said a St. Louis County Circuit Court ruling last week could push property taxes two or three times higher than they are now throughout the state.

The Aug. 17 order by Judge Arthur Litz requires that "substantial steps" be taken within a year toward reassessment of all property in St. Louis County. Love said the order could boost tax bill unless the legislature freezes rates at a level less than one-third the fair market value to compensate for assessment increases.

"Be prepared for assessments to increase two or three times throughout the state," Love said. "This means two or three times more taxes for everyone if there is no compensation provided in tax rates by the state legislature."

Love said a freeze on tax rates is his number one legislative priority.

The court order demands that the county bring its assessments into compliance with state law which requires a uniform level of one-third of fair market value. Judge Litz also ordered the county to adjust assessments every year to keep them at that level despite fluctuations in actual property values.

A 1974 state audit showed assessment levels in Missouri ranged from 7 per cent in one western county to 35 per cent in the City of St. Louis.

Thieves take tools, change in two thefts

CHARLESTON -- Two break-ins believed to have occurred Saturday and Monday night are under investigation by Mississippi County Sheriff's Department.

West Side Salvage, Highway 60, one mile west of Charleston, owned by Percy Foster, was entered sometime Monday night, Deputy Sheriff Robert Smith said today.

Four boxes of socket wrenches, a battery charger, and electric welder and a hydraulic jack, valued at about $800, were taken after entry was made by breaking a lock on the east side door.

Mississippi County Bowling Lanes, on Highway 105 near the south city limits of Charleston, was entered through a rear door sometime Saturday night.

Smith said a large amount of change was taken from 12 coin-operated machines. Two pistols, one a .45 and the other a .32 caliber, were also taken along with some tools .

The lanes are owned by Bob Warren.

Anti-fencing program nets dividends

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — An anti-fencing program under way in western Missouri the past 16 months has resulted in the recovery of about $200,000 in stolen property and 15 warrants for felony arrests, Police Chief Gordon Loveland said today.

Loveland made the announcement after the recovery of a truckload of stolen cheese from the Clinton area.

The police chief said the program was set up in May 1976 on the basis of information from undercover narcotics agents. With preliminary funding from the Missouri Council on Criminal Justice, law enforcement agencies in the area started an undercover anti-fencing operation using various fronts and methods of operation.

Loveland said the initial operation proved successful and additional funding was approved by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. He said a variety of property stolen from west-central Missouri, southwestern Missouri and Kansas was recovered during the program.

Among the recovered items were cars, sporting goods, power tools, guns, musical instruments and clothing.

Loveland said nine persons are in custody and six others are being sought.

Bell seeks new data bureau

WASHINGTON (AP) — After ignoring exhortations by researchers and study groups for more than a century, the government is moving to pull together its disjointed set of facts and figures on crime.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell wants to end fragmentation of effort in the Justice Department's compilation and analysis of crime figures by creating a new Bureau of Criminal Justice Statistics.

In so doing, Bell is responding to what critics have described as the department's "horse and buggy system" of collecting crime figures. The agency he is proposing could give the public and government officials at all levels important information about crime trends and fresh insight about the causes of crime and ways to combat it.

The new agency would take over the crime statistics work of the FBI, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and a host of separate department offices.

Seventeen department units currently produce 54 different sets of statistics dealing with crime, the courts, prosecutors, prisons or other aspects of the criminal justice system.

Justice Department officials and private researchers long have maintained that the criminal records-keeping practices of the government have frustrated efforts to paint a reliable picture of crime in America.

"Nationwide information about crime is so fragmented, unreliable and varied that it is impossible to state, with any degree of confidence, conclusions about the state of the nation's crime problem," said a recent department staff report on the problem.

The best-known statistics are those published in the FBI's annual and quarterly figures on the numbers of crimes reported to state and local police. But those reports include only seven crime categories — murder, rape, assault, robbery, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft. They say nothing about white-collar offenses and numerous other crimes.

It will take new legislation from Congress, however, before the new bureau could take over the Justice Department's crime statistics work and go into full operation.

District 9 clerks and recorders meet

BENTON -- Twenty-two persons, Circuit Clerks, recorders, deputy clerks and deputy recorders, representing the counties of Cape, Scott, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Perry and Stoddard, attended a regional meeting of District 9 of Missouri Circuit Clerk and Recorders Association Thursday in the Scott County Circuit Court room.

Shirley Parker, president of the association and Circuit Clerk and Recorder of Scotland County, presented a program on Senate Bill 112, which allows a fixed recording fee for instruments by the page.

She advised that the association's legislative committee is working on a pay-raise bill for recorders and said the committee expects to have a draft of the bill ready to present at the annual convention in Columbia Sept. 21-23, along with a bill helping to protect Circuit Clerks when the new judicial reform goes into effect in January 1979.

This new law will eliminate Magistrate and Probate Judges offices and combine them under the Circuit Court as associate judges.

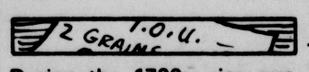
Jane Hess of the state court administrators office in Jefferson City and Richard Huber of Jefferson City, council for the division of family services, were present to lend their knowledge on House bill 601, parent-locater, which adds the duty to Circuit Clerks to collect for the state or the division of family services, child support payments. They also discussed how to handle SEU-212 forms when they are received and how to report to the state when checks are received.

Brydon M. Ross, regional vice president and Circuit Clerk of Dunklin County, presented a list of items that need answers and asked each member to consider them between now and the convention in Columbia.

Some of the items presented by Ross include: Possibility of computer terminal in clerk's offices across the state; Having microfilm or microfische records made of files and records; Legislation permitting the destruction of old (20-years of age) files; parent-locater problems, such as collection of fees for the state under voluntary assignments; and monthly instead of weekly reports to state enforcement units.

Other questions asked by Ross include preliminary inquiries into 1979 court systems regarding Magistrate Courts, Probate Courts, Municipal Courts; appointments of deputies (Probate and Magistrate Courts), such as who sets the deputies salaries and who pays the salaries?

The final question asked was in regard to who collects city fines (Municipal courts), where does the fine money go and will there be deputies for Municipal Courts?



During the 1700s, rice was used as currency in the Carolinas.

Former House speakers talk on abuse of power

By GARY HARDEE
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — John G. Christy, former Missouri House speaker, will tell you straight out about offers of money to influence legislation: "Any House speaker who says he didn't get any offers, well, there's something wrong there. I got some big offers and some little offers," says Christy, House Speaker from 1935 to 1940. "I'm not going to tell you I didn't have offers when I was speaker, but I didn't accept them."

Another former House Speaker, Richard J. Rabbitt, was recently sentenced to seven years in prison and fined $18,000 for extortion and mail fraud.

Federal prosecutors presented evidence showing Rabbitt accepted $12,300 from an architectural firm for state contracts and $14,300 from the Greater St. Louis Automotive Dealers Association for assigning bills to favorable committees and influencing passage of legislation.

Rabbitt's conviction will be appealed, but it raises questions about the power of the House speaker, who is considered the most powerful state official next to the governor.

House Minority Floor Leader Russell G. Brockfeld, R-Warrenton, recently requested that the House consider rule changes reducing the authority of the speaker.

Brockfeld, in a letter to present House Speaker, Ken Rothman, D-Clayton, suggested that the speaker's authority to assign bills to committees be given to the House Rules Committee.

Brockfeld also suggested, "in light of the recent conviction" of Rabbitt, that either the minority caucus or minority floor leader appoint members of the minority party to committees. The speaker now has this power.

These powers give the speaker a great amount of control over legislation, Christy says.

"I had two committees that I called 'killing committees,'" Christy said. Bills he didn't like, Christy explained, he could assign to those committees, and the legislation would never be reported to the floor for a vote.

"I don't know whether it's good (for the speaker) to have the power to appoint committees and control committees and to refer certain bills to certain committees," the 80-year-old former Jefferson City mayor says.

"It's a hell of a lot of power to give to one man."

Christy says the biggest offer he received was $5,000 from a company that manufactures voting machines. The company wanted him to assign a bill that would allow them to install a voting machine in the House chamber to a "friendly" committee.

"It takes a lot of will power not to succumb. The lobbyists do anything to get close to the speaker," Christy says.

Christy says when he was a lobbyist for Missouri's breweries, he tried to get close to the speaker. "I gave out a lot of beer," he says.

Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage, believes, however, the bribes will not come if a speaker establishes that he is not susceptible. Webster was speaker for one legislative session in 1954.

"The offers do not come to people who establish the reputation of not being susceptible," Webster says. "The speaker only has the power that the House membership gives him. Where the membership permits abuse of those powers, it is the fault of the membership."

Webster says when he was House speaker he never was offered any bribes for special help on legislation, but "the opportunity was always there." He likes Brockfeld's suggestions for changing the authority of the speaker.

"The speaker has the power to remove members from committees. That's where his real power comes from. He can tell a committee chairman, hold a bill or let it out or I'll take you off the committee," Webster says.

"That's why the caucus system is better. Let the speaker be a presiding officer."

Rothman, however, was disgusted by Brockfeld's suggestions, calling them a "cheap political shot."

"I don't know why he did that. I didn't notice any Republicans saying we should strip the powers of the president when Nixon was removed from office," Rothman says.

"Some one has to have the responsibility. The responsibility I had worked well. As speaker I have received praise from media throughout the state."

Thomas D. Graham, former House speaker from 1961 to 1965, says the present responsibilities of the speaker worked well for him.

"Sure, it is a lot of power, and it can be abused, but so can other powers, says Graham, who is practicing law in Jefferson City.

"An instance like this conviction of Rabbitt shouldn't be used to damn everyone (in the legislature). Because one man goes bad, you shouldn't condemn everyone. It happens in all walks of life," Graham says.

"Everybody wants an unfair advantage. That's only natural. But you don't have to give up your principles to do a good job."

Well-being of wheat growers has fallen to levels of 1933

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to Agriculture Department calculations, the economic well-being of wheat growers generally has fallen to the levels of 1933, when the federal government began extensive programs of adjusting the farm economy.

The prices they are getting this summer are not the worst but are getting close to a percentage of the calculated parity price.

In mid-July, the combined average for all types of wheat produced was $2 a bushel. That's 40 per cent of the parity price of $5.05.

As a percentage of parity, the average wheat prices for one season hit bottom in 1931, with 36 per cent.

When grain stocks in other countries were depleted in 1973 and U.S. exports began to boom, the peak of 118 per cent was reached.

The parity price is not a direct measure of farm income, which chief USDA economist Howard Hjort says will fall to 1971 levels this year.

But it does reflect at a given time the price a farmer should get for a bushel of wheat to achieve the financial harmony the law says existed in the 1910-1914 period.

Many figures are cranked into the calculation, which the department is required to make, each month. Most are averages that a farmer with a mortgage and a typical family's needs may have some difficulty identifying with.

The prices the farmer pays for the articles and services that he must buy are included, along with the general level of all farm prices, interest rates, wage rates, taxes and government income supplements and price supports.

Few of those items go down as does the price of a commodity after big harvests.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says, "I see no hope for wheat-price improvement this year" in the cash market. Upcoming increases in government payment levels will help growers' incomes but not raise the effective market price beyond $2.25 a bushel, the USDA loan rate.

The Economic Research Service says that "seasonal price rises of 5 to 10 per cent have occurred in earlier years when prices were near the loan rate."

That's a dime or two a bushel next spring, not enough to exceed the loan rate. Moreover, dwindling storage space is forcing many farmers to sell into the glutted market rather than wait.

Some tentative hope was raised Thursday with new estimates of world grain trade, production and stocks for the current season. The Foreign Agricultural Service trimmed its forecast of the total wheat and coarse grains carryover stocks next June 30 from a potential record of 195.8 million metric tons to 186.2 million.

But that would still be the largest stockpile since 1970, more than 10 per cent above this summer's price-smothering carryover.

The estimate also is tentative, because it was based on lower projections for Russian spring-wheat and U.S. corn harvests that may be raised again because of recent better weather.

"It will take a kicker on the demand side — more specifically from exports — to push prices up more than seasonally," the Aug. 1 ERS analysis states. "Such a push could come from a shortfall in the world's wheat crop, the world's feedgrain crop or the world rice crop. However, at this time all three crops look good."

While the FAS did cut those wheat and feed totals Thursday, the crops still would be second only to last year's record, 9 per cent of which was added unsold to the previous carryover. The estimates of total grain moving into trade channels were raised, too — for everyone but the United States.

All that means stagnant domestic prices.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $51,000 grant from the Agricultural Research Service and extensive funding from the U.S. cane-sugar industry are going into emergency testing of the smut resistance of about 600 types of domestic surgarcane.

"As far as we know, we do not have smut on the U.S. mainland now, but the future threat is serious," said Dr. Jack L. Dean, an ARS plant pathologist in Canal Point, Fla.

Airborne smut, thought to have come from Africa, was recently found in Jamaica, where the three years of tests will be conducted. One strain was found in Hawaii six years ago.

"Its arrival on the U.S. mainland is virtually assured. The only uncertainty is how much time we have to prepare for it," Dean said.

Sugar varieties and breeding lines are being quarantined near Washington for shipment to Jamaica in October, when an industry-built quarantine greenhouse should be complete. After an additional time there, the plants will be placed outside for a year or two to test their resistance to the black whiplike fungi that grow from a few inches to a few feet long.

About 440,000 mainland acres, or 65 per cent of the cane areas of Florida, Louisiana and Texas, are vulnerable, Dean said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Funding for the Agriculture Department's export credit-sales program has been cut back to $750 million from the $1 billion of this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

That lower amount is the level set for fiscal 1978 by the USDA appropriations bill President Carter signed recently.

As of three days before that, USDA had committed $945.6 million for fiscal 1977. The program of short-term commercial financing is seen as a tool to promote further exports of U.S. crops, especially cotton, rice and wheat.

Laura Keenan completes 28-day tour

Laura Keenan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Keenan, 124 Autumn Drive, recently returned from Dallas where she plans to move this fall. She will be working in a sales position there using her bachelor's degree in business which she received at the University of Missouri-Columbia in May.

Following graduation, Miss Keenan and her friend Deborah Shouse of Kansas City went on a 28-day charter tour from New York to London and Europe. They flew from New York to London, where they started on their own schedule. They took a train from London to Dover and connected with a ship which took them to Oostende, Belgium. From Oostende they used their train passes to travel throughout Europe.

They stayed in hotels throughout Europe.

From Brussels, Belgium the two travelers went to Amsterdam, Heidelberg, West Germany; Lucerne, Switzerland; and then to Simbach, a small village near Munich. They were guests of the Papa Berna family. Only the daughter in college, Gabi, could speak English. Berna is a foreman in the local sausage factory. Water is not served at the table in his home, instead, all the family drinks great quantities of beer.

The girls from Missouri said couldn't keep up with the local custom. From Simbach they toured Munich and Salzburg, Austria. Continuing on South, visits were made in Italy to Venice, Florence, and Rome. After being in the cold north the warmer climate of Italy was a nice change. From Rome they went to Nice, France on the French Riviera and past the castle of Prince Ranier and Princess Grace of Monaco. It is the custom on the beach there that most women wear topless bathing suits. Again, the girls from Missouri couldn't keep up with the local custom.

The trip from Nice to Paris was made by train. After a couple of days in Paris, they took a train to Calais, France, a ship to England, two more days in London and then back to Missouri by way of New York City.

Of all the areas visited the favorites were London, Germany, Switzerland, Austria. For anyone's first trip, England is recommended as the first stop to blunt the cultural shock, followed by Germany where the standard of living is comparable to the United States. Laura said she would be glad to assist anyone interested in information about Europe or London.

HUD gives Sikeston lesson in bureaucracy

City officials have often said that working with the federal government is a frustrating job. But during the past week, they received a lesson in bureaucracy that has left them both amazed and dismayed.

City officials traveled to St. Louis Thursday to appeal the rejection by the Department of Housing and Urban Development of third year funding under the Community Development program.

Specifically, they were appealing HUD's decision not to invite the city to apply for third year funding. The invitation generally means a city will get at least some of the funding it requests.

City Manager Charles Church said they proved that Sikeston qualified for the funds under HUD's own standards, but on Tuesday the city learned federal officials still would not release any funds.

Making the trip to St. Louis were Church, Mayor Eric Piel, City Attorney Charles Stamp, and Housing Authority Director Bill Hannah.

Church said the city will now write letters to U.S. Senators Thomas F. Eagleton and Jack Danforth and to Congressman Bill Burlison and ask for their intervention.

Sikeston operated for two years with Community Development funds, but when it sought third year funding to continue its housing rehabilitation program and street and sewer work, as well as adding park improvements in Sunset and contributing to the elderly transportation program, HUD said the city did not meet the qualifications.

What HUD said was:

--Sikeston had an adequate amount of money left over from the second year funding to keep the city busy for the third year.

--The city's ratings, based on a 30-point system, was too low. The rating points are determined by how well the CD program serves the poor and how it serves the housing rehabilitation program.

--The ratings were too low, HUD said, because the housing program did not have enough points and the sanitary sewer program was not necessary for low income housing. HUD requires two programs with high ratings before they will grant continued funding

--Finally HUD said it did not have the money to fund the city.

Church said the city showed that in the first four months of the program, 76 per cent of the housing rehabilitation funds were spent. He added that now, with only two months left to go in second year funding, all the money is either spent or contracted for.

In addition, the amount of money spent is not in HUD's guidelines on determining eligibility, Church said.

Sikeston did as well or better than Kirksville in spending the money, Church said. Kirksville is the only city in the state invited to apply for third-year funding.

He added that Steele had not spent any of its first year funding when it received second-year funding.

HUD officials said Sikeston had only rehabilitated 18 homes in the first year funding, although its plan was for 30.

Church said Sikeston had received only $60,000 under the first year funding. The 30-home figure includes those to be rehabilitated if HUD had given the city the full amount it had asked for.

Another reason for the low number was HUD itself, Church said.

That year, HUD had decided that Sikeston was the only city under 20,000 population in Missouri that was not eligible for Farmer's Home Administration loans. Those loans

New Madrid escapee caught in Arkansas

NEW MADRID -- A 16-year-old Portageville boy who escaped custody early Monday morning following an evacuation of inmates at the New Madrid County jail when a fire broke out, was apprehended Tuesday in Arkansas.

The youth was taken into custody by Ouachita County, Ark. authorities after a reported chase into a wooded area near Camden. At the time of his escape he was being held by the Sheriff's Department for alleged car theft at Portageville and for an earlier car theft in Arkansas.

Since his escape, he allegedly stole a car Monday in New Madrid. He is also suspected of burglary and stealing in Greene County, Ark. near Paragould where a shotgun, scuba diving equipment and other items, valued at $2,000, were stolen.

A 1974 model Ford Torino, owned by Susan Townsend of New Madrid, stolen Monday, has recovered by Arkansas police and the loot taken in the burglary was found inside the car.

Pending court action against the boy in Arkansas, it has not been determined when the escapee will be returned to New Madrid County.

Bloomfield okays report on sewage

BLOOMFIELD— The City Council Tuesday night accepted a preliminary report on the city sewage system, which will now be sent to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for approval.

The report, prepared by Waters & Associates of Sikeston, acting as city engineers, determined excessive inflow of rain water and advised a smoke test be made on the system.

"This test will yield valuable information to help alleviate the perpetual problems of sewer overflows now plaguing your community, and will also aid in the development of the final facility plan," the report said.

The smoke test will determine where leaks in the system are located. The EPA must approve the tests.

This report is part of the first step the city must take to upgrade its sewers to meet EPA guidelines.

The report, presented to the council Tuesday night by Alex Waters and John Chittenden, also informed the council that anothe 17 acres might be needed to expand its present lagoon.

A final report on what is needed will not be ready for another six months, however, Chittenden told the council.

Also at the meeting, the council asked Waters if the city was required to furnish water and sewer lines to a new subdivision being built in the northern part of the city.

Waters suggested that is more of a legal problem than an engineering problem and that the city should check with its attorney.

He did advise, however, that the city adopt some building ordinanaces to cover such situations.

Mayor M. E. "Bud" Bressee agreed to look into possible "model" ordinances from the Missouri Municipal League for the council to consider.

In other business it was announced that applicants for any of five jobs--four workers and one supervisor--available through Dec. 31 of this year, apply through the Job Service Office in Dexter.

The workers will be paid through a

Lions schedule circus

The Sikeston Lion's Club will sponsor a performance by the Hagan-Wallace and Sells Gray Circus at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Grounds, Sept. 26.

Tom Roberts, chairman of the circus committee, has announced that the proceeds from the circus tickets will be devoted to the Lion's sight conservation project. An advanced sale of the tickets is now under way at banks and savings and loans associations in Sikeston, at reduced prices, and will also be available from individual Lions members.

Performances are scheduled for 4 p.m. and 8 p.m., on Sept. 26.

For many years Hagan-Wallace and Sells-Gray Circus toured America as separate shows. Now they have been combined into one larger circus with the outstanding features of the two organizations plus many new attractions. Many arena stars from all parts of the world have been recruited for this year's national tour of the big show.

The performances are to feature circus in the traditional American style with all the performing elephants, dancing horses, trained wild animals, funny clowns, wire-walkers, jugglers, daring young men and women on the flying trapeze, lively music and pretty girls all performing in the three rings under the billowing canvas big-top.

2 arrested after accident

EAST PRAIRIE— Two East Prairie youths were arrested Tuesday night following an incident at Harris' East Side Mobil Station adjacent to the east city limits.

Sheriff Norris Grissom said Steve Norman, 17, is being held under $1,000 bond in Mississippi County jail at Charleston on charges of careless and reckless driving and driving while license revoked. A charge of destruction of private property is pending.

Eric Smith, about 20, was released on $50 bond, posted for permitting an unauthorized person to drive.

Grissom said Norman was driving Smith's pickup truck about 8:15 p.m. Tuesday and came into the service station driveway in a reckless manner, striking two gasoline pumps.

One pump was torn from its foundation and the other knocked over. Gas from the pumps ignited and tthe fire department was called to extinguish the blaze. Only minor damage occurred to the pumps.

2 injured in accidents

Two persons received minor injuries and one person received moderate injuries in two area traffic accidents Tuesday, the highway patrol said today.

Two Poplar Bluff women were injured in a two-car accident at 5:10 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 60, two miles east of Poplar Bluff.The accident occurred when an eastbound car driven by Alnita Nowells, 23, of Poplar Bluff was stopped on the pavement after being involved in a prior accident and was struck by another eastbound car driven by Tyrone Blackman, 20, of Brosley.

The driver of the Nowells car, received minor injuries and a passenger in the car, Kathy Taylor, 27, of Poplar Bluff, received moderate injuries.

Both were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

One person received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 4:25 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 25, three miles north of Advance.

The accident occurred when a windshield wiper knob came off in a car driven north by Eugene Douglas Rice, 71, of Jackson. Rice reached over to retrieve the knob and the car struck a bridge.

Rice received minor injuries and was taken to St. Francis Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Dexter hospital plans $1.2 million expansion

DEXTER – Dexter Memorial Hospital will build additions totalling about 16,500 square feet at a cost of $1.2 million, Jack Norman, hospital administrator, announced Tuesday afternoon. Construction will begin in October.

The new additions will include an expanded intensive care unit, physical therapy unit, lab, emergency room facilities and lobby. If costs allow, a new patient wing is also planned.

A feasibility study to determine the need for new facilities and of what kind began in August, 1976 under the direction of Drake Partnership, a St. Louis-based architectural firm, and continued until April of this year.

Since that time, work has centered on architectural-conceptual drawings, with Brown Construction Co. of Dexter retained as construction manager, Norman said.

Final bids covering construction costs have not been completed, and details of the building will not be available until the contract is awarded.

However, plans now call for a new self-contained intensive care unit, to take the place of the present one, composed of two patient rooms modified for the purpose; a new emergency room to handle patients in a more efficient manner, to replace the present one which is limited in its capacity to receive ambulances and treat patients; a new lab, designed to handle the growing number of tests – from 2,000 per month three years ago to 5,000 per month now; and a physical therapy room designed for a gymnasium type environment which can treat several patients at one time.

The increased lobby size is to handle the large number of visitors at the hospital, which now causes cramped conditions in the present lobby. There will also be a separate waiting room for those visiting intensive care patients.

Other planned additions include a new mechanics area and a covered walkway from the present annex building to the main hospital building.

A possible new patient wing is planned, if costs allow. If built, the construction will contain five semi-private and one private room. The total number of rooms at the hospital would remain at 50.

If the new wing is built, five of the semi-private rooms now at the hospital will be converted to private rooms.

If the costs are too high to build the new addition, present rooms will be remodeled to bring them up to modern-day standards. No increase in the number of beds is expected until 1982.

Some of the present facilities -- even though built just nine years ago -- are now out of date, Norman said.

He used as an example the design of one toilet to service two rooms, which was to save dollars when the hospital was built in 1968, but has created "nightmares" for patients.

Former Sikestonian to be chancellor at UMKC

COLUMBIA - Dr. George A. Russell, a native Southeast Missourian, vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate college at the University of Illinois, has been named chancellor of the University of Missouri's Kansas City campus.

UM system president James C. Olson, making the announcement Aug. 22, said Dr. Russell will assume the chancellorship in early October.

"One impression I have of Kansas City," Dr. Russell said in accepting the appointment, "is the high level of community support the people have for the University, and the enthusiasm of the faculty and staff for the job that needs to be done for the people there."

The new UMKC chancellor is a native of Bertrand in Mississippi County and a 1938 graduate of Sikeston High School.

Dr. Russell, 56, served in the U. S. Navy from 1940 until retiring in 1960 with the rank of commander. He was graduated in 1947 from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with a B.S. degree in electrical engineering. He has M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in physics from the University of Illinois in 1952 and 1958, respectively.

Since 1972 he has been one of four vice chancellors at UI's Urbana-Champaign campus. He joined the faculty there in 1962 as an associate professor of physics after teaching at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale for two years.

At UI he was associate director and then director of the materials research laboratory in the College of Engineering from 1963-68 and was associate head of the physics department for two years before becoming associate dean of the graduate college.

He is married to the former Ruth Ann Ashby of Charleston. They have four children, ages 15 to 28. A daughter, Mrs. Jim Burke, lives near Charleston. Dr. Russell's parents, George A. and Martha Russell are dead.

A stud gun and a battery were reported stolen in separate thefts, Public Safety Department officers said today.

Don Miller, 911 S. Prairie St., reported that a .38-caliber stud gun was taken from D & S Electric Co., 707 Frisco St., between 3:30 p.m. Saturday and 5:15 p.m. Monday.

The gun, a tool used in construction work, was valued at $185. Also taken were the carrying case, worth $15, and two boxes of .38-caliber cartridges, worth $8. The building was entered through a window.

Murray G. Klein, 511 S. Kingshighway, reported a battery taken from his truck sometime Monday morning. The battery was valued at $50.

The truck was parked at the house at the time of the theft.

COOKING CORNER

TIPS TO HELP YOU

Bridal Customs Then And Now

It's as true now as it has been throughout history—one of the bridal paths leads to the kitchen. That's why gifts of cookware have always been popular.

In colonial times, pots were made almost exclusively of iron. Brass and copper were popular in Europe and wealthy Americans often improved them for gifts, notably wedding presents.

Today, people who want to give a wedding gift that is both practical and elegant are choosing cookware with the color of burnished pewter, like this Premium cookware by Wear-Ever. It features nonstick, easy to clean, interiors of "SilverStone." The brightly polished heavy aluminum exterior of the cookware adds good looks to your kitchen. Handles are contoured to fit the hand comfortably, and they have special hang-up features and polished flame-guards.

All of these qualities combine to give the bride tomorrow's cookware with yesterday's appeal.

PATIO SNACKTIME

Honey Brownies Iced Tea

HONEY BROWNIES

A sweet cookie bar with lots of chocolate flavor.

½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ squares (2½ ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1-3rd cup butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1-3rd cup honey
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Stir together the flour, soda and salt. Melt the chocolate with the butter. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; beat in sugar, honey and vanilla to blend; beat in chocolate mixture to blend; add flour mixture and beat to blend. Stir in nuts. Turn into an 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan whose bottom has been lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until edges come away slightly from pan — 40 minutes; a cake tester inserted in center will not come out clean. Cool on wire rack for 15 minutes; turn out on rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up; cool completely. Cut into squares. Makes 16.

2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3rd cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1-3rd cup granulated sugar
2 large eggs
1 cup pureed ripe banana
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 cup chopped (medium-coarse) walnuts

Stir together the flours, baking powder, baking soda and salt; stir in the sugars. In a medium mixing bowl beat together the eggs, pureed bananas and melted butter to blend; add flour mixture and stir only until blended. Fold in nuts. Turn into a greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 1 hour. Turn out on wire rack to cool. The loaf is more crunchy than moist.

Irish-American Story Recounted In 'Golden Clan'

THE GOLDEN CLAN. By John Corry. Houghton Mifflin. 187 Pages. $8.95.

As a boy in the 1870s, Thomas Edward Murray was shoveling snow one day in front of one of the great homes of Albany, N.Y., when its owner, Gen. Sebastian Visscher Talcott, on a whim invited the lad inside. Talcott was impressed and invited him back later for a meal of, among other things, roast beef, horseradish and whipped cream — all exotic foods to the young Irish-American. Before it ended Talcott said, "I think you'll be President of the United States one day."

Murray, devoutly religious and later a prolific inventor, did not become President but his talents brought him great wealth. This history of the Irish-American rich by John Corry tells how the Murrays, Cuddihys, Kennedys, McDonnells and other members of the exclusive clan used their wealth and how they lived.

As the reader, with Corry's help, rubs shoulders with the Irish rich and their clergy, he discovers that in their quest for social approval they acted as hyphenated Americans always have acted. They kept to themselves, forming their own world and their own aristocracy, doing it all better than was done by those they thought disdained them and their values.

The world created by the Murrays and their clan is now vanished but, whatever else one may think of it, it is probably true, as Corry says, that while it lasted it stood as a beacon for countless other Irish-American families as it turned Protestant disdain into respect and finally envy. And that is an old American story.

Coppel Spins A Fine Web Of Intrigue

THE DRAGON. By Alfred Coppel. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 438 Pages. $10.

Alfred Coppel, a former fighter pilot, unfolds much of this tale of international intrigue through the eyes of Harry Grant, a pilot and trusted friend of the president of the United States.

Grant is dispatched by the president to London to seek, from a possible Soviet defector, clues to an imminent change of leadership in Russia. The president plans a peace-making tour across the Atlantic, but faces an unknown: reports that China has built a laser weapon called "The Dragon" that will disrupt the balance of power.

The action is centered in England, where Grant, prepared with but a hasty briefing before his journey, runs into puzzles thicker than a London fog. What he eventually learns explains the ominous events occurring behind the Iron Curtain.

This novel shows that the world is not a chess board, that the failings and virtues of men more often than not divert the course charted by logic and computers. Thus, characters here are as important as plot.

Coppel is at his best when he pictures the Russians caught up in the web: the intelligence agent pursuing the Dragon in the vast no-man's-land of the Sino-Soviet frontier, the young military genius rising to power, the aging Kremlin ministers he confounds. Perhaps they are interesting because we are unfamiliar with their real life counterparts.

But some of the American characters portrayed — the bumbling, political hack vice president, the senator who maliciously meddles with CIA secrets, the Marxist reporter who publishes them — lack the ring of credibility.

THE FREE LUNCH BUSINESS

President Carter in his populist-style campaign for the presidency, railed against the special interests in Washington. Presumably the President maintains his own list of good friends, wise consultants and special groups that he consults from time to time on legislation.

Indentifying special interests is a difficult political problem and is overlaid with name-calling from those across the party fences.

If the Chamber of Commerce lobbies Republicans, is the Chamber viewed as a special interest pleader by Democrats? You bet.

If the AFL-CIO does the same thing for Democrats, are the union leaders viewed as special interest pleaders by Republicans? You bet.

It would be handy if there were an easy way to sort out genuine special interests. Unfortunately, there is no clear path through this muddy, well-trampled field, only a few sign-posts.

One of those signposts is money.

Suppose you met a special interest walking down the street and it offered you lunch or dinner. "Well," you say, "no harm in that."

Suppose it added a weekend of trout fishing in Wyoming. 'Hmmmmmm."

Suppose it hinted at a little booze and sex. "Now wait just a moment. It's stepping over the line."

Then let's go back to lunch. Suppose it called and said it wanted to take you to a $25 lunch but can't make it today so it is sending over the cash instead. "Graft. Bribery. Corruption."

So even the money guidelines are not too clear.

The broader test is whether a piece of legislation focuses narrowly on rewarding a special class of citizens or whether all Americans seem to benefit from its passage. But this can be as complicated as the money problem. Lobbyists concentrate on this national interest argument and many times it veils a fairly narrow interest.

Let us say the B1 bomber calls for using flanges. The lobbyist for the Penultimate Flange Co. wants lots of B1s produced and argues that the bomber is in the national interest, which it may be. But most of all it is good for Penultimate so he is hooking his flange to a star.

Some of our more base politicians have veiled pleas for their personal interests by raising the "national interest." President Nixon, for example, in refusing to turn over White House tapes in the Watergate affair, argued that sacred national interests - the separation of powers, executive privilege, the need for privacy in White House conversations - were more important than evidence needed in a criminal case against his White House aides. The Supreme Court disagreed.

It is difficult to make our way across these fields. We are left hoping our political leaders are skillful enough to realize where broad national concerns lie. And it is up to us to yell at them and vote them out of office when they fail.

Meanwhile, the politicians should remember the old saying, "There is no such thing as a free lunch."

SEXUAL EQUALITY IN UNIFORM

It seems obvious to us that flying an airplane is one line of work in which women - given half a chance - should be able to excel.

Women in the average are smaller than men and maneuver better in tight quarters. They often have more manual dexterity than men. And if life expectancy tables are any idication, they do well under stresses and strains.

Yet the Air Force is only now beginning to recognize that fact. The first group of 10 female pilots will be graduated from flying school Sept. 2 at Williams Air Force Base in Arizona. A second group will go into training this fall.

The main hangup, of course, has been the legal restriction against women in combat - a restriction, by the way, that seems pretty archaic in this day and age.

The Air Force plans to get around the no-combat rule by assigning its female pilots to cargo planes, aerial tankers, weather reconnaissance, medical evacuation and other non-combat missions.

As more women are trained, however, the law should be changed so women are able to fly fighter planes, bombers and other combat aircraft along with men.

Without a draft to fall back on, all the services are reexamining their attitudes toward women. The Army, for example, is sending female soldiers on field maneuvers in West Germany next month. Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor wants to send women to sea.

A long way from the age of sheltered femininity, perhaps, but still a long way to go before women are given the military opportunities they should have.

DID ASSASSINS ACT ALONE?

Perhaps this explains why the JFK case is coming back to life.

According to a recent Gallup Poll, 80 per cent of Americans do not belive the Warren Commission finding that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The proportion of people who feel that others were involved in the killing has risen significantly. Only 50 per cent expressed that view in a similar poll in January, 1967.

The latest poll, published December 26, also found that 69 per cent of those queried believe that James Early Ray was not the only person involved in the 1968 killing of the civil rights leader, the Rev. Martin Luther King, jr.

Ray pleaded guilty of the killing and is serving a 99-year sentence. Now he claims that he was "framed." But the Supreme Court has refused to hear his appeal for a chance to change his plea to not guilty.

Also, the deeper investigators for the House committee dig into buried documents, the more mysteries they find.

Here are some of questions raised by long-secret records:

--Was Oswald paid $6,500 in the Cuban Embassy in Mexico City to plot the assassination of President Kennedy, as one witness claimed?

– Why was that witness not questioned more thoroughly? And why were other key witnesses never questioned about Oswald's mysterious visits to Cuban and Soviet officials in Mexico City two months before Kennedy was shot?

– Why was Thomas Mann, then ambassador to Mexico offered by the State Department to drop the invitations of those visits that were being made in Mexico City?

– With Oswald's record -- as a defector to Russia who returned to the U.S. with a Russian wife -- why was he not under close surveillance when Kennedy made his fatal visit to Dallas?

– Why did the Warren Commission apparently ignore evidence that its own investigatorn said "points toward a possible conclusion of foreign involvement?"

Even if the investigations merely confirm the original findings, they would be worthwhile in settling doubts.

HOW MANY VICTIMS IN VIETNAM PRISON CAMPS?

On June 16 and 21 a subcommittee of the House of Representatives heard testimony on the question of human rights (and wrongs) in Vietnam since the Communist conquest of South Vietnam in April 1975.

At the June 16 hearing, Father Andre Gelinas, a French-Canadian Jesuit priest whose 19 years of residence in Vietnam included 15 months under Communist rule in Saigon, told the committee that the people of Vietnam are "in a terrible state because of the oppressive rule of the government." He said that something very tragic was happening there and that what was needed was a full-scale investigation and exposure.

Fr. Gelinas had previously published a detailed account of conditions in South Vietnam under Communist rule in L'Express of Paris, and later in The New York Review of Books which had considerable impact in intellectual circles in this country, since it sharply contradicted rosier views.

Fr. Gelinas told the committee how the state of human rights had fared since the Communists took control of Saigon. He said the first thing they did was to completely suppress freedom of speech, press and imformation. He said that before the Communist takeover there were 27 daily newspapers in Saigon, about 200 scholarly, literary and technical journals, numerous other magazines, three television channels, and about 24 radio stations.

The Communists immediately closed all of these media of communications. Not only that, but back issues of papers, magazines, records and cassettes were confiscated and burned in huge bonfires in the streets.

He said the only source of information was one television channel owned and operated by the government, devoted exclusively to government propaganda, two radio stations and three daily newspapers. He said that all were filled with the same progaganda dictated by the party-controlled news agency.

Fr. Gelinas said that people were imprisoned without trial, without a hearing, and, indeed, without even being accused of a crime. He said that 300,000 men had been imprisoned for over two years with no charges having been filed against them. These are mainly labeled "re-education camps," which are really concentration camps.

Fr. Gelinas said that no one knew precisely how many prisoners there were, since the Communists were not very communicative on this score. He based his estimate of 300,000 on these observations:

1. All of the regular prisons were crowded and two new ones had been built in Saigon since the Communists took over.

2. Virtually all of the former BOQs (bachelor officers quarters) and BEQs (enlisted quarters) of the American military forces were now being used as prisons, with as many as 26 Vietnamese prisoners occupying a bedroom formerly used for one American soldier.

3. He had received word of some 60 to 90 newly established work camps from his sources around the country, although the location of most of these camps is secret. These camps reportedly had a minimum population of 3,500 prisoners each, giving a range of from 210,000 to 315,000 prisoners in the camps.

4. In saigon, 60 to 85 per cent of the educated men were sent off to the camps. Since Vietnam had a relatively high proportion of educated people, Gelinas thought that the number imprisoned by the Communists could hardly be less than 300,000.

5. Finally, Fr. Gelinas pointed out that General Tran Van Tra, who had command of Saigon for the first nine months of Communist rule , said when he was replaced in January 1976 that hundreds of thousands of men were under reeducation. Fr. Gelinas said that the general may have leaked this figure because he was a southerner.

Recently, Fr. Gelinas said, the authorities in Vietnam had been putting out a figure of 30,000 to 40,000 for the number of prisoners in the camps. He felt that this was far off the mark, for the reasons stated above.

One reason we are printing this latest report on the real situation in Vietnam is that the media coverage of the hearing at which Fr. Gelinas testified was zero, according to Accuracy In Media Inc. (AIM). Why this silence? That is what we would very much like to know.

Although, in the optimistic 1960s, commentators yielded several times to the temptation of proclaiming the demise of the business cycle, the 1970s have made it plain that the business cycle is still alive and well. Indeed, cyclical economic movements have occurred from time to time during our entire 200-year history as a nation, and it seems safest to assume that they will continue in the future.

Accordingly, we should not ask whether, but when, the present period of business expansion will end in a recession. In addition, since recessions have varied greatly in severity and duration, we should ask how long the next recession will last and how severe it will be.

Length of Current Expansion

First, there are grounds for believing that the present period of rising business still has several years to go. Second, present circumstances suggest that the next recession, when it comes, will be relatively brief and mild.

Periods of business expansion (from the trough of the last recession to the peak preceding the next one) have in the past averaged three years in length. If that average were to prevail this time, the current economic expansion, which began more than two years ago, should terminate in another recession some time in 1978.

But the expansion which began in early 1975 has been a typical in several respects which lead one to believe that it can last longer than the average of the past. First, the rate of recovery has been unusually slow this time. Industrial production, which typically takes about one year to return to its pre-recession peak, took two years this time. The slow pace of the recovery suggests that it can last longer than similar periods in the past which got off to a more rapid start.

Second, the ratio of business inventories to sales, which typically begins rising about a year before a general business downturn, is still trending downward, We appear to be in no imminent danger of a period when business finds itself overstocked and holds off on production until its inventories are worked off.

Finally, there are no signs of a capital goods boom, which has usually been the last stage of a period of business expansion. It may seem strange that this is viewed as an optimistic sign since much concern has been expressed about the failure of capital goods spending to show a strong upward trend during this recovery.

The fact is, however, that business spending for plant and equipment is a lagging indicator. It takes off in a period of recovery well after other sectors of the economy, and it usually is most ebullient just at the time when the rest of the economy has already turned downward.

The fact that capital spending has not been ebullient so far suggests that this recovery is still a youthful one with a long life ahead of it.

In my Reno office one afternoon, I examined one of my elderly patients, who was recovering from a fracture of the shoulder. To my surprise, I found that her shoulder motion had improved remarkably since her last visit.

"I have a new exercise," she said proudly. "Three or four times a week, I take two rolls of nickels downtown and play the slot machines. My friends tease me, but I tell them it's cheaper than extra visits to the doctor."

Fishy Alliances: Militant Environmentalists Plan Costly strategy of Fear, Nuclear Plant Road Blockades, Massive Invasions

NEW YORK— It just isn't possible to wander around much of our land without becoming enmeshed in a network of professionally passionate environmentalists who are determined to prevent the building of 160 nuclear power plants, and to stall those already under construction and actually to decommission huge atomic installations now providing desperately needed electricity.

This ecological network is spawned or inspired by the New England Clamshell Alliance, which already has an outpost on the West Coast in the California Abalone Alliance and in New Jersey in the Barnacle Alliance and in Oregon in the Trojan Decommissin Alliance and back in its pilgrim's progress to New England's Coalition on Nuclear Pollution and down again to the New Jersey Congress Against Nuclear Power. There are many others in this strange network.

With their invasions of construction sites, plant gates, camp-ins and outs, demonstrations and court intervenings it's estimated they have cost the public utilities and the public law and order authorities of this land hundreds of millions of dollars in the past few years.

Sooner or later it all goes into the householder's electric bill and national cost of production and living.

These alliances are led by men and women who run each umbrella operation like joint chiefs of staff. For example, on May 21, and again on June 25, a small group of environmentalists met in New Brunswick, N.J. For supposedly non-violent, gentle people, they listened to some rough strategy -- not the least of which was a proposal to blockade roads over which run trucks carrying nuclear waste material.

Spreading "fear" was one of the most viable weapons. It was all carefully outlined as the means for building "a new society."

The 40 or 50 activists present at this opening planning session for the launching of the Coalition for Responsible Power Policies were told that the following tactics would most effectively cause heavy expenditures by the state and its public utilities.

These are the "direct action" proposals.

— Picket all banks dealing with the utility companies in New Jersey.

— Orchestrate demonstrations and confrontations at all utility plants including locations of operation of nuclear power stations and the "site locations of future installations."

— Picket all suppliers of parts and equipment for nuclear power plants. Picket the Public Service Electric and Gas Co., Jersey Central Power and Light Co., and the Atlantic City Electric Co. Any interruptions of operation at these installations would black out whole communities.

— Block routes used by trucks transporting waste materials from existing nuclear power stations.

— Orchestrate demonstrations at nuclear waste disposal facilities.

— Post a call for nuclear resistance at all nuclear power stations.

— Employ fear tactics in order to arouse favorable public opinion and support.

— Organize and implement a maximum effort public demonstration in Atlantic City to protest plans for the construction of a floating nuclear power facility off the coast.

These maneuvers are characteristic of the other self-created anti-nuclear centers, institutes, councils, coalitions and now piscatorial alliances allegedly specifically dedicated to live fish, fowl, fresh air and forests.

Furthermore, one of the briefing officers at the May 21 Jersey strategy conference said all tactics must be geared to making things as financially burdensome as possible for the establishment.

"If it cost New Hampshire only $50,000 a day we are going to make sure that it is going to cost the utilities in New Jersey more than $100,000 a day," said another speaker according to one participant.

This was a reference to the May Day invasion of the New Hampshire Public Service Co. Seabrook construction site where a $2 billion atomic power plant has been stalled by environmentalists' legal action. At least 1,414 jubilant Clamshell gladiators were arrested.

But this is unshelled peanuts compared to what the delay in Seabrook construction cost the utility as it fought the Clamshell coalition for the right to build. The tab ran to $15 million a month for a year -- at least -- while the fight went on in court and at federal nuclear review boards for permission to continue construction. Thousands of jobs were lost for the duration.

Then on July 26, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's Atomic Safety Licensing and Appeal Board said it's all safe, go ahead and build an atomic power plant.

But in less than a fortnight the friend of the Clamshells known as the New England Coalition on Nuclear Pollution sped to the defense of Atlantic Ocean fish by rushing to the First Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston seeking the issuance of a writ for the permanent halt of all construction at Seabrook.

In one fashion or another Seabrook is the profile of environmentalist action at 160 nuclear power plants on order, on drawing boards or under construction.

Split wood, not atoms, cry the environmentalists. That sure will get up a head of steam when winter comes and power is scarce and plants shut down and jobless lines are heavy at the unemployment offices.

Those alliances should come out of their shells into the world of realism. It's tough enough to earn one's daily bread.

U.S. Rolled Out Red Carpet For Visiting Bulgarian Official

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — For 25 years, the State Dept. has been arbitrarily blocking selected Communists from entering the United States by invoking a law from the Red Scare days of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

The McCarran Act, passed in 1952, established nearly 30 categories of people who could not visit the United States unless they were recommended for visa waivers by the State Dept. Among the undesirables were prostitutes, polygamists, paupers and advocates of the "international doctrines of world communism."

Now, thanks to a recent bill passed by Congress, the McCarran Act will soon be less restrictive. Over the years, nevertheless, the law has often been selectively applied. Out of some 19,000 waiver applications last year, for example, only about a thousand were denied.

During the Richard Nixon-Henry Kissinger era, Communist leaders from Western Europe were considered anathema, because official visits to the United States would give them credibility at home. In 1975, for instance, a prominent Italian Communist, Sergio Segre, was invited to speak at the New York Council on Foreign Relations. The waiver was denied and the conference had to be cancelled.

Communists who were critical of U.S. allies were also considered verboten by the Nixon administration. One such case involved a prominent British citizen, Carmel Budiardjo, who wanted to lecture in the United States on human rights violations in Indonesia. Under pressure from the Indonesian government, the State Dept. temporarily withheld her visa on the grounds that she had previously lied about being a Communist from 1946 to 1948.

In contrast, Communists who have the State Dept. seal of approval are speedily granted visa waivers and are ushered in on a red carpet.

Take Vulkan Shopov, chief of agriculture for the Bulgarian Communist party. As an Eastern European Communist, in an era of detente, he is ardently courted by U.S. diplomats.

Shopov came to the United States in June at the invitation of the State Dept. The U.S. taxpayers footed the bill for his month-long visit, including ravel expenses to and from Bulgaria.

In a May 9 cable to the State Dept., the U.S. ambassador in Sofia, Martin Herz, was ecstatic about Shopov's pending tour. "Embassy strongly believes (Shopov) must be accorded VIP status as far as (expenses) and general treatment is concerned," exclaimed Herz.

The Communist leader, cabled the ambassador, should be taken to a "Southeastern agricultural region, including visit to Atlanta or other Southern city"; the Great Plains wheat, corn and soybean region; and the Western states.

In general, wrote Herz, Shopov "would like to see most advanced forms of American agricultural technology. He has said he expects to work hard during the visit."

Despite the distinguished Bulgarian's announced intention to keep his nose to the grindstone, Herz suggested some lavish entertainment for the visitor:

"He would appreciate chance to see modern American dance (though we suspect anything too avant garde would not go down well; believe American Ballet Theater, Alvin Ailey or Eliot Feld would be just about right), Broadway show (suggest, if possible, 'A Chorus Line' or 'Bubbling Brown Sugar'). Opera, or orchestral concerts. Shopov not interested in jazz or rock."

The ambassador added a "special note." In his talks with Shopov, wrote Herz, the Bulgarian made a "special point of saying he does not want to bump into correspondents from (Radio Free Europe) while in U.S., and does not wish to give interview to (Voice of America) ... He asked that interpreter not be 'political immigrant' ..."

Shopov had been assured, the ambassador stated, "that interpreter would be selected in such fashion as to assure there would be absolutely no political embarrassment."

When he finally arrived in the United States, Shopov was taken to the Smithsonian, the Kennedy Center, colonial Williamsburg, Va., and to other spots around the country.

But the scholarly Shopov, a State Dept. official told us, "squeezed in" the cultural sights only when he had spare time. The Bulgarian decided to forego Disneyland, which "disappointed" State Dept. officials.

Footnote: While Communists need waivers to visit the United States, leaders of repressive right-wing regimes such as Chile, South Korea and Argentina, can come and go as they wish.

Watch on Waste: The government gives out awards for outstanding performances by employees, which translate into higher salaries and rapid promotions. At the Patent and Trademark Office, however, a startling 75 per cent of its 2,955 workers received such awards in 1976. The rest of the Commerce Dept. gave awards to a mere 39 per cent of its workers. "It's not a giveaway," a spokesman insisted, "it really is hard-earned."

BILL D. BURLISON

WASHINGTON D.C. -- My purpose in this newsletter is to give you a status report on the Fiscal Year 1978 Defense Appropriations Bill. As a Member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense I spend a good deal of my time attending hearings, committee meetings, and bill markups, plus supporting the proposed Defense Appropriations bill on the House Floor and in Joint Conference with our Senate counterparts. Incidentally, we have just finished the conference on this year's bill. Final Congressional approval and submission to the President will probably come early in September.

As one might expect, the bill is a large one: over $110 billion. There are those who would object to so much money being spent on Defense while we have so many pressing domestic demands that should be met. However, in the words of Chairman Mahon (D-Tex.) "preventing World War III is what this bill is all about," and that can be an expensive proposition. In the current bill we are about $5 billion above the defense bill of last year; and when we add on the supplemental appropriations for next year, it will be about $7.5 billion above the current fiscal year. This new budget authority would be roughly $6.8 billion less than President Ford's original request, and about $4 billion less than President Carter's amended budget request.

These final totals could be influenced to the tune of over $1 billion by the President's decision in late June to shelve the B-1 bomber. As you may have heard, the House conferees did not agree to go along with the Senate in the deletion of the production funds in FY 1978. This means that this portion of the bill will be taken back to the House Floor in disagreement, thereby necessitating a House vote on whether or not to uphold the President's decision. It's my personal viewpoint that the President's decision on FY '78 funding will prevail, as was the case in the Senate. It should be noted that the House took its vote prior to the President's decision.

The President's decision to kill the B-1 bomber program and go ahead with the development of the cruise missile, a winged pilotless craft, caught nearly everyone by surprise. There are good arguments for both sides in this controversy. The B-1 would have the capability of making low level penetrations into the heart of the Soviet Union carrying a multi-faceted arsenal of weapons. This low level penetration capability minimizes the chances of detection by current warning systems and increases the probability of success. A counter argument is that the Soviets are developing a version of the U. S. Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) aircraft with an improved low level detection capability. There is also a good argument for retaining the recall capability of the manned bomber. This would give the President more flexibility in situations now requiring extensive airborne alerts.

On the other hand, the system is very expensive. Carter and his advisors view the cruise missile as the United States' best, affordable hedge against growing Soviet might, and do not intend to significantly compromise on it in strategic arms talks expected to resume in October. In the meantime, a supplemental budget will be submitted expediting the development of the cruise missile and modifications of aircraft to carry the missile. Aircraft to be considered include the later models of the B52 and the Boeing 747 and MDC DC10 wide-bodied transports. The Authorizing Committees are already holding hearings on these programs.

Of particular interest to the 10th District of Missouri is the status of funding for the Defense Mapping Agency's Aerospace Center and McDonnell Douglas Corporation's Defense contracts. The couple of hundred or so constituents who work at the Aerospace Center will be interested in the fact that the DMA funding for FY 1978 exceeds that of the current year by some $7 million.

Major Defense programs of the McDonnell-Douglas Corporation, which employs about 800 residents of the 10th District, are as follows:

a. The Air Force F15 Eagle -- the R F 15 is a twin engine single crew, fixed swept wing aircraft designed specifically for high maneuverability in air-to-air combat. It is the first U. S. fighter aircraft to possess a thrust to weight ratio greather than one to one. It has been called the world's best air superiority fighter.

Despite President Carter's proposal to cut the FY 1978 production rate to 78 aircraft, we were able to provide funds for 97 aircraft. This includes the funding necessary to commence installation of the PEP 2000 modification. (The expected buy of F15s by Japan and Saudia Arabia will also help this production line.)

b. The Navy-Marine Corps F18-A18 Hornet -- the F18 is a twin engine, single crew, carrier based, multimission tactical aircraft that can be configured with fighter or attack capabilities. It will replace F4s and eventually A7 aircraft in the Navy and Marine Corps.

In spite of determined and organized opposition to this program from competition companies, my colleagues and I were successful in providing the requested $626.6 million for Research and Development and $29.3 million for advance procurement. These advance procurement funds will be used to buy long leadtime items for a proposed buy of nine aircraft in FY 1979.

c. The Marine Corps AV8B -- Advanced Harrier -- The AV8B is an improved version of the Marine Corps' current short takeoff and landing aircraft. It is a single engine, single crew aircraft capable of operating either from ships or from Marine expeditionary landing fields. $60 million is appropriated for Research and Development.

d. Advanced Medium STOL Transport (AMST) -- The AMST program is designed to modernize the tactical airlift force with aircraft capable of jet speeds and operations form 2000 feet unimproved runways, while also having the capability to carry heavy outsized cargo into improved runways. Boeing and MDC have each built two prototypes for test and evaluation. A winner of this competition is to be selected and announced early next year. $10 million is appropriated for Research and Development.

e. Harpoon Missil -- Harpoon is an air-surface-sub-surface launched antiship cruise missile. It uses an active radar seeker, radar altimeter and altitude reference assembly in conjunction with a small digital computer for missile guidance and control. It is propelled by a turbo jet engine with a solid booster for ship launch. $112.5 million is appropriated for procurement of 234 Navy missiles.

I have two intelligence amendments involved in the conference. The one placing severe fiscal restraints on the CIA "Reserve" fund was agreed to. The one making it illegal to assassinate foreign leaders was lost in conference. I will be in a strategic position to continue efforts on this, having been appointed to the new House Select Committee on Intelligence.

Although we are approaching the final stages of preparing the FY 1978 Defense Appropriations Bill for the President's signature, this does not lead to a period of inactivity by the Defense Subcommittee. After obtaining approval of the conference report, in September, I anticipate a series of hearings on the President's recission of the FY '77 B-1 production funds and his supplemental budget request - emphasizing the development of cruise missiles and cruise missile carrying aircraft. After that, my Subcommittee will consider the routine supplemental appropriations bill and commence hearings on the President's FY Budget, to be submitted in January.

Captivating Stories In Pearl Buck Volume

THE LOVERS AND OTHER STORIES. By Pearl S. Buck. John Day. 212 Pages. $7.95.

Admirers of the writings of Pearl S. Buck are lucky. They have a vast selection of the Nobel and Pulitzer prize winning author's work to select from. A prolific writer, Miss Buck has more than 70 books to her credit and the late author apparently left much unpublished material behind after her death in 1973.

According to the publisher, only one of the items — a novelette and six short stories — appearing in "The Lovers and Other Strangers" has been previously published. Thus, Buck followers have a treat in store for them.

While all of the items included in the book are good, some are better than others. The best is a poignant story titled "Next Saturday And Forever." It's quite brief and perhaps its very briefness is what makes it such a memorable tale. It concerns a man and a woman, no longer young, who are in love. Unfortunately, both are married — although the woman's husband has deserted her — to others and they do have a number of children. They meet once a week in a restaurant for a few hours, and then part to return to their respective families and dream of their next meeting. A most effective, most touching story.

"The Man Called Dead" is a bittersweet story about an aging actor who never quite made it to the top — although he got close — and is spending his days in a seedy little room waiting for a break. Then, by mistake, a newspaper reports that he is dead and marvelous things begin to happen to Drake Forrester, including reunion with a love he thought he had lost for ever.

The remaining items aren't quite up to the level of these two, but they are well written and interesting.

Groups seek quick action

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chemical workers union and an environmental group are urging the government to move quickly against a pest-control substance suspected of causing sterility in men and cancer in animals. ## Park comes out of hiding

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Tongsun Park, the key figure in the South Korean influence-buying scandal in Washington, came out of hiding today and said he would not let American authorities question him. He told a news conference there is no need or any obligation for him to speak to American investigators probing allegations that Park was the South Korean government's chief payoff man in Washington.

Vance meets with Teng, Hua

PEKING (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance gets down to the chief business of his trip to China, closer relations between the U.S. and Chinese governments, at a meeting today with Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping. Vance met today for the third time with Foreign Minister Huang Hua. After the 2½-hour session, A State Department spokesman said the Chinese "made some points about normalization" of relations between Washington and Peking. He refused to elaborate.

Voyager may have stowaway

PASADENA, Calif.(AP) — Scientists believe the Voyager 2 space craft's erratic behavior after its launch last weekend may have been caused by a jettisoned rocket that bumped into it.

The 350-pound expended rocket, which should have fallen clear, may be tagging along with the unmanned space probe bound for Jupiter, Saturn and beyond, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory here said Tuesday.

For that reason, a maneuver planned for later this week to correct Voyager's course may be delayed while light-sensing instruments aboard the probe search for signs of the jettisoned rocket, called a propulsion module.

"No attempt will be made to fire maneuvering thrusters while there is a rocket close to the spacecraft," said project manager John Casani at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where the sister ship Voyager 1 is to blast off Sept. 3.

The twin space probes are intended to take photographs and make scientific observations of Jupiter and some of its moons in 1979, of Saturn and some of its moons in 1980 and 1981, and perhaps Uranus.

Rock star sued for $15 million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock star Rod Stewart has been sued for $15 million by Swedish actress Britt Eklund, with whom he lived for 2½ years.

The couple split up 10 days ago when Stewart moved out of the home they shared in the exclusive Holmby Hills section of Los Angeles.

Miss Eklund's complaint states that the couple began living together two days after they met in March 1975, and that a few weeks later they publicly announced their "love relationship" and intent to deemphasize her career to further his.

The actress claims that she helped to promote his record albums, applied his makeup at rock concerts and counseled and supported him in his career.

Her help contributed to $10 million of Stewart's earnings and another pending $20 million recording contract, the complaint states.

Miss Eklund asks the court to order Stewart to continue paying the mortgage on her home and to pay her $5,000 a month support until the suit is settled.

Licensing committee named

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two psychologists, two university teachers and a researcher were named today to the new state Committee of Psychologists to administer the new state law licensing psychologists practicing in Missouri.

Named to the five-member board were Norman J. Matulef, a practicing psychologist in St. Louis; Franklin C. Boraks, a practicing psychologist in Kansas City; Prentice Gautt, a faculty member at the University of Missouri+Columbia; A. Samuel Oliveri, a faculty member at Harris+Stowe College in St. Louis, and Kathryn Cramer, a researcher at St. Louis University.

The new committee will begin work Sept. 28, making Missouri the last state to enact state regulation of psychologists. In signing the new law earlier this year, Gov. Joseph Teasdale said it would correct many of the abuses by unqualified persons acting as psychologists in Msssouri.

Beginning in September 1978, all persons seeking to practice psychology in Missouri will have to meet certain minimum standards and be licensed by the state.

Wheat cutback considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is considering reducing U.S. wheat production by 25 per cent in order to provide farmers with some relief from depressed prices in a year of record crops.

Already, a surplus of 1.1 billion bushels of wheat in the wake of bumper crops worldwide has depressed farmers' prices to the levels of the early 1970s. With another huge crop comingn in this year, prices aren't expected to rise.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said he recommended the cutback to President Carter during a White House meeting Tuesday.

Bergland said a decision on whether to recommend reductions in feedgrain acreage would be deferred until midSeptember to assure that unexpected bad weather does not undercut present predictions of a near-record crop.

Access to Nixon boxes sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the strenuous objections of Richard Nixon, the federal government is seeking to rummage through boxes he left behind to see if they contain clues to the whereabouts of valuable gifts from foreign dignitaries.

At stake in the federal court hearing is more than just a listing of the gifts, some of which may be "missing" through poor record-keeping.

The hearing, scheduled for today, is the government's first attempt to search the materials in its possession since the Supreme Court awarded custody to Uncle Sam — specifying that strict regulations must govern access. It also is Nixon's first chance to challenge those rules.

While the fight over custody of Nixon's papers, tapes and other materials was going through the courts, the boxes remained untouched under court order. Now that the case is settled regulations for government access have gone into effect and rules for public access are being considered by Congress.

Last month, State Department Chief of Protocol Evan S. Dobelle wrote the General Services Administration that "questions have arisen" about the location of foreign gifts to Nixon and his family. Publicly, at least, Dobelle didn't spell out the questions or who asked them.

Meyer heads state board of Education

JEFFERSON CITY – Larry W. Meyer, an Aurora attorney, is the new president of the State Board of Education. He was elected during the board's meeting at St. Louis, Aug. 19.

Also at the meeting, Dr. R. Jerome Williams, a St. Louis physician, submitted his resignation from the board, effective immediatley. Dr. Williams was appointed to the board in 1974 and served as vice-president during the past year. He cited the demands of his medical practice as the reason for his resignation. His resignation creates one vacancy on the eight-member State Board of Education.

Meyer was appointed to the board in 1975. He began his law practice at Aurora, located in Lawrence County in southwest Missouri, in 1968 after graduating from the University of Arkansas School of Law. He succeeds John M. Morris, Jr., a Rolla businessman, as president of the board.

Cooking Up With Cherie

By Cherie Blanton

This is really yummy.

4-Day Cake

This is to be made and chilled in icebox for four days before you even serve it. Won't work if you try to eat it any sooner.

Crush one pound of vanilla wafers. Place half in bottom of large flat buttered casserole.

Cream ½ pound of real butter, softened with 3 cups powdered sugar. When nice and creamy add 6 egg yolks and stir.

Add one cup chopped pecans.

Fold in 6 egg whites, beaten stiff.

Pour this over your crumbs and top with the rest of them. Four days later have a feast.

Shrimp & Crab

This will get your hubby to buy you this new bauble you want.

Make a fairly thickwhite sauce. Sprinkle with a little bit of garlic powder. Melt a great big hunk of cheese in the sauce.

Grease a square pyrex.

Chop up some onion, celery and green pepper finely. Mix with cut up cooked shrimp and crabmeat. Put in pyrex and cover with sauce. Sprinkle some Parmesan and pagrika over top. Bake at 350 degrees till bubbly. Sorry about the proportions. Just use your own judgement depending on how much shrimp and crab you have.

Spinach Parmesan

Cook three pounds frozen spinach. Chop and drain well.

Saute 6 TBS minced onion in 5 TBS butter.

Add 6 TBS Parmesan cheese, 6 TBS heavy cream and ¼ cup cracker crumbs.

Put in butter casserole top with more cracker crumbs and bake 15 minutes at 375 degrees. Divine.

Emily's Salad

Dissolve one package lime gelatin in one cup heated pineapple juice. Cool till slightly thick.

Cream one cup real mayonnaise with two-6oz. pkg. cream cheese. Mix in gelatin.

Add one cup well drained crushed pineapple, one cup chopped pecans and one pint of whipped cream.

Mix, refrigerate and enjoy when firm.

Caramel Peaches

8 fresh peaches
4 TBS butter
8 TBS brown sugar

Peel, halve and remove stones. Place hollow side up in frying pan. Put dabs of sugar and butter in center. Fry over low heat, turning once until juice becomes syrupy. Add more sugar for thicker syrup. Serve hot or cold with ice cream.

Signs go up for Cooking School

Phyliss Young of Birmingham, Ala. and a representative of the Progressive Farmer's Southern Kitchens Cooking School visited with Sikeston merchants Tuesday to set plans for the third annual cooking school which is co-sponsored by the Daily Standard. Miss Young helps Allen Blanton, editor of the Daily Standard to place one of the many signs designating the Standard as a ticket spot. Admission to the school is free if you have a ticket.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — When making ladies slacks I press the creases in before sewing them together. I find this makes it easier to get, or make, a nice straight crease. I fold each piece in the center — the front crease is straight up and the back is slanted toward the top of the slacks. I do hope this proves as easy for others as it has been for me. — MRS. M.O.

DEAR POLLY — My teenager is a great little cook but after a while I discovered we had accumulated a drawer full of rubber spatulas with broken handles. I remedied this situation by buying five-eighths inch wooden dowel sticks at the hardware store. Then I shaved the end that is inserted in the rubber top for a good fit and sanded the other end to make a round handle. These are even better and stronger than new. One dowel makes three handles. — MARY C.

DEAR POLLY — To make an excellent clothes brush for removing hair, dust, lint or dandruff wrap a strip of adhesive backed plastic tape around your fingers with the sticky side out. — M.K.

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Dear Ann Landers

Nouse, bubble bath won't help

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the husband who complained because his wife was not interested in sex. You told him to sharpen up his technique, take her to a motel -- away from the kids -- buy her a new nightie and some bubble bath. Well, dear, there's a lot more to it than that.

There is nothing wrong with my husband's technique, but I have very little interest in sex. Why? Because Larry is a "joiner." He is involved in almost every organization in the community. He has meetings every night and sleeps all weekend so he can start going to meetings again on Monday.

Larry is very handy at fixing things but there are at least two dozen things that need to be done around here which he can't do because he is too busy. I take out the garbage, pay the bills, do all the repairs I know how, write to his parents, mow the lawn, etc. He'd be completely helpless if I died suddenly.

The children hardly know him. I do all the disciplining, help them with their homework and put them to bed.

Larry is a good man and would be terribly hurt if he knew I was writing this letter. I've tried to talk to him but he cannot see my point of view and I know he will never change.

When he turns to me at night and tries to get romantic, I don't feel loved. I feel used. I don't refuse him but I don't enjoy him. I'm not asking for advice. It's hopeless. Sign me -- Bubble Bath Won't Help

Dear Friend: True, bubble bath won't -- but counseling might. You need to understand why Larry finds more satisfaction out of the house than in. If he could skip a meeting and go with you to a therapist or clergyman it would be a giant step in the right direction.

Your defeatist attitude is another clue. You sound like a downer. The clubwork is an upper. People tend to gravitate toward places that give them a lift. So get going, honey. You need outside help.

Dear Ann Landers: In two months I will be marrying a lovely girl. I need a quick answer from someone who knows more about weddings and good taste than I do.

It's going to be a large wedding and I've offered to help defray part of the expenses. My future in-laws say they can handle it. (She is their only daughter.)

The thing that bothes me most is they plan to have artificial flowers, not only on the altar but even the corsages and boutonnieres. When my mother is handed a corsage of wax flowers I don't want to be anywhere around. She will just die.

It isn't as if the wedding is planned for the dead of winter when flowers are expensive. There will be loads of fresh flowers around at reasonable prices in August. Please, Ann, comment. -- Bachelor Button

Dear Button: I'm a great one to tell people to MYOB but not this time. Your wedding is your business even though you aren't paying for it.

Insist on buying the flowers as your "love contribution" to the happiest day of your life. Then make a date with a florist. Artificial corsages at a wedding would be the pits!

Personal injury suit asks $95,890

BENTON— A four-count personal injuries suit seeking $95,890 was filed Friday in Scott County Circuit Clerks office by Judy Ann Reynolds and Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds by next of friend Judy Ann and James Earl Reynolds of New Madrid County against Robert William Sitzes of Sikeston Route One.

The suit is a result of a vehicle accident at 1:20 p.m. Sept. 24, 1976 on U.S. Highway 61, one and seven tenths mile south of Highway 60 in New Madrid County.

The suit alleges that at that time Judy Ann Reynolds was operating her car in a northerly direction with Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds passengers in her car, when Sitzes, operating a 1972 pickup truck in a northerly direction on highway 61, negligently, without warning and at an excessive rate of speed, passed the Reynolds car, then swerved immediately back in front of the Reynolds car and without warning or signaling stopped in the northbound lane, forcing Judy Reynolds to make an emergency application of her car brakes to avert a collision with the Sitzes pickup, which caused her car to go out of control, traveling into the southbound lane of Highway 61 and colliding with a two-ton truck traveling in a southerly direction.

As a result of the collision, count one of the suit states that Judy Ann, Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds, all were caused to suffer severe, permanent and progressive injuries.

Count one of the suit also alleges that Judy Ann Reynolds also suffered a disfiguring cut to the face and a cerebral concussion.

In count one Judy Ann Reynolds seeks $25,000 for personal injuries.

In count two Rebecca Marie Reynolds, alleges the same charges in count one and also charges that she suffered a fractured tooth and a fractured jaw and seeks $10,000 for personal injuries.

Count three of the suit, on behalf of Jimmie Daniel Reynolds, alleges charges in count one and also states that he suffered a fracture to the right leg and seeks $35,000 for personal injuries.

In count four, Judy Ann and James Earl Reynolds, state that as a result of the accident caused by Sitzes negligence they have incurred expenses for the injuries sustained by Judy Ann, Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds and seek damages in the aamount of $25,000 and damages for the loss of their auto in the amount of $890.

Know anyone who has $100,000 to give away?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Somewhere in this country there's a philanthropist who'd be glad to hand over $100,000 to Gregg Charbonett. Or at least that's what Charbonett hopes.

Last week, the 28-year-old truck warehouseman from Memphis purchased an ad in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that read: "Nice young family would like $100,000 to enable us to travel the world."

"I wanted to see what would happen," Charbonett explained.

This is Charbonett's second try at "fund raising." Last August and October he placed an ad asking for $1 million in the Houston Post and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

So far, he's received no reply from last week's add, but last year he got four letters back, all in answer to the Post ad. One included a dollar bill.

"The dollar was from a very sweet lady who wrote, 'Congratulations on doing what I have thought about for years but never had the courage. I hope you get a million letters like mine with one dollar enclosed,' " Charbonett said.

Still, Charbonett remains hopeful that his ad will strike a generous chord in a wealthy person who'd be "happy to part with a million dollars or a hundred thousand for a person of good character who will use it well."

"It might be done from a capricious kindness if the idea struck just in the right way at the right time, or maybe from a desire to see someone young and 'starry-eyed' carrying out dreams like those he or she once had but no longer felt or could pursue," he said.

Charbonett's wife, Elona, takes a less idealistic attitude toward her husband's enterprise.

"She's much more realistic about it and knows there's not much chance of success," he said. "It doesn't excite her at all, but it's exciting to me."

UNLV might get probation

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A Las Vegas newspaper reported today that the NCAA will soon announce that the basketball program at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas will be placed on two years probation, but the school's top official says he's not aware of such sanctions—yet.

The Las Vegas Sun, quoting unnamed sources, said the UNLV basketball program will be placed on two years probation, probably within a week.

According to the Sun, the sanctions are:

—Prohibition against post season tourney play.

—A recruiting limit of three players per year.

—Five persons may be required to permanently disassociate themselves from the program.

—And coach Jerry Tarkanian's job may be on the line, at least during the probationary period.

UNLV President Dr. Donald Baepler, contacted at his home early this morning, said he could not confirm, nor deny the Sun's report.

However, the Sun quoted Athletic Director Bill Ireland as saying probation was a sure thing.

"We're going on probation. We know that," Ireland told the Sun. "There were some violations of the NCAA code some time ago. We have admitted that."

But Baepler was somewhat more conservative, saying the NCAA rules do not allow him to comment on a pending case.

"I have no official word from the NCAA," said Baepler. "I honestly don't know. We have had no official notification. Any announcement will come from the NCAA."

Baepler pointed out that the rumor mill involving UNLV has been turning out stories for the past five years, and said the fact that UNLV was fighting probation has been a well-known fact for several months.

Baepler admitted that he was in Knoxville, Tenn., on Monday, but hedged as to what his mission was. NCAA officials are meeting this week in Tennessee.

It was generally thought by NCAA observers that Baepler and other officials would travel to Tennessee to appeal a ruling handed down last May—probation.

While probation seems to be imminent, the terms of the sanctions are yet speculation.

One source very close to Baepler said he thinks the terms will include a one-year period, adding that he does not think Tarkanian's job is in jeopardy.

The alleged violations against the universty date back to the early 1970s and the tenure of former basketball coach John Bayer. They include: students taking examinations for players, overpayments to players, an illegal basketball game against the University of New Mexico prior to the 1972 season and the illegal transportation of a player on a free junket airplane.

According to the Sun, Bayer, now head of the university's physical education department, is one of those who must disassociate himself from the program.

Many local fans believe the NCAA has had it out for Tarkanian.

"Tark the Shark," the winningest active major college basketball coach, came here from Long Beach State in 1973. Several weeks after he left Long Beach, the school's basketball and football programs were placed on probation by the NCAA, and local fans have been under the impression that the NCAA has been after Tarkanian ever since.

Under Tarkanian, UNLV has sky-rocketed to national prominence in basketball.

Last year, the Runnin' Rebels compiled a 31-3 record and took third place in the NCAA tournament in Atlanta. UNLV was ranked fourth in the final AP poll of the year, and is expected to be a power to contend with again this year despite a tough schedule including road dates at Marquette, Kentucky, Louisville and Maryland.

Although today's report on the continuing saga of the UNLV probe did not come as much of a surprise, it was rather untimely.

Royals continue to enjoy home field; beat Orioles

KANSAS CITY (AP) — You can talk about Fenway Park. You can say what you want about Yankee Stadium.

But Royals Stadium in Kansas City has become the most fierce lions' den of late for American League teams.

"It's a tough ball park to get used to," admitted Earl Weaver after the Royals knocked off his Baltimore Orioles, 5-2, Tuesday night.

It was the seventh straight victory for the surging Royals, who continue to cling to a one-game lead in the congested American League West.

Baltimore, losing its third in a row, is two games back of the Yankees in the AL East.

Kansas City is 43-20 since June 17 — including 18 victories in its last 20 games in Royals Stadium and series sweeps of Minnesota, New York, Chicago, Boston and Baltimore.

"You have to play deeper here. They run from home plate and can get that extra base," said Weaver.

"And they (Royals) can hit, they use the artificial turf. You don't remember everything from year to year, either. It's just a tough ballpark for us to play in."

The Royals used muscle against the Orioles Tuesday night, as John Mayberry and George Brett both homered to right field in the fourth to give starter Jim Colborn the impetus for his 14th victory against 12 losses.

The blasts, Mayberry's 20th of the season and Brett's 16th, gave Kansas City a 4-2 lead.

But Brett would not have been at the plate to hit his two-out, three-run shot off starter Mike Flanagan, 9-10, if Ken Singleton had not dropped Darrell Porter's fly to right.

"We're leading the league in fielding," shrugged Weaver. "We gotta make a mistake sometime."

The Royals added a run in the seventh when Singleton had trouble with Hal McRae's triple into the right field corner, and Amos Otis smacked a sacrifice fly.

"They hit 'em in the corners both games and we had trouble with every goldarn one of 'em," said Weaver.

Colborn scattered six hits but needed last-inning relief help from Larry Gura in posting only his third career victory over the Orioles. He has lost 13 games to Baltimore.

Forsch beats Dodgers; Brock steals number 889

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Preston Gomez, a Los Angeles Dodgers coach, labeled Bob Forsch's best pitch an inside fast ball. Forsch did not disagree.

Forsch, a St. Louis right-hander, walked Reggie Smith with the delivery in the eighth inning and in so doing emerged with a victory that lifted him to his major league high Tuesday night.

"That Forsch — what a difference in this year and what I saw last year," said Gomez, a veteran of four National League clubs as coach and manager who spent 1976 with the Cards while Forsch was 8-11.

"He wasn't going to give him anything good to hit," said Gomez of Forsch's improvement in a 2-1 St. Louis triumph. "He wasn't going to let him (Smith) beat him."

The 6-foot-4 Forsch, who pegged a three-hitter, raised his record to a 16-5 level by weathering anxious moments to outduel the Dodgers' Don Sutton, 11-8.

Except for Vic Davalillo's double, which produced a Los Angeles run in the second, Forsch coasted through seven innings.

But in the eighth, after pinch-hitter Ed Goodson gained life on first baseman Keith Hernandez' error, a ground ball and subsequent wild pitch advanced pinch-runner Davey Lopes to third.

Two were out when Smith, a .305 switch-hitter, was walked by Forsch on a 3-2 count. The off-target delivery paid off when Ron Cey ended the inning by lifting a pop fly.

"I'd been pitching him away. I just thought, 'I'll try to come in on him,'" Forsch confirmed his caution against Smith. "I knew I had an open base and I didn't want to give him anything too good. He'd already taken me out of the yard with a home run once last year.

Forsch, following a 98-pitch performance, rated his victory "the best game that I've thrown all year, especially against that kind of club," and noted his pitches were "just going to spots where they were supposed to."

An eight-strikeout, two-walk performance netted Forsch his eighth victory in his last nine decisions, partially because of a Los Angeles fielding lapse that let in a first-inning run.

Lou Brock singled for his first of two hits and was safe at second when second baseman Teddy Martinez missed the bag while attempting a double play.

Ted Simmons then singled Brock home and Brock's second hit in as many innings scored Ken Reitz after the latter was nicked by a Sutton pitch and advanced on Forsch's sacrifice in the second.

Brock's hit, the 2,800th of his career, was followed by his 889th lifetime stolen base on an 0-1 count against Sutton, who threw numerous times to the bag.

"He (Sutton) was going through a lot of tricks," said Brock after a theft that left him only three behind the career major league record of 892 set by Ty Cobb. "It's good to win."

IXL, Bank, Joliff win

CANALOU — Tom Hobgood singled with two out in the bottom of the ninth to drive in the winning run and give IXL Manufacturing of Bernie a 10-9 win over Brosely Tuesday night, highlighting a big night of winner's bracket play in the Little River Valley Slow Pitch Classic at Canalou.

In other games, the Bank of Sikeston nipped Oran 6-5 and Jolliff Flight School dumped the Devils 10-2.

Hobgood's hit capped a four-run rally in the second extra inning that overcame a three-run top of the ninth by Brosely. The scored had been tied at 6-6 since the sixth, when Brosely knotted the score with a pair of runs.

Ed Shankle drove in David Bailey with the winning run in the bottom of the sixth to lift Bank of Sikeston to their victory over Oran.

Jolliff Flight School scored four in the second, two in the third and four more in the fourth as they clubbed the Devils. Hart enjoyed a 4-for-4 evening as Jolliff moved into Friday night's winner's bracket semifinals against IXL Manufacturing.

In tonight's action, Sunset Community goes against Oran in the first of three loser's bracket contests at 6:30. The Devils meet Brosely at 8:00 and Canalou takes on Haywood City at 9:30.

Gilliam may not make it

By The Associated Press

New Orleans Coach Hank Stram says there's a strong chance that quarterback Joe Gilliam won't make it back with the Saints.

Gilliam was passing during a practice session Tuesday, but Stram said he ranks Gilliam dead last in the four-man race for the quarterback job.

That means the former Pittsburgh Steelers star is apt to be cut or traded by the National Football League team.

Stram says he still has faith in the quarterback, but that there isn't much time left for him to make it into form. The player hasn't made more than three practices in a row since the preseason started due to headaches and nausea resulting from his withdrawal from heroin.

Meanwhile, Garo Yepremian is back, but it looks as though Roger Staubach's comeback may be delayed.

Yepremian, the Miami Dolphins' placekicker who has been sidelined with a hamstring pull since Saturday, practiced Tuesday and kicked well, according to Coach Don Shula. Bob Griese returns to his more familiar role as quarterback and Yepremian to his regular kicking job in the Dolphins' NFL exhibition against Minnesota Friday night.

But in Dallas, quarterback Roger Staubach's hamstring wasn't healing well. Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said there was no better than a 50 per cent chance he would play in Saturday's game against Baltimore.

"It will be difficult to keep him out of there. He always tries to hide his injuries," said Landry.

Elsewhere in the league, the Baltimore Colts said they'd retire the venerable No. 19 jersey of Johnny Unitas in an Oct. 9 ceremony.

The Colts also announced they'd signed five-year veteran cornerback Nelson Muncey to a series of one-year contracts. Muncey missed the team's last six games last year with a knee injury.

The Cincinnati Bengals moved premier receiver Isaac Curtis from strong-side flanker to weak-side split end to give him more pass-catching opportunities. Coach Bill Johnson says the move could help the Bengals overcome double coverage by opponents that held Curtis to a low of six touchdown receptions last season.

The Los Angeles Rams welcomed center Rich Saul back from retirement by releasing rookie Carson Long to make room for him on their roster. Saul had announced his retirement earlier this month but changed his mind on Monday. Long set an NCAA record at the University of Pittsburgh for field goal accuracy. He was an 11th-round draft choice.

The Kansas City Chiefs cut free agents Jackie Williams, a defensive back, and wide receiver Jerrald Taylor to reduce their roster to 58.

Harold Hart, the Washington Redskins' acquisition from the New England Patriots, took to the sidelines with a slight muscle pull.

Taped interviews with Berkowitz go on sale

KINGS POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Ten hours of taped interviews with David Berkowitz, the accused "Son of Sam" killer, will be put on sale for $600,000, literary agent Scott Meredith said Saturday.

Meredith would not say whether any bids had been received for publishing or broadcast rights to the tapes, which reportedly cover Berkowitz's sex life, his childhood, his family life and his reaction to the shootings and his arrest.

Meredith refused to disclose how he came into custody of the tapes. He said the source of the material questioned and recorded Berkowitz in his cell at Kings County Hospital.

He said the source had agreed that 40 per cent of the earnings from publication would go to the victims and families of victims from the 13 shootings laid to the ".44-caliber killer."

A New York State law went into effect this month requiring that any profits earned by a criminal — stemming from his crime — be forwarded to his victims or victims' estates.

Meredith said lawyers had told him it probably would be legal to sell the tapes.

Berkowitz, who allegedly killed six people and wounded seven, is being examined at the hospital in an attempt to determine whether he is competent to stand trial. If he is found incompetent, it might also be determined that he was incompetent to consent to release of the tapes.

American in Brazil shares home with children

By MARY LENZ

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Edna Blanche Deakins decided 20 years ago to do something about the problem of abandoned children in Brazil. Today, she still has her work cut out for her.

A recent government report estimated that of 100 million people in this South American country, 15 million were children living without adequate food, clothing or shelter. Some had been abandoned by their parents.

In Sao Paulo, the 7.2 million-person industrial heart of Brazil, an estimated three out of every 10 children are either abandoned or living in squalor.

Headlines in Brazilian newspapers often tell of babies left in garages, in trashcans or on the streets. One child was found in the bathroom of a ferry.

The orphanages that exist are jammed. "You can hardly get a child into a state-run orphanage here," Miss Deakins said.

What happens to most abandoned infants? "They die," the 64-year-old Anaheim, Calif., native said simply.

Miss Deakins tries to provide a home in Sao Paulo for as many abandoned children as possible. Since 1957, she has reared about 300 children and has 22 living with her at present.

Miss Deakins told the Associated Press in a telephone interview that she had decided to come to Brazil because "I just felt it was the thing the Lord wanted me to do.

"I always loved children," she said.

When Miss Deakins, who had been a secretary in the United States, arrived in Brazil, she "just rented a house and started taking in children."

She explained that "when I met people, I'd tell them what I wanted to do. It spread like wildfire. I got children from all over."

Miss Deakins, a Baptist, was briefly associated with a religious group called the American Soul Clinic, but after five months struck out on her own.

Railroad museum at Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- Lee Chronister, a retired railroad chief dispatcher is moving back to Chaffee from Springfield, and plans to begin a railroad museum here.

Chronister and a friend, Stormy Swantner, built an old-fashioned railroad depot in Springfield, filling it with antiques and memorabilia of the steam engine era of the Frisco and other railroads.

The depot is being brought back to Chaffee, where it will be located on Mr. Chronister's property at 330 Yokum. When completed, it will contain replicas from more than 100 railroad depots, and will be open to the public.

Defense must improve if DHS Bearcats are to win more in '77

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard Sports Editor

DEXTER -- Rebuilding a porous defense that gave up almost 39 points per game in 1976 is the top priority for Tom Thrower and his Dexter Bearcat coaching staff this season as they prepare for their school's second campaign as a member of the Northern Division.

Our defense will be a lot better," promised Thrower, who inherited a down program when he returned to DHS to coach last year after a short leave from this area. Last year's Bearcats won only two ballgames and picked up only a single Northern Division triumph, a 42-38 scoring contest against Kennett.

It would be hard for Dexter's defense to be worse than it was last season. Big, bruising backs, which were plentiful in the North last year, stormed through the Bearcat alignment almost at will. The question wasn't whether the Cats could keep the opposition from scoring, but rather how long they could delay the inevitable. A Dexter paper published an offensive and defensive player of the week after each game, but Thrower often declined to name one of the latter.

"Our kids just weren't strong enough last year," pointed out Thrower. Ball-carriers seemed to bounce off Dexter tacklers that year. But it won't be the case in '77, according to Thrower.

"People won't run right through us this year," emphasized the DHS mentor, warning opposing coaches they'll heed more than just a good back or two to move the ball consistently against his club.

An off-season weight program and experience are the primary reasons why Thrower is optimistic about improvement of Dexter's defense. Eight of last year's starters are back on "D" and all of the Bearcats have been working out with the barbells to improve their size and strength.

Anchoring the defensive line will be nose man Dan Malloy and tackles Terry Smith and Terry Griffey. Smith and Griffey, who have benefited immensely from the weight training, weigh in at over 200 this year, with Griffey tipping the scales at a solid 215. "He weighed 210 last year," said Thrower about Griffey, "but he was fat."

All three linebackers are returning. Middle man Bryce Matthews is the biggest of the trio at 180, while outside men David McGee and Scott Keirsey got 160 and 165, respectively. And in the secondary, halfback Denny Jarrell is back. All of Dexter's returning starters are seniors.

Can Thrower detect any improvement in his unit this year? "It's hard to tell when you're playing against yourself," joked the Dexter coach. But if his defensive people can stop their offensive counterparts, they're well on their way to being a fine unit.

Senior quarterback Lance Espey, who tied with David Shell in the voting for first team All-Conference honors last year, heads an offensive crew that might be second to none in the area this season.

Espey threw for 1,147 yards as a junior as his team averaged over 21 points per ballgame -- a considerable feat, considering that the other team possessed the ball most of the time. Ten of his aerials went for touchdowns. "He'll probably put it up about 18-20 times a game again," Thrower said about the southpaw signal caller, who bears an amazing resemblance to Oakland's Ken Stabler on the field.

Espey's top target of last year, flanker Mike Grubbs, has graduated, and Thrower declares that his quarterback will be throwing to more than just a few people this season. Fullback Kevin Orr and halfback Rick Guilliams, returning at their positions, figure to get more than their share of the receptions this year, since both ranked among the North's top ten receivers a year ago. And Mike Penney will move from defense to tight end, giving the Cats' a threat at that position that they didn't have a year ago.

In the rushing department, Guilliams ranked fifth in the league in that category with 893 yeards as a junior, earning second team honors. Guilliams, who finished second in the scoring race in the North last year, should get the call again when Dexter gets close to paydirt.

The speedy Orr, who scored six TD's as a junior, also poses a breakaway threat -- if the offensive line can open some holes for he and Guilliams. But last year's entire unit graduated, forcing Thrower to field a revamped line this fall.

"We'll make more noise this year than last," was Thrower's only prediction about the 1977 season. "We need three or four more good seniors to have an outstanding football team," he said wishfully.

A good group of underclassmen and a big turnout for the freshmen team gives Dexter fans good reason to expect a contender at DHS in the future. As for this year, if the Bear-cats can cut down on their points against and continue to roll 'em up offensively, they will be doing well to double their victory output of a year ago.

Ozark doesn't see Phillie tailspin now

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

If the Philadelphia Phillies haven't lost their flair for the dramatic, they should go into a slump right about now.

It is one year to the day since the Phillies saw a whopping 15½-game lead begin to fritter away. It dwindled down to three games before they recovered and won the National League East by nine games over the Pittsburgh Pirates. And, of course, there is the team's monumental collapse down the stretch in 1964.

"That doesn't even come to mind. This is the first time anyone's ever asked me that question," Manager Danny Ozark said following the red-hot Phillies' 3-2 triumph over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night. It was their sixth consecutive victory and 19th in 20 games and kept them 7½ games ahead of Pittsburgh ... their largest lead of the season.

Elsewhere, the Pirates edged the San Diego Padres 7-6, the San Francisco Giants nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 13 innings, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1, the Montreal Expos downed the Cincinnati Reds 4-2 and the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 2-1.

Greg Luzinski's two-run single in the first inning and Mike Schmidt's 31st home run in the fifth paced the Phillies' triumph. Overshadowed were 13 strikeouts in eight innings by Atlanta's Phil Niekro which gave him a league-leading 204 for the season and broke his record of 195 for a Braves pitcher the team's 12-year Atlanta history.

Pirates 7, Padres 6

Al Oliver broke a tie in the bottom of the ninth with a first-pitch home run off San Diego relief ace Rollie Fingers. The Pirates, who had lost three games in a row, scored a pair of unearned runs in the eighth inning to take a 6-5 lead but San Diego's Gene Tenace tied it in the ninth with a homer.

Giants 4, Cubs 3

Tim Foli's run-scoring single in the 13th inning gave the Giants their first victory of the year over the Cubs after eight defeats. With one out in the 13th, Jack Clark walked and stole second and Darrell Evans also walked before Foli's soft single.

Cardinals 2, Dodgers 1

Bob Forsch pitched a three-hitter in outdueling Don Sutton, and Lou Brock drove in the winning run with a second-inning single for his 2,800th career hit. The 38-year-old Brock, who singled and scored in the first inning, also stole the 889th base of his career, leaving him three shy of the all-time major league record set by Ty Cobb.

Expos 4, Reds 2

Dave Cash continued his season-long assault on Cincinnati with two hits, an RBI, and two runs scored. Cash doubled and scored in the first inning, reached on a fielder's choice and scored in the fourth, and drove in an insurance run with an infield hit in the ninth. Gary Carter homered for Montreal's other run.

Tigers hold scrimmage

By The Associated Press

Most Big Eight football teams moved into full-fledged scrimmaging Tuesday, but Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer backed off from a scheduled workout because of injuries his Sooners have suffered since starting contact work Monday.

The Sooners held limited contact drills instead as first string halfback Elvis Peacock and second team backs Billy Sims and Freddie Nixon were sidelined with injuries. Also on the injury list were guard Jaimie Melendez, strong safety Bud Hebert and second team fullback Barry Joiner. Switzer said he was concerned with the number of leg injuries.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said his Tigers weren't as smooth as they might have been, but he attributed part of the problem to getting a lot of freshmen into the club's first scrimmage. First-year men Phil Bradley and Jay Jeffrey were among the six quarterbacks who earned playing time.

Oklahoma State filmed its three sessions Tuesday and Coach Jim Stanley announced the Cowboys would cut back to two-a-days Wednesday. Stanley said both sophomore quarterback Harold Bailey and junior Randy Stephenson looked good, with Bailey having a slight edge. Freshman tight end Chris Meyers suffered a fractured collarbone—the first casualty of the fall workouts—and will be sidelined about four weeks.

Iowa State's Earle Bruce said his Cyclones reported back to camp in the best condition he's seen in his years of coaching. Timing and conditioning were emphasized in the second day of two-a-days, and Bruce let the varsity veterans go early, but held the freshmen for passing drills and a look at newcomers.

Satterfield wins 3 races at Half-Miler

James Satterfield of Sikeston drove his 350 Camaro to victory in all three races of the late model super stock division Saturday night, highlighting a big weekend of racing at Sikeston's Half Mile Stock Car Track.

Satterfield won both preliminary races and the feature race as well in his division.

Dave Brewer of Sikeston grabbed first in the late model class, and Ron Cook won in the street stock division.

Cook was the winner the night before in the First Street Stock Race, which saw 54 cars compete for $1,300 in prize money. Cook won the feature race in his 442 Oldsmobile.

How knowledgeable are you or your children about drugs?

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

How much do you know about drug abuse? And how much do your children understand — or misunderstand?

The federal government estimates that between 400,000 and 600,000 Americans use heroin on a daily basis. Millions more — many of them young — use other drugs, regularly or occasionally.

There are many different kinds of drugs. All narcotics are drugs, but not all drugs are narcotics. According to the National Clearinghouse on Drug Abuse Information, a drug is "any chemical substance which affects a person in such a way as to bring about physiological, emotional or behavioral change." Narcotics are described as "drugs which relieve pain and often induce sleep."

All drugs are potentially harmful if misused, but they do not all result in addiction or physical dependence.

The myths about drugs are almost as widespread as the problem. To set the record straight, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is distributing, at no charge: "Questions and Answers About Drug Abuse," with information on sedatives, alcohol, stimulants, tobacco, marijuana, hallucinogens and narcotics.

The booklet is available from Consumer Information Center, Dept. 666E, Pueblo, Colo., 81009, or from the National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information, P.O. Box 1635, Rockville, Md., 20850.

To test your knowledge, try taking the following multiple-choice quiz, prepared by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. The correct answers are listed below.

1. During which time(s) was drug abuse a problem in the United States?

a. The Civil War; b. the 1950s; c. the 1960s; d. all of the above.

2. In which age group(s) is drug abuse likely to be a problem?

a. 12-16; b. 16-25; c. 25-45; d. 45 and over; e. all of the above.

3. Which of the following is the most commonly abused drug in the United States?

a. Marijuana; b. alcohol; c. cocaine; d. heroin.

4. Which of the following is not a narcotic?

a. Heroin; b. marijuana; c. morphine; d. methadone.

5. Which of the following is not a stimulant?

a. Amphetamine; b. caffeine; c. mescaline; d. methamphetamine.

6. Which of the following is not a hallucinogen?

a. MDA; b. LSD; c. STP; d. MPA.

7. Which of the following drugs does not cause physical dependence?

a. Ethyl alcohol; b. morphine; c. peyote; d. secobarbital; e. codeine.

8. Which of the following has the highest immediate risk to experimenters?

a. Inhalants; b. marijuana; c. nicotine; d. heroin.

9. When does a person who uses heroin become physically dependent?

a. Immediately; b. after four or five times; c. after prolonged use — 20 times or more; d. different for each person.

10. Which ingredient is most commonly found in compounds sold on the street as "mescaline"?

a. Lysergic acid diethylamide; b. morphine; c. tetracycline; d. naltrexone; e. all of the above.

11. When a person is physically dependent on drugs, what is the primary reason he continues to take the drug?

a. Experience pleasure; b. relieve discomfort; c. escape reality; d. gain acceptance among friends.

12. Which of the following drugs has never been used to treat the narcotic addiction problem in the United States?

a. Cyclazocine; b. naloxone; c. methadone; d. psilocybin; e. heroin.

Here are the answers:

1. d. All of the above. Different periods have had different problems. Opium was used medically during the Civil War and many wounded soldiers became addicted. Heroin use was prevelant at the turn of the century and again in the 1950s, while drug use of all kinds plagued the country in the 1960s.

2. e. All of the above. Despite the recent focus on drugs and the young, drug abuse is found in all age groups.

3. b. Alcohol. Estimates show that about 9 million Americans are alcoholic persons.

4. b. Marijuana. The substance is no longer legally classified as a narcotic. Its psychological effects are similar to stimulants, sedatives or hallucinogens and its actual effects depend on dose, frequency of use and individual characteristics. Morphine and heroin are natural narcotics; methadone is a synthetic narcotic.

5. c. Mescaline. This is a halucinogen with effects similar to LSD.

6. d. MPA. The initials do not stand for any know drug. LSD stand for lysergic acid diethylamide; MDA for Mellow Drug of America; and STP for Serenity, Tranquility and Peace.

7. c. Peyote. Physical dependence on mescaline, the active ingredient of the peyote cactus, has not been verified.

8. a. Inhalants. Sniffing aerosols, glue or other volatile substances can result in immediate death. Although "mainlining" heroin into a vein also can result in immediate death, most experimentation with the drug includes only sniffing or skin-popping.

9. d. Different for each person.

10. a. Lysergic acid diethylamide. Analyses indicate LSD is often a major ingredient of mescaline sold on the street, although it varies from city to city. Street mescaline rarely is pure mescaline and often contains no mescaline at all.

11. b. Relieve discomfort. When a person stops taking a drug that he or she is physically dependent on, physical withdrawal symptons result.

12. d. Psilocybin. This is a hallucinogen which has no accepted medcial use. All of the other substances — including heroin — have been used at one time or other to treat narcotic addiction.

Kilgore, Miller deliver speeches to Toastmasters

"Wont's Just Wolf'en" was the title of the first speech, presented by Mike Kilgore.

The following speech, "My Life is Mountain Climbing", was delivered by the Rev. Don Miller.

The Rev. Bob Case was the speech evaluator for Kilgore and Stan McMachins evaluated the Rev. Mr. Miller's speech. The general evaluator was Paul Bumbarger.

Gary Chegwidden was the table topics master for the week. He presented Bumbarger and McMachins as best topics speakers for that meeting.

Kilgore, the president, welcomed Judy Comer, Mont Mitchell and George Doyle as guests.

The club meets at noon every Monday at the same place, and guests are welcome.

The case of the unsound alarm

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Willie owned and operated a liquor store. And while he took in lots of cold cash, he had difficulty keeping it long enough to warm it up. With holdup men dropping by as frequently as customers, he finally installed a burglar alarm system. Unfortunately, the employees of the company that installed it forgot to connect the wires leading from the alarm button to the alarm.

The result? When Willie nonchalantly pushed the button during a holdup, his air of confidence slowly faded as the holdup man remained on his premises for 15 minutes, selecting expensive bottles of booze like connoiseurs -- without the police showing up.

Furious, Willie sued the alarm company for his loss of bucks and bottles.

"As a safety device," complained Willie in court, "I might just as well have bought a parachute. By negligently failing to connect the burglar alarm wires, the alarm company cost me $1,500 in cash and merchandise."

"Sorry about that," responded an alarm company official, "but our contract with Willie specifically provided that in the event the alarm system failed to operate properly, the limit of the company's liability was $25.00. Consequently, that's all he's entitled to collect."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you limit Willie's recovery to $25.00?

This is how the judge ruled: NO. The judge held that there can be no failure of alarm system to operate until the system has been properly installed and functioning. Since Willie's alarm had not been properly installed and functioning, concluded the judge, the $25.00 liability limitation was not applicable.

TV system allows viewers to talk back

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you want to talk back to your television set, move to Columbus.

QUBE, a two-way TV programming system, is coming to this city late this fall. Warner Cable Corp., a subsidiary of Warner Communications Inc., chose Columbus as its test market.

A panel of buttons on a home control box will enable a viewer to choose among 30 channels of programming, but what makes QUBE unique are five black buttons on the right side of the terminal.

"For the first time, viewers will be able to actively participate in the program they're watching," according to J. Ronald Castell, QUBE's vice president of marketing.

Castell envisions TV games in which viewers can compete by pushing buttons to indicate their decisions. "We may even have some games in which people in one suburb will play ... against people in another suburb or husbands will play against their wives," Castell said.

Viewers also will be able to take college courses, bridge lessons, macrame instruction and cooking classes with the two-way system, Castell said. Buttons allow them to answer yes or no, and their answers will be received in the "classrooms."

As well as tabulating such responses from viewers, QUBE's computers will monitor which programs are being watched and bill viewers amounts ranging from $1 for a classic movie to about $3 for a first-run movie or special.

Entire sixth regiment guarantined

60 years ago
August 24, 1917

Information from Missouri's military camp at Nevada is to the effect that the members of Company "K" are busy and in good health, although the entire Sixth Regiment is quarantined because of a case of small-pox in each of the Cape Girardeau and Campbell companies.

The Sikeston Chautauqua begins on next Monday, a five days festival of music, lectures and other good, wholesome entertainment. There will be two programs daily, each afternoon and evening.

The Matthews band will give a free concert in Malone Park next Sunday.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 24, the 236th day of 1977. There are 129 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1814, British troops invaded Washington, D.C., and burned the Capitol and the White House.

On this date:

In 79 A.D., an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in Italy buried the ancient cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

In 1777, Gen. George Washington led his Revolutionary War army into Philadelphia.

In 1932, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop flight across the United States, flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in 19 hours and five minutes.

In 1939, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union signed a 10-year non-aggression pact.

In 1970, the first helicopters to fly across the Pacific reached South Vietnam from the U.S.

Ten years ago: Mobs from Communist China repeatedly attacked British positions along the 17-mile Hong Kong border and were driven off with tear gas.

Five years ago: Argentine security forces arrested hundreds of leaders of leftwing labor, student and political groups after a night of student rioting in major provincial cities.

One year ago: Two Soviet cosmonauts returned to earth after 48 days in orbit in a space laboratory.

Today's birthday: Physicist Ralph Lapp is 60 years old.

Thought for today: "Nothing is particularly hard if you divide it into small jobs." — Auto manufacturer Henry Ford, 1863-1947.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Body size inherited

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — During my four years in high school I participated in varsity sports and cheerleading year round. From all this activity I developed big muscles in my calves and thighs. Is there any possible way that I can get rid of these muscles or thin our my legs?

DEAR READER — A muscle stays as large as it needs to be to have the strength to do the work it is required to do regularly. That means if a muscle is not required to do strength work it will begin to get smaller. We usually say that to maintain your muscle size and strength you must do strength exercises at least once a week.

Apparently if you are not doing sports now the only weight your calves and legs must lift is your own body. Under these circumstances, if you are not obese and have fat over your thighs the size of your muscles may be a familial characteristic.

Those genes we inherit do have their effects. That is why we have beef cattle and dairy cows — one for muscle, the other for milk. Draft horses for work are heavy muscular animals while race horses have different bodies.

Don't try too hard to change your natural state. Just get rid of fat if you already have some. To give you a better idea of what controls muscle size I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Keep in mind those muscles, if they are muscles and not fat, may help keep you from getting fat later in life.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son is 18 months old. The children's specialist I take him to thinks he has a heart murmur which could be innocent. My family doctor disagrees with him. What is a heart murmur? How can you check it?

My father and father-in-law both died young because of heart failure — my father at 48 and my father-in-law at 50. I am 37 and my wife is 29. My blood pressure is not too high and my wife is in good health. Your opinion on this will be appreciated.

DEAR READER — Just as a murmuring brook is a rapid stream that makes a noise a murmur-in the heart is a sound made from the turbulence of blood circulating.

Murmurs in the heart and blood vessels then represent the vibrations of circulation. In young children with rapid heart beats and thin chests these sounds are easily heard and may have no medical significance at all. In other instances the vibrations are caused by defects inside the heart or arteries. Such defectrs can be caused from damage to the heart valves or arteries or from birth defects in the chambers of the heart.

Clearly, your pediatrician thinks the murmur he hears is not important. It is probably not a very loud murmur or there would be no disagreement about its presence. Incidentally, an innocent murmur may be present on one examination and not on another depending on how rapid the circulation is — which may also be related to whether the patient is resting or anxious.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Keeping in touch . . .

by Senator Jack Danforth

SOCIAL SECURITY

When the Senate reconvenes September 7, one of the major issues it will address is Social Security financing. Needless to say, this is a critical issue of major importance to most Missourians. As I travel around the state, I am often asked about the solvency of the Social Security system. Many people worry that by the time they are ready to receive the benefits they have earned, the Social Security system will be in such financial difficulty that their benefits will be reduced or even cancelled.

First of all, let me say that this will not happen. Our citizens have a major stake in the Social Security system, and therefore, the question is not whether Social Security will be financially sound, but how its financial strength will be guaranteed.

As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, I will have an opportunity to help develop the Senate's Social Security legislation. There are a number of proposals for shoring up the system. One approach with which I do not agree is the Administration's plan.

The Administration's approach heavily relies on dipping into general income tax revenues. This would erase the Social Security deficit, but without an increase in the income tax, it would simply shift the growing federal deficit from one set of books to another. I also am concerned that this strategy would create a dangerous precedent, tempting us to dip into general revenues in the future because it conceals the real cost of the program. The Administration's proposal also includes a hefty Social Security tax increase on employers. This also conceals costs because the employers increase the costs of their products and the consumer pays for it at the marketplace.

However, it is not my intention simply to oppose the Administration. After all, the financial shortfall facing the system is estimated to be $60 - 70 billion over the next five years. We have to raise that revenue somehow. Therefore, I am proposing what I consider to be the most equitable alternative -- one which is fair to all Americans and consistent with the purposes of the Social Security tax system.

The first plank of my proposal is to bring federal employees into the system. This proposal, which I endorsed during my campaign for the Senate, would reduce the shortfall in the next five years by nearly $18 billion. Federal employees currently do not pay Social Security; nor do they receive Social Security benefits. Instead, they would be covered by two systems -- Social Security and Civil Service retirement -- just like many private sector employees who are covered by both Social Security and private pensions.

The second component of my proposal is a 3 percent surcharge on corporate and individual income taxes. This would keep the cost of Social Security very visible but would raise over $40 billion of the shortfall in a progressive fashion. It also would avoid raising the Social Security tax itself -- an idea which places the heaviest burden on low and middle income persons.

No proposal is going to be popular. There is no painless way of raising $60 - 70 billion. It would be totally irresponsible, however, to put off action any longer. The financial strength of the Social Security program must be a top priority for all of us.

Sikeston appealed the ruling and HUD was forced to qualify the city for the FHA loans.

After some argument, HUD officials admitted that Sikeston had enough points to qualify on the housing rehabilitation.

But they said, while the sanitary sewers are beneficial to the poor, they are not necessary.

City officials replied that under HUD guidelines, indoor bathrooms are necessary under the housing rehabilitation program. Indoor bathrooms require sanitary sewers, they said.

HUD officials admitted the error, Church said.

Finally the officials said they did not have any more money, that it had already been given out.

Church said that by looking at HUD's figures, he guessed the city is eligible for $212,000 of the $400,000 it originally requested.

City officials asked them to send a letter to the secretary of HUD and request money from the department's discretionary fund.

HUD officials promised to let Sikeston know Friday if they would write the letter. On Friday they said they would decide on Monday.

On Tuesday, they said they did not feel they had made any mistakes, so they would not write the letter.

Church said this morning the city's first move will be to make contact with the city's Congressional delegation and then to write each member a lengthy letter detailing the problem.

City officials decided to use the appeal process to try and get the funds rather than sue. However, they have said in the past they may sue as a possible solution, if the appeal process fails.

Church said he was impressed with the City Council's desire to fight HUD on the matter. He said most city's just give up when they are denied funding.

federal program and will be used in a beautification project in the city.

The board also announced that Billy Young has been hired from a field of 15 as city secretary and water collector.

Bresee said anybody with complaints should register them with her at the city hall, and she will refer them to the proper person.

No. 3 Cont. from page 1

An important question to potential patients is: Will the new additions totalling $1.2 million increase rates of medical care at the hospital?

Norman said rates will not go up any more than they normally would, because of increased salaries and inflation and are expected to be less than nine per cent this year.

"Volume is the key," Norman said, explaining why the construction will not increase rates.

As the hospital increases its size and services offered, it will bring in more patients and more revenue, Norman said and rates won't have to be adjusted upward as much as if the hospital was not growing, but overhead keeps going up.

After talking with seven different financial institutions, the hospital board of directors has decided to get its loan from Hitner Corporation in St. Louis.

Money will be borrowed as needed as the construction progresses. This way, only the money will be borrowed that is actually needed, Norman said.

Over the next five years, an additional 25 employes will be needed at the hospital because of the expansion, mainly in the nursing services and housekeeping areas.

An architects' drawing should be ready in two to three weeks, Norman said.

Lid on property tax needed

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Missouri needs a tax lid immediately or homeowners could lose their holdings if property taxes go up two to three times, the chairman of the State Tax Commission said Tuesday.

Chairman Robert Love said a St. Louis County Circuit Court ruling last week could push property taxes two or three times higher than they are now throughout the state.

The Aug. 17 order by Judge Arthur Litz requires that "substantial steps" be taken within a year toward reassessment of all property in St. Louis County. Love said the order could boost tax bill unless the legislature freezes rates at a level less than one-third the fair market value to compensate for assessment increases.

"Be prepared for assessments to increase two or three times throughout the state," Love said. "This means two or three times more taxes for everyone if there is no compensation provided in tax rates by the state legislature."

Love said a freeze on tax rates is his number one legislative priority.

The court order demands that the county bring its assessments into compliance with state law which requires a uniform level of one-third of fair market value. Judge Litz also ordered the county to adjust assessments every year to keep them at that level despite fluctuations in actual property values.

A 1974 state audit showed assessment levels in Missouri ranged from 7 per cent in one western county to 35 per cent in the City of St. Louis.

Property in county is sold for taxes

BENTON -- About 20 persons were present at the Scott County Court House Monday at 10 a.m. to bid on property being sold for taxes by County Collector Tom Marshall.

Marshall explained to those present that those purchasing the property would be given a real estate tax certificate deed and that the present persons owning the property could reclaim title during the next two years upon payment of the bid price plus 10 per cent interest per year.

He further explained that if present owners do not redeem the property within the two-year period then persons with the certificate deed will be given a collector's deed.

Marshall also said to all prospective bidders that persons presently owning the property would only be liable for the bid price and the 10 per cent interest if wishing to redeem the property, not for any improvements made to the property.

In starting the sale, Marshall explained that 20 pieces of property were being offered for the first time and that taxes due on them dated back to 1974 through 1976.

Present owners, description of property to be sold, taxes due, amounts bid and persons bidding that amount include:

New impasse adjourns legislature until Sept. 9

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A new impasse — this one over a state office building in St. Louis — has blocked swift passage of the multi-million dollar capital improvements bill until at least Sept. 9.

The full legislature adjourned on Tuesday until at least that date so that the 10-member house-senate negotiating committee can work toward a resolution of the stalemate on the bill to fund state building construction and maintenance through June.

"It just doesn't make sense to keep everybody here waiting for 10 people to reach agreement," House Speaker Kenneth Rothman said after working out the revised schedule with Senate President Pro Tem Norman Merrell.

The legislative leaders had originally hoped work on the measure, the primary issue before lawmakers in the special session, could be concluded on Tuesday.

The joint negotiating committee adjourned until next week shortly after both houses concluded work. Under the state constitution, the special session which began Aug. 10 must be concluded by Oct. 9, even if a compromise on the house version of the bill, which totals $142 million and the senate's $145 million bill cannot be reached.

The impasse on the St. Louis office building is the second to stall work on the huge funding measure, and Democratic House Floor Leader Joe Holt acknowledged that the issue is not one of money, but a power struggle between the house and senate.

Although there are 17 areas of disagreement between the house and senate version of the bill, the negotiators have tentatively agreed on all but six of those.

The major stumbling block among the remaining six is an additional $7 million endorsed by the senate for the mid-town state office complex in St. Louis.

The house approved only enough for the new building for consolidating the state offices except welfare. The house maintains cheaper space could be obtained just outside the downtown St. Louis area for the welfare services.

The senate contends all services, including welfare, should be in the same complex, which would require the additional $7 million supported by the senators.

The first impasse between the house and senate on the bill centered around construction of new prison facilities and led to the failure of the measure during the regular session which ended in June.

The special session was called after Gov. Joseph Teasdale and the legislative leadership worked out a compromise on the prison question, which called for $25 million for a medium security prison in the St. Louis area and $11.7 million for renovation of existing facilities, including additional maximum security units at the state penitentiary.

The prison compromise has been approved by both chambers and was not among the differences now blocking passage of the huge bill in the conference committee.

State Social Services Director James Walsh testified before the conference committee Tuesday on his agency's future plans for consolidating the welfare services in the St. Louis area.

Walsh said the state agency already was working on consolidating those operations in the former General American Life Insurance building just outside the city's dowtown area.

Rep. Steve Gardner, D-Baldwin, said approving the senate's version of the bill would mean an extra $7 million for a building with less square footage and no parking facilities, while the General American building had more square feet and 800 parking spaces.

However, Sen. J.B. Banks, D-St. Louis, said there was "all the land you need" available for parking space near the mid-town location. He also said it would be better to consolidate the welfare services near the city's central area.

Under questioning, Walsh said he had not seen the plans for the proposed building.

Rep. Gary Rust, R-Cape Girardeau, said he could not see appropriating the larger amount of funding for a new building, when the state's social services director had not seen the proposed facility's plans.

In response to another question from Gardner, Walsh said he was "enormously" concerned about parking space, since the agency already had a problem keeping employes and lack of parking might aggravate the problem.

Banks also pointed out the building would not be built for about two years and Walsh would have time to make sure the building plans were in line with his agency's needs.

Despite the house members' objections, Walsh said he still supported the mid-town project, as it had been approved by the Senate.

Walsh said the department had begun consolidation in the present building in the expectation of eventually moving into the mid-town structure, which also has been backed by Teasdale.

"I'm supporting the governor's position," Walsh told the committee.

The other five provisions in addition to the St. Louis office building are $50,000 for study of a new veterans home in Macon, $50,000 for study of a new building at Missouri Southern State College in Joplin, $50,000 for study of a new building at Missouri Western in St. Joseph, $500,000 for development at the Battle of Athens State Park, Wakonda State Park and Bothwell Lodge, and $280,000 for tourist information centers in northeast and northwest Missouri.

Thieves take tools, change in two thefts

CHARLESTON -- Two break-ins believed to have occurred Saturday and Monday night are under investigation by Mississippi County Sheriff's Department.

West Side Salvage, Highway 60, one mile west of Charleston, owned by Percy Foster, was entered sometime Monday night, Deputy Sheriff Robert Smith said today.

Four boxes of socket wrenches, a battery charger, and electric welder and a hydraulic jack, valued at about $800, were taken after entry was made by breaking a lock on the east side door.

Mississippi County Bowling Lanes, on Highway 105 near the south city limits of Charleston, was entered through a rear door sometime Saturday night.

Smith said a large amount of change was taken from 12 coin-operated machines. Two pistols, one a .45 and the other a .32 caliber, were also taken along with some tools .

The lanes are owned by Bob Warren.

Anti-fencing program nets dividends

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — An anti-fencing program under way in western Missouri the past 16 months has resulted in the recovery of about $200,000 in stolen property and 15 warrants for felony arrests, Police Chief Gordon Loveland said today.

Loveland made the announcement after the recovery of a truckload of stolen cheese from the Clinton area.

The police chief said the program was set up in May 1976 on the basis of information from undercover narcotics agents. With preliminary funding from the Missouri Council on Criminal Justice, law enforcement agencies in the area started an undercover anti-fencing operation using various fronts and methods of operation.

Loveland said the initial operation proved successful and additional funding was approved by the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. He said a variety of property stolen from west-central Missouri, southwestern Missouri and Kansas was recovered during the program.

Among the recovered items were cars, sporting goods, power tools, guns, musical instruments and clothing.

Loveland said nine persons are in custody and six others are being sought.

Bell seeks new data bureau

WASHINGTON (AP) — After ignoring exhortations by researchers and study groups for more than a century, the government is moving to pull together its disjointed set of facts and figures on crime.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell wants to end fragmentation of effort in the Justice Department's compilation and analysis of crime figures by creating a new Bureau of Criminal Justice Statistics.

In so doing, Bell is responding to what critics have described as the department's "horse and buggy system" of collecting crime figures. The agency he is proposing could give the public and government officials at all levels important information about crime trends and fresh insight about the causes of crime and ways to combat it.

The new agency would take over the crime statistics work of the FBI, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and a host of separate department offices.

Seventeen department units currently produce 54 different sets of statistics dealing with crime, the courts, prosecutors, prisons or other aspects of the criminal justice system.

Justice Department officials and private researchers long have maintained that the criminal records-keeping practices of the government have frustrated efforts to paint a reliable picture of crime in America.

"Nationwide information about crime is so fragmented, unreliable and varied that it is impossible to state, with any degree of confidence, conclusions about the state of the nation's crime problem," said a recent department staff report on the problem.

The best-known statistics are those published in the FBI's annual and quarterly figures on the numbers of crimes reported to state and local police. But those reports include only seven crime categories — murder, rape, assault, robbery, burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft. They say nothing about white-collar offenses and numerous other crimes.

It will take new legislation from Congress, however, before the new bureau could take over the Justice Department's crime statistics work and go into full operation.

District 9 clerks and recorders meet

BENTON -- Twenty-two persons, Circuit Clerks, recorders, deputy clerks and deputy recorders, representing the counties of Cape, Scott, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Perry and Stoddard, attended a regional meeting of District 9 of Missouri Circuit Clerk and Recorders Association Thursday in the Scott County Circuit Court room.

Shirley Parker, president of the association and Circuit Clerk and Recorder of Scotland County, presented a program on Senate Bill 112, which allows a fixed recording fee for instruments by the page.

She advised that the association's legislative committee is working on a pay-raise bill for recorders and said the committee expects to have a draft of the bill ready to present at the annual convention in Columbia Sept. 21-23, along with a bill helping to protect Circuit Clerks when the new judicial reform goes into effect in January 1979.

This new law will eliminate Magistrate and Probate Judges offices and combine them under the Circuit Court as associate judges.

Jane Hess of the state court administrators office in Jefferson City and Richard Huber of Jefferson City, council for the division of family services, were present to lend their knowledge on House bill 601, parent-locater, which adds the duty to Circuit Clerks to collect for the state or the division of family services, child support payments. They also discussed how to handle SEU-212 forms when they are received and how to report to the state when checks are received.

Brydon M. Ross, regional vice president and Circuit Clerk of Dunklin County, presented a list of items that need answers and asked each member to consider them between now and the convention in Columbia.

Some of the items presented by Ross include: Possibility of computer terminal in clerk's offices across the state; Having microfilm or microfische records made of files and records; Legislation permitting the destruction of old (20-years of age) files; parent-locater problems, such as collection of fees for the state under voluntary assignments; and monthly instead of weekly reports to state enforcement units.

Other questions asked by Ross include preliminary inquiries into 1979 court systems regarding Magistrate Courts, Probate Courts, Municipal Courts; appointments of deputies (Probate and Magistrate Courts), such as who sets the deputies salaries and who pays the salaries?

The final question asked was in regard to who collects city fines (Municipal courts), where does the fine money go and will there be deputies for Municipal Courts?

During the 1700s, rice was used as currency in the Carolinas.

Former House speakers talk on abuse of power

By GARY HARDEE
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — John G. Christy, former Missouri House speaker, will tell you straight out about offers of money to influence legislation: "Any House speaker who says he didn't get any offers, well, there's something wrong there. I got some big offers and some little offers," says Christy, House Speaker from 1935 to 1940. "I'm not going to tell you I didn't have offers when I was speaker, but I didn't accept them."

Another former House Speaker, Richard J. Rabbitt, was recently sentenced to seven years in prison and fined $18,000 for extortion and mail fraud.

Federal prosecutors presented evidence showing Rabbitt accepted $12,300 from an architectural firm for state contracts and $14,300 from the Greater St. Louis Automotive Dealers Association for assigning bills to favorable committees and influencing passage of legislation.

Rabbitt's conviction will be appealed, but it raises questions about the power of the House speaker, who is considered the most powerful state official next to the governor.

House Minority Floor Leader Russell G. Brockfeld, R-Warrenton, recently requested that the House consider rule changes reducing the authority of the speaker.

Brockfeld, in a letter to present House Speaker, Ken Rothman, D-Clayton, suggested that the speaker's authority to assign bills to committees be given to the House Rules Committee.

Brockfeld also suggested, "in light of the recent conviction" of Rabbitt, that either the minority caucus or minority floor leader appoint members of the minority party to committees. The speaker now has this power.

These powers give the speaker a great amount of control over legislation, Christy says.

"I had two committees that I called 'killing committees,'" Christy said. Bills he didn't like, Christy explained, he could assign to those committees, and the legislation would never be reported to the floor for a vote.

"I don't know whether it's good (for the speaker) to have the power to appoint committees and control committees and to refer certain bills to certain committees," the 80-year-old former Jefferson City mayor says.

"It's a hell of a lot of power to give to one man."

Christy says the biggest offer he received was $5,000 from a company that manufactures voting machines. The company wanted him to assign a bill that would allow them to install a voting machine in the House chamber to a "friendly" committee.

"It takes a lot of will power not to succumb. The lobbyists do anything to get close to the speaker," Christy says.

Christy says when he was a lobbyist for Missouri's breweries, he tried to get close to the speaker. "I gave out a lot of beer," he says.

Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage, believes, however, the bribes will not come if a speaker establishes that he is not susceptible. Webster was speaker for one legislative session in 1954.

"The offers do not come to people who establish the reputation of not being susceptible," Webster says. "The speaker only has the power that the House membership gives him. Where the membership permits abuse of those powers, it is the fault of the membership."

Webster says when he was House speaker he never was offered any bribes for special help on legislation, but "the opportunity was always there." He likes Brockfeld's suggestions for changing the authority of the speaker.

"The speaker has the power to remove members from committees. That's where his real power comes from. He can tell a committee chairman, hold a bill or let it out or I'll take you off the committee," Webster says.

"That's why the caucus system is better. Let the speaker be a presiding officer."

Rothman, however, was disgusted by Brockfeld's suggestions, calling them a "cheap political shot."

"I don't know why he did that. I didn't notice any Republicans saying we should strip the powers of the president when Nixon was removed from office," Rothman says.

"Some one has to have the responsibility. The responsibility I had worked well. As speaker I have received praise from media throughout the state."

Thomas D. Graham, former House speaker from 1961 to 1965, says the present responsibilities of the speaker worked well for him.

"Sure, it is a lot of power, and it can be abused, but so can other powers, says Graham, who is practicing law in Jefferson City.

"An instance like this conviction of Rabbitt shouldn't be used to damn everyone (in the legislature). Because one man goes bad, you shouldn't condemn everyone. It happens in all walks of life," Graham says.

"Everybody wants an unfair advantage. That's only natural. But you don't have to give up your principles to do a good job."

Laura Keenan completes 28-day tour

Laura Keenan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Keenan, 124 Autumn Drive, recently returned from Dallas where she plans to move this fall. She will be working in a sales position there using her bachelor's degree in business which she received at the University of Missouri-Columbia in May.

Following graduation, Miss Keenan and her friend Deborah Shouse of Kansas City went on a 28-day charter tour from New York to London and Europe. They flew from New York to London, where they started on their own schedule. They took a train from London to Dover and connected with a ship which took them to Oostende, Belgium. From Oostende they used their train passes to travel throughout Europe.

They stayed in hotels throughout Europe.

From Brussels, Belgium the two travelers went to Amsterdam, Heidelberg, West Germany; Lucerne, Switzerland; and then to Simbach, a small village near Munich. They were guests of the Papa Berna family. Only the daughter in college, Gabi, could speak English. Berna is a foreman in the local sausage factory. Water is not served at the table in his home, instead, all the family drinks great quantities of beer.

The girls from Missouri said couldn't keep up with the local custom. From Simbach they toured Munich and Salzburg, Austria. Continuing on South, visits were made in Italy to Venice, Florence, and Rome. After being in the cold north the warmer climate of Italy was a nice change. From Rome they went to Nice, France on the French Riviera and past the castle of Prince Ranier and Princess Grace of Monaco. It is the custom on the beach there that most women wear topless bathing suits. Again, the girls from Missouri couldn't keep up with the local custom.

The trip from Nice to Paris was made by train. After a couple of days in Paris, they took a train to Calais, France, a ship to England, two more days in London and then back to Missouri by way of New York City.

Of all the areas visited the favorites were London, Germany, Switzerland, Austria. For anyone's first trip, England is recommended as the first stop to blunt the cultural shock, followed by Germany where the standard of living is comparable to the United States. Laura said she would be glad to assist anyone interested in information about Europe or London.

Well-being of wheat growers has fallen to levels of 1933

WASHINGTON (AP) — According to Agriculture Department calculations, the economic well-being of wheat growers generally has fallen to the levels of 1933, when the federal government began extensive programs of adjusting the farm economy.

The prices they are getting this summer are not the worst but are getting close to a percentage of the calculated parity price.

In mid-July, the combined average for all types of wheat produced was $2 a bushel. That's 40 per cent of the parity price of $5.05.

As a percentage of parity, the average wheat prices for one season hit bottom in 1931, with 36 per cent.

When grain stocks in other countries were depleted in 1973 and U.S. exports began to boom, the peak of 118 per cent was reached.

The parity price is not a direct measure of farm income, which chief USDA economist Howard Hjort says will fall to 1971 levels this year.

But it does reflect at a given time the price a farmer should get for a bushel of wheat to achieve the financial harmony the law says existed in the 1910-1914 period.

Many figures are cranked into the calculation, which the department is required to make, each month. Most are averages that a farmer with a mortgage and a typical family's needs may have some difficulty identifying with.

The prices the farmer pays for the articles and services that he must buy are included, along with the general level of all farm prices, interest rates, wage rates, taxes and government income supplements and price supports.

Few of those items go down as does the price of a commodity after big harvests.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says, "I see no hope for wheat-price improvement this year" in the cash market. Upcoming increases in government payment levels will help growers' incomes but not raise the effective market price beyond $2.25 a bushel, the USDA loan rate.

The Economic Research Service says that "seasonal price rises of 5 to 10 per cent have occurred in earlier years when prices were near the loan rate."

That's a dime or two a bushel next spring, not enough to exceed the loan rate. Moreover, dwindling storage space is forcing many farmers to sell into the glutted market rather than wait.

Some tentative hope was raised Thursday with new estimates of world grain trade, production and stocks for the current season. The Foreign Agricultural Service trimmed its forecast of the total wheat and coarse grains carryover stocks next June 30 from a potential record of 195.8 million metric tons to 186.2 million.

But that would still be the largest stockpile since 1970, more than 10 per cent above this summer's price-smothering carryover.

The estimate also is tentative, because it was based on lower projections for Russian spring-wheat and U.S. corn harvests that may be raised again because of recent better weather.

"It will take a kicker on the demand side — more specifically from exports — to push prices up more than seasonally," the Aug. 1 ERS analysis states. "Such a push could come from a shortfall in the world's wheat crop, the world's feedgrain crop or the world rice crop. However, at this time all three crops look good."

While the FAS did cut those wheat and feed totals Thursday, the crops still would be second only to last year's record, 9 per cent of which was added unsold to the previous carryover. The estimates of total grain moving into trade channels were raised, too — for everyone but the United States.

All that means stagnant domestic prices.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $51,000 grant from the Agricultural Research Service and extensive funding from the U.S. cane-sugar industry are going into emergency testing of the smut resistance of about 600 types of domestic surgarcane.

"As far as we know, we do not have smut on the U.S. mainland now, but the future threat is serious," said Dr. Jack L. Dean, an ARS plant pathologist in Canal Point, Fla.

Airborne smut, thought to have come from Africa, was recently found in Jamaica, where the three years of tests will be conducted. One strain was found in Hawaii six years ago.

"Its arrival on the U.S. mainland is virtually assured. The only uncertainty is how much time we have to prepare for it," Dean said.

Sugar varieties and breeding lines are being quarantined near Washington for shipment to Jamaica in October, when an industry-built quarantine greenhouse should be complete. After an additional time there, the plants will be placed outside for a year or two to test their resistance to the black whiplike fungi that grow from a few inches to a few feet long.

About 440,000 mainland acres, or 65 per cent of the cane areas of Florida, Louisiana and Texas, are vulnerable, Dean said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Funding for the Agriculture Department's export credit-sales program has been cut back to $750 million from the $1 billion of this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

That lower amount is the level set for fiscal 1978 by the USDA appropriations bill President Carter signed recently.

As of three days before that, USDA had committed $945.6 million for fiscal 1977. The program of short-term commercial financing is seen as a tool to promote further exports of U.S. crops, especially cotton, rice and wheat.

Bridal Customs Then And Now

It's as true now as it has been throughout history—one of the bridal paths leads to the kitchen. That's why gifts of cookware have always been popular.

In colonial times, pots were made almost exclusively of iron. Brass and copper were popular in Europe and wealthy Americans often improved them for gifts, notably wedding presents.

Today, people who want to give a wedding gift that is both practical and elegant are choosing cookware with the color of burnished pewter, like this Premium cookware by Wear-Ever. It features nonstick, easy to clean, interiors of "SilverStone." The brightly polished heavy aluminum exterior of the cookware adds good looks to your kitchen. Handles are contoured to fit the hand comfortably, and they have special hang-up features and polished flame-guards.

All of these qualities combine to give the bride tomorrow's cookware with yesterday's appeal.

PATIO SNACKTIME
Honey Brownies — Iced Tea

HONEY BROWNIES

A sweet cookie bar with lots of chocolate flavor.

½ cup flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2½ squares (2½ ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1-3rd cup butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1-3rd cup honey
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

Stir together the flour, soda and salt. Melt the chocolate with the butter. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; beat in sugar, honey and vanilla to blend; beat in chocolate mixture to blend; add flour mixture and beat to blend. Stir in nuts. Turn into an 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan whose bottom has been lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until edges come away slightly from pan — 40 minutes; a cake tester inserted in center will not come out clean. Cool on wire rack for 15 minutes; turn out on rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up; cool completely. Cut into squares. Makes 16.

CHARLOTTE MOSENTHAL'S BANANA BREAD

The friend who contributed this recipe says it's great for peanut-butter sandwiches or toasted and spread with butter.

1 cup fine whole wheat flour, fork-stir well before measuring ¾ cup white flour, fork-stir well before measuring
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1-3rd cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1-3rd cup granulated sugar
2 large eggs
1 cup pureed ripe banana
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 cup chopped (medium-coarse) walnuts

Stir together the flours, baking powder, baking soda and salt; stir in the sugars. In a medium mixing bowl beat together the eggs, pureed bananas and melted butter to blend; add flour mixture and stir only until blended. Fold in nuts. Turn into a greased 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 1 hour. Turn out on wire rack to cool. The loaf is more crunchy than moist.

Irish-American Story Recounted In 'Golden Clan'

THE GOLDEN CLAN. By John Corry. Houghton Mifflin. 187 Pages. $8.95.

As a boy in the 1870s, Thomas Edward Murray was shoveling snow one day in front of one of the great homes of Albany, N.Y., when its owner, Gen. Sebastian Visaher Talcott, on a whim invited the lad inside. Talcott was impressed and invited him back later for a meal of, among other things, roast beef, horseradish and whipped cream — all exotic foods to the young Irish-American. Before it ended Talcott said, "I think you'll be President of the United States one day."

Murray, devoutly religious and later a prolific inventor, did not become President but his talents brought him great wealth. This history of the Irish-American rich by John Corry tells how the Murrays, Cuddihys, Kennedys, McDonnells and other members of the exclusive clan used their wealth and how they lived.

As the reader, with Corry's help, rubs shoulders with the Irish rich and their clergy, he discovers that in their quest for social approval they acted as hyphenated Americans always have acted. They kept to themselves, forming their own world and their own aristocracy, doing it all better than was done by those they thought disdained them and their values.

The world created by the Murrays and their clan is now vanished but, whatever else one may think of it, it is probably true, as Corry says, that while it lasted it stood as a beacon for countless other Irish-American families as it turned Protestant disdain into respect and finally envy. And that is an old American story.

Coppel Spins A Fine Web Of Intrigue

THE DRAGON. By Alfred Coppel. Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. 436 Pages. $10.

Alfred Coppel, a former fighter pilot, unfolds much of this tale of international intrigue through the eyes of Harry Grant, a pilot and trusted friend of the president of the United States.

Grant is dispatched by the president to London to seek, from a possible Soviet defector, clues to an imminent change of leadership in Russia. The president plans a peace-making tour across the Atlantic, but faces an unknown: reports that China has built a laser weapon called "The Dragon" that will disrupt the balance of power.

The action is centered in England, where Grant, prepared with but a hasty briefing before his journey, runs into puzzles thicker than a London fog. What he eventually learns explains the ominous events occurring behind the Iron Curtain.

This novel shows that the world is not a chess board, that the failings and virtues of men more often than not divert the course charted by logic and computers. Thus, characters here are as important as plot.

Coppel is at his best when he pictures the Russians caught up in the web: the intelligence agent pursuing the Dragon in the vast no-man's-land of the Sino-Soviet frontier, the young military genius rising to power, the aging Kremlin ministers he confounds. Perhaps they are interesting because we are unfamiliar with their real life counterparts.

But some of the American characters portrayed — the bumbling, political hack vice president, the senator who maliciously meddles with CIA secrets, the Marxist reporter who publishes them — lack the ring of credibility.

BILL D. BURLISON

WASHINGTON D.C. -- My purpose in this newsletter is to give you a status report on the Fiscal Year 1978 Defense Appropriations Bill. As a Member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense I spend a good deal of my time attending hearings, committee meetings, and bill markups, plus supporting the proposed Defense Appropriations bill on the House Floor and in Joint Conference with our Senate counterparts. Incidentally, we have just finished the conference on this year's bill. Final Congressional approval and submission to the President will probably come early in September.

As one might expect, the bill is a large one: over $110 billion. There are those who would object to so much money being spent on Defense while we have so many pressing domestic demands that should be met. However, in the words of Chairman Mahon (D-Tex.) "preventing World War III is what this bill is all about," and that can be an expensive proposition. In the current bill we are about $5 billion above the defense bill of last year; and when we add on the supplemental appropriations for next year, it will be about $7.5 billion above the current fiscal year. This new budget authority would be roughly $6.8 billion less than President Ford's original request, and about $4 billion less than President Carter's amended budget request.

These final totals could be influenced to the tune of over $1 billion by the President's decision in late June to shelve the B-1 bomber. As you may have heard, the House conferees did not agree to go along with the Senate in the deletion of the production funds in FY 1978. This means that this portion of the bill will be taken back to the House Floor in disagreement, thereby necessitating a House vote on whether or not to uphold the President's decision. It's my personal viewpoint that the President's decision on FY '78 funding will prevail, as was the case in the Senate. It should be noted that the House took its vote prior to the President's decision.

The President's decision to kill the B-1 bomber program and go ahead with the development of the cruise missile, a winged pilotless craft, caught nearly everyone by surprise. There are good arguments for both sides in this controversy. The B-1 would have the capability of making low level penetrations into the heart of the Soviet Union carrying a multi-faceted arsenal of weapons. This low level penetration capability minimizes the chances of detection by current warning systems and increases the probability of success. A counter argument is that the Soviets are developing a version of the U. S. Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) aircraft with an improved low level detection capability. There is also a good argument for retaining the recall capability of the manned bomber. This would give the President more flexibility in situations now requiring extensive airborne alerts.

On the other hand, the system is very expensive. Carter and his advisors view the cruise missile as the United States' best, affordable hedge against growing Soviet might, and do not intend to significantly compromise on it in strategic arms talks expected to resume in October. In the meantime, a supplemental budget will be submitted expediting the development of the cruise missile and modifications of aircraft to carry the missile. Aircraft to be considered include the later models of the B52 and the Boeing 747 and MDC DC10 wide-bodied transports. The Authorizing Committees are already holding hearings on these programs.

Of particular interest to the 10th District of Missouri is the status of funding for the Defense Mapping Agency's Aerospace Center and McDonnell Douglas Corporation's Defense contracts. The couple of hundred or so constituents who work at the Aerospace Center will be interested in the fact that the DMA funding for FY 1978 exceeds that of the current year by some $7 million.

Major Defense programs of the McDonnell-Douglas Corporation, which employs about 800 residents of the 10th District, are as follows:

a. The Air Force F15 Eagle -- the R F 15 is a twin engine single crew, fixed swept wing aircraft designed specifically for high maneuverability in air-to-air combat. It is the first U. S. fighter aircraft to possess a thrust to weight ratio greather than one to one. It has been called the world's best air superiority fighter.

Despite President Carter's proposal to cut the FY 1978 production rate to 78 aircraft, we were able to provide funds for 97 aircraft. This includes the funding necessary to commence installation of the PEP 2000 modification. (The expected buy of F15s by Japan and Saudia Arabia will also help this production line.)

b. The Navy-Marine Corps F18-A18 Hornet -- the F18 is a twin engine, single crew, carrier based, multimission tactical aircraft that can be configured with fighter or attack capabilities. It will replace F4s and eventually A7 aircraft in the Navy and Marine Corps.

In spite of determined and organized opposition to this program from competition companies, my colleagues and I were successful in providing the requested $626.6 million for Research and Development and $29.3 million for advance procurement. These advance procurement funds will be used to buy long leadtime items for a proposed buy of nine aircraft in FY 1979.

c. The Marine Corps AV8B -- Advanced Harrier -- The AV8B is an improved version of the Marine Corps' current short takeoff and landing aircraft. It is a single engine, single crew aircraft capable of operating either from ships or from Marine expeditionary landing fields. $60 million is appropriated for Research and Development.

d. Advanced Medium STOL Transport (AMST) -- The AMST program is designed to modernize the tactical airlift force with aircraft capable of jet speeds and operations form 2000 feet unimproved runways, while also having the capability to carry heavy outsized cargo into improved runways. Boeing and MDC have each built two prototypes for test and evaluation. A winner of this competition is to be selected and announced early next year. $10 million is appropriated for Research and Development.

e. Harpoon Missil -- Harpoon is an air-surface-sub-surface launched antiship cruise missile. It uses an active radar seeker, radar altimeter and altitude reference assembly in conjunction with a small digital computer for missile guidance and control. It is propelled by a turbo jet engine with a solid booster for ship launch. $112.5 million is appropriated for procurement of 234 Navy missiles.

I have two intelligence amendments involved in the conference. The one placing severe fiscal restraints on the CIA "Reserve" fund was agreed to. The one making it illegal to assassinate foreign leaders was lost in conference. I will be in a strategic position to continue efforts on this, having been appointed to the new House Select Committee on Intelligence.

Although we are approaching the final stages of preparing the FY 1978 Defense Appropriations Bill for the President's signature, this does not lead to a period of inactivity by the Defense Subcommittee. After obtaining approval of the conference report, in September, I anticipate a series of hearings on the President's recission of the FY '77 B-1 production funds and his supplemental budget request - emphasizing the development of cruise missiles and cruise missile carrying aircraft. After that, my Subcommittee will consider the routine supplemental appropriations bill and commence hearings on the President's FY Budget, to be submitted in January.

Captivating Stories In Pearl Buck Volume

THE LOVERS AND OTHER STORIES. By Pearl S. Buck. John Day. 212 Pages. $7.95.

Admirers of the writings of Pearl S. Buck are lucky. They have a vast selection of the Nobel and Pulitzer prize winning author's work to select from. A prolific writer, Miss Buck has more than 70 books to her credit and the late author apparently left much unpublished material behind after her death in 1973.

According to the publisher, only one of the items — a novelette and six short stories — appearing in "The Lovers and Other Strangers" has been previously published. Thus, Buck followers have a treat in store for them.

While all of the items included in the book are good, some are better than others. The best is a poignant story titled "Next Saturday And Forever." It's quite brief and perhaps its very briefness is what makes it such a memorable tale. It concerns a man and a woman, no longer young, who are in love. Unfortunately, both are married — although the woman's husband has deserted her — to others and they do have a number of children. They meet once a week in a restaurant for a few hours, and then part to return to their respective families and dream of their next meeting. A most effective, most touching story.

"The Man Called Dead" is a bittersweet story about an aging actor who never quite made it to the top — although he got close — and is spending his days in a seedy little room waiting for a break. Then, by mistake, a newspaper reports that he is dead and marvelous things begin to happen to Drake Forrester, including reunion with a love he thought he had lost for ever.

The remaining items aren't quite up to the level of these two, but they are well written and interesting.

Personal injury suit asks $95,890

BENTON— A four-count personal injuries suit seeking $95,890 was filed Friday in Scott County Circuit Clerks office by Judy Ann Reynolds and Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds by next of friend Judy Ann and James Earl Reynolds of New Madrid County against Robert William Sitzes of Sikeston Route One.

The suit is a result of a vehicle accident at 1:20 p.m. Sept. 24, 1976 on U.S. Highway 61, one and seven tenths mile south of Highway 60 in New Madrid County.

The suit alleges that at that time Judy Ann Reynolds was operating her car in a northerly direction with Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds passengers in her car, when Sitzes, operating a 1972 pickup truck in a northerly direction on highway 61, negligently, without warning and at an excessive rate of speed, passed the Reynolds car, then swerved immediately back in front of the Reynolds car and without warning or signaling stopped in the northbound lane, forcing Judy Reynolds to make an emergency application of her car brakes to avert a collision with the Sitzes pickup, which caused her car to go out of control, traveling into the southbound lane of Highway 61 and colliding with a two-ton truck traveling in a southerly direction.

As a result of the collision, count one of the suit states that Judy Ann, Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds, all were caused to suffer severe, permanent and progressive injuries.

Count one of the suit also alleges that Judy Ann Reynolds also suffered a disfiguring cut to the face and a cerebral concussion.

In count one Judy Ann Reynolds seeks $25,000 for personal injuries.

In count two Rebecca Marie Reynolds, alleges the same charges in count one and also charges that she suffered a fractured tooth and a fractured jaw and seeks $10,000 for personal injuries.

Count three of the suit, on behalf of Jimmie Daniel Reynolds, alleges charges in count one and also states that he suffered a fracture to the right leg and seeks $35,000 for personal injuries.

In count four, Judy Ann and James Earl Reynolds, state that as a result of the accident caused by Sitzes negligence they have incurred expenses for the injuries sustained by Judy Ann, Rebecca Marie and Jimmie Daniel Reynolds and seek damages in the aamount of $25,000 and damages for the loss of their auto in the amount of $890.

Dear Sirs;

We the undersigned wish to protest the showing this Fall of a new series, "SOAP" on ABC-TV.

From the Reviews we've learned that it desecrates every value sacred to Christians. Even the Midnight-Globe (July 19,77) reviews it as "X-rated". We feel this is going too far.

We not only intend to boycott this show, but also will boycott any product advertised there-in.

Yours truly,
Mary M. Shields

Dear Sirs;

In the past your station has shown good taste in foregoing the showing of objectionable programs. We hope you will continue to do so by refusing to air "Soap" which we find desecrates every value sacred to Christians.

We will not only boycott these shows, but will also boycott any product advertised there-in.

Yours truly,
Mary M. Shields

Know anyone who has $100,000 to give away?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Somewhere in this country there's a philanthropist who'd be glad to hand over $100,000 to Gregg Charbonett. Or at least that's what Charbonett hopes.

Last week, the 28-year-old truck warehouseman from Memphis purchased an ad in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that read: "Nice young family would like $100,000 to enable us to travel the world."

"I wanted to see what would happen," Charbonett explained.

This is Charbonett's second try at "fund raising." Last August and October he placed an ad asking for $1 million in the Houston Post and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

So far, he's received no reply from last week's add, but last year he got four letters back, all in answer to the Post ad. One included a dollar bill.

"The dollar was from a very sweet lady who wrote, 'Congratulations on doing what I have thought about for years but never had the courage. I hope you get a million letters like mine with one dollar enclosed,' " Charbonett said.

Still, Charbonett remains hopeful that his ad will strike a generous chord in a wealthy person who'd be "happy to part with a million dollars or a hundred thousand for a person of good character who will use it well."

"It might be done from a capricious kindness if the idea struck just in the right way at the right time, or maybe from a desire to see someone young and 'starry-eyed' carrying out dreams like those he or she once had but no longer felt or could pursue," he said.

Charbonett's wife, Elona, takes a less idealistic attitude toward her husband's enterprise.

"She's much more realistic about it and knows there's not much chance of success," he said. "It doesn't excite her at all, but it's exciting to me."

Taped interviews with Berkowitz go on sale

KINGS POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Ten hours of taped interviews with David Berkowitz, the accused "Son of Sam" killer, will be put on sale for $600,000, literary agent Scott Meredith said Saturday.

Meredith would not say whether any bids had been received for publishing or broadcast rights to the tapes, which reportedly cover Berkowitz's sex life, his childhood, his family life and his reaction to the shootings and his arrest.

Meredith refused to disclose how he came into custody of the tapes. He said the source of the material questioned and recorded Berkowitz in his cell at Kings County Hospital.

He said the source had agreed that 40 per cent of the earnings from publication would go to the victims and families of victims from the 13 shootings laid to the ".44-caliber killer."

A New York State law went into effect this month requiring that any profits earned by a criminal — stemming from his crime — be forwarded to his victims or victims' estates.

Meredith said lawyers had told him it probably would be legal to sell the tapes.

Berkowitz, who allegedly killed six people and wounded seven, is being examined at the hospital in an attempt to determine whether he is competent to stand trial. If he is found incompetent, it might also be determined that he was incompetent to consent to release of the tapes.

Area residents attend piano workshop

From left, Erika Voss and Hal Mark McDonald of Sikeston receive advanced instruction from Ruth Slenczynska Kerr, world-famous concert pianist. Voss and McDonald participated in a master piano workshop held at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville during the summer. The concert pianist is a member of the SIUE music faculty. She has made over 3,000 appearances in concert and has cut over 100 records. Miss Slenczynska studied with such music greats as Rachmaninoff, Artur Schnabel, Alfred Cortot, Egon Petri and Nadia Boulanger. As a child, she was praised as "the greatest child prodigy of the 20th century and the greatest keyboard genius since Mozart."

American in Brazil shares home with children

By MARY LENZ

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Edna Blanche Deakins decided 20 years ago to do something about the problem of abandoned children in Brazil. Today, she still has her work cut out for her.

A recent government report estimated that of 100 million people in this South American country, 15 million were children living without adequate food, clothing or shelter. Some had been abandoned by their parents.

In Sao Paulo, the 7.2 million-person industrial heart of Brazil, an estimated three out of every 10 children are either abandoned or living in squalor.

Headlines in Brazilian newspapers often tell of babies left in garages, in trashcans or on the streets. One child was found in the bathroom of a ferry.

The orphanages that exist are jammed. "You can hardly get a child into a state-run orphanage here," Miss Deakins said.

What happens to most abandoned infants? "They die," the 64-year-old Anaheim, Calif., native said simply.

Miss Deakins tries to provide a home in Sao Paulo for as many abandoned children as possible. Since 1957, she has reared about 300 children and has 22 living with her at present.

Miss Deakins told the Associated Press in a telephone interview that she had decided to come to Brazil because "I just felt it was the thing the Lord wanted me to do.

"I always loved children," she said.

When Miss Deakins, who had been a secretary in the United States, arrived in Brazil, she "just rented a house and started taking in children."

She explained that "when I met people, I'd tell them what I wanted to do. It spread like wildfire. I got children from all over."

Miss Deakins, a Baptist, was briefly associated with a religious group called the American Soul Clinic, but after five months struck out on her own.

Railroad museum at Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- Lee Chronister, a retired railroad chief dispatcher is moving back to Chaffee from Springfield, and plans to begin a railroad museum here.

Chronister and a friend, Stormy Swantner, built an old-fashioned railroad depot in Springfield, filling it with antiques and memorabilia of the steam engine era of the Frisco and other railroads.

The depot is being brought back to Chaffee, where it will be located on Mr. Chronister's property at 330 Yokum. When completed, it will contain replicas from more than 100 railroad depots, and will be open to the public.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 24, the 236th day of 1977. There are 129 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1814, British troops invaded Washington, D.C., and burned the Capitol and the White House.

On this date:

In 79 A.D., an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in Italy buried the ancient cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum.

In 1777, Gen. George Washington led his Revolutionary War army into Philadelphia.

In 1932, Amelia Earhart became the first woman to make a non-stop flight across the United States, flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in 19 hours and five minutes.

In 1939, Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union signed a 10-year non-aggression pact.

In 1970, the first helicopters to fly across the Pacific reached South Vietnam from the U.S.

Ten years ago: Mobs from Communist China repeatedly attacked British positions along the 17-mile Hong Kong border and were driven off with tear gas.

Five years ago: Argentine security forces arrested hundreds of leaders of leftwing labor, student and political groups after a night of student rioting in major provincial cities.

One year ago: Two Soviet cosmonauts returned to earth after 48 days in orbit in a space laboratory.

Today's birthday: Physicist Ralph Lapp is 60 years old.

Thought for today: "Nothing is particularly hard if you divide it into small jobs." — Auto manufacturer Henry Ford, 1863-1947.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Body size inherited

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — During my four years in high school I participated in varsity sports and cheerleading year round. From all this activity I developed big muscles in my calves and thighs. Is there any possible way that I can get rid of these muscles or thin our my legs?

DEAR READER — A muscle stays as large as it needs to be to have the strength to do the work it is required to do regularly. That means if a muscle is not required to do strength work it will begin to get smaller. We usually say that to maintain your muscle size and strength you must do strength exercises at least once a week.

Apparently if you are not doing sports now the only weight your calves and legs must lift is your own body. Under these circumstances, if you are not obese and have fat over your thighs the size of your muscles may be a familial characteristic.

Those genes we inherit do have their effects. That is why we have beef cattle and dairy cows — one for muscle, the other for milk. Draft horses for work are heavy muscular animals while race horses have different bodies.

Don't try too hard to change your natural state. Just get rid of fat if you already have some. To give you a better idea of what controls muscle size I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Keep in mind those muscles, if they are muscles and not fat, may help keep you from getting fat later in life.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son is 18 months old. The children's specialist I take him to thinks he has a heart murmur which could be innocent. My family doctor disagrees with him. What is a heart murmur? How can you check it?

My father and father-in-law both died young because of heart failure — my father at 48 and my father-in-law at 50. I am 37 and my wife is 29. My blood pressure is not too high and my wife is in good health. Your opinion on this will be appreciated.

DEAR READER — Just as a murmuring brook is a rapid stream that makes a noise a murmur in the heart is a sound made from the turbulence of blood circulating.

Murmurs in the heart and blood vessels then represent the vibrations of circulation. In young children with rapid heart beats and thin chests these sounds are easily heard and may have no medical significance at all. In other instances the vibrations are caused by defects inside the heart or arteries. Such defects can be caused from damage to the heart valves or arteries or from birth defects in the chambers of the heart.

Clearly, your pediatrician thinks the murmur he hears is not important. It is probably not a very loud murmur or there would be no disagreement about its presence. Incidentally, an innocent murmur may be present on one examination and not on another depending on how rapid the circulation is — which may also be related to whether the patient is resting or anxious.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Keeping in touch . . .

by Senator Jack Danforth

SOCIAL SECURITY

When the Senate reconvenes September 7, one of the major issues it will address is Social Security financing. Needless to say, this is a critical issue of major importance to most Missourians. As I travel around the state, I am often asked about the solvency of the Social Security system. Many people worry that by the time they are ready to receive the benefits they have earned, the Social Security system will be in such financial difficulty that their benefits will be reduced or even cancelled.

First of all, let me say that this will not happen. Our citizens have a major stake in the Social Security system, and therefore, the question is not whether Social Security will be financially sound, but how its financial strength will be guaranteed.

As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, I will have an opportunity to help develop the Senate's Social Security legislation. There are a number of proposals for shoring up the system. One approach with which I do not agree is the Administration's plan.

The Administration's approach heavily relies on dipping into general income tax revenues. This would erase the Social Security deficit, but without an increase in the income tax, it would simply shift the growing federal deficit from one set of books to another. I also am concerned that this strategy would create a dangerous precedent, tempting us to dip into general revenues in the future because it conceals the real cost of the program. The Administration's proposal also includes a hefty Social Security tax increase on employers. This also conceals costs because the employers increase the costs of their products and the consumer pays for it at the market place.

However, it is not my intention simply to oppose the Administration. After all, the financial shortfall facing the system is estimated to be $60 - 70 billion over the next five years. We have to raise that revenue somehow. Therefore, I am proposing what I consider to be the most equitable alternative -- one which is fair to all Americans and consistent with the purposes of the Social Security tax system.

The first plank of my proposal is to bring federal employees into the system. This proposal, which I endorsed during my campaign for the Senate, would reduce the shortfall in the next five years by nearly $18 billion. Federal employees currently do not pay Social Security; nor do they receive Social Security benefits. Instead, they would be covered by two systems -- Social Security and Civil Service retirement -- just like many private sector employees who are covered by both Social Security and private pensions.

The second component of my proposal is a 3 percent surcharge on corporate and individual income taxes. This would keep the cost of Social Security very visible but would raise over $40 billion of the shortfall in a progressive fashion. It also would avoid raising the Social Security tax itself -- an idea which places the heaviest burden on low and middle income persons.

No proposal is going to be popular. There is no painless way of raising $60 - 70 billion. It would be totally irresponsible, however, to put off action any longer. The financial strength of the Social Security program must be a top priority for all of us.
